But at the end of its recent session, the legislature removed several types of wetlands from exemption from the property tax as a revenue-producing measure. As a result, about 550,000 acres of wetlands are expected to be put back on the property tax rolls, the revenue department estimates.

Wetlands owners whose land loses its exemption will receive their first property tax bills for the land in 1984.

Wetlands no longer exempt from the property tax as a result of the law change are woody swamps containing shrubs or trees, wet meadows, streams, rivers, floodplains and river bottoms. Also no longer exempt are wetlands enrolled in a state or federal water bank program, land designated by the Minnesota department of natural resources as protected waters, and wetlands to which the state of federal government holds easements.

In spite of the legislature's action, conservationists and others interested in preserving wetlands probably don't need to worry that the land will now be drained, the revenue department says.

Most common reason — in fact, about the only reason — for draining wetlands is to use the land for pasture or to grow crops. But the legislature concluded that several types of wetlands probably can't be drained under any circumstances, so there is no need to provide a tax break for the owners not to drain the land.

Legislative action is expected to save the state more than $4 million next year alone, the revenue department estimates.

In 1983, the state paid about $4 million to local governments as reimbursement for the property tax they could not charge owners of exempt wetlands, and also for the wetlands property tax credit. State law requires local governments to subtract the wetlands credit from property tax bills for non-wetlands owned by wetlands owners as a second incentive for them not to drain their wetlands.

A secondary effect of the law change is that wetlands owners whose land is no longer exempt from the property tax will lose their wetlands credit.

Landowners whose wetlands remain exempt from the property tax will continue to receive the wetlands credit, but they'll find that the law change has cut their 1984 wetlands credit by 33 per cent compared with the credit they received this year.

Altogether, the reduction in the types of wetlands exempt from the property tax, the loss of the wetlands credit to landowners whose land is no longer exempt, and the reduction in the dollar amount of the wetlands credit is expected to bring the cost of the wetlands exemption and credit program to just under $1 million next year.

In deciding to remove the property tax exemption from the wetlands, the legislature observed that some wetlands which have been exempt cannot be drained simply because it is a physical impossibility. Other types of wetlands aren't likely to be drained because the cost of draining would be greater than the cost of buying available dry land, the legislature noted.

And it's not legal for owners to drain wetlands which they have enrolled in state or federal water bank programs, the legislature decided.

Exactly how many acres of wetlands across the state will lose exemption from the property tax won't be known until early next year when assessors determine which parcels of wetlands are no longer exempt and must be put back on the property tax rolls.

In some counties, assessors will be notifying wetlands owners of the loss of their property tax exemption and the wetlands credit. In other counties — especially those with many thousands of acres of wetlands — assessors won't be able to reach all landowners before they receive their first property tax bills for their wetlands in 1984.

Bill To Help Homemakers Is Introduced

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has introduced a bill which would allow homemakers to earn up to $250 outside the home while preserving a tax deduction of up to $2,250 for their annual contributions to individual retirement accounts.

The bill (H.R. 2468) would correct an oversight in the 1981 reforms in the IRA program.

"If a homemaker earns over $1 outside the home, the couple cannot claim the full $2,250 deduction authorized for the spousal IRA," Congressman Stangeland said. "As it now stands, the full deduction is denied if a homemaker works as a juror, an election official or a babysitter.

"This discourages many homemakers from opening these accounts," Stangeland said. He noted that it is important for homemakers to save for their retirement.

"Many of America's poorest citizens are elderly women subsisting on meager survivor's benefits or small personal savings," Congressman Stangeland said. "Today's homemakers should be encouraged to open these IRA's today."

He also noted that newly-opened "spousal IRAs" could help to fuel the growing national economic recovery.

"By opening new retirement accounts, homemakers will expand the pool of money which can be lent out for small business and farming," Congressman Stangeland said.

According to the Congressional joint taxation committee, the bill would cost the federal government less than $1 million a year in lost tax revenues. That loss could be offset by helping homemakers to avoid reliance on public assistance during their retirement years.

The bill has been assigned to the House ways and means committee. Congressman Stangeland is among a bipartisan group of 33 Representatives in sponsoring the bill.

Identical legislation is being considered for introduction in the U.S. Senate by Senator Alfonse D'Amato (R-NY).

Fiber Fuels Conference Attracts 232

National Fiber Fuels conference held at the University of Minnesota, Northwest experiment station, Crookston, June 13-15, registered 232 official registrants. The conference, which was keynoted at the outset by Governor Rudy Perpich, became an international forum for "state of the art" fiber fuels processing, utilization and equipment information.

Twenty-five speakers presented both practical and technical information over two and one-half days of the conference. The speakers projected in detail the availability of fiber fuels resources, the engineering techniques involved in retrofitting present furnace and boiler units, and experiences with large installations with conversions saving nearly $100,000 per year with fiber fuels.

Gene Miller, associate professor, U of M Northwest experiment station, Crookston, reported on agricultural fiber resources for processed fuels available in the Midwest. David Olson, peat inventory supervisor, Minnesota DNR minerals division, St. Paul, outlined the vital resource in Minnesota peat at locations.

School superintendents Ted Olson, Clearbrook, and Vern Leuth, Pine River, spoke on the savings which their school systems realized using fiber fuels. A system known as the "green fuel-wood chip" conversion which has successfully and radically reduced costs for heating the Bemidji school system was reported on by Louis Krieger, engineer of plant services in the Bemidji school system.

A complete financing session was part of the conference. Scott Harrison, Duluth; John Armstrong, acting assistant commissioner, Minnesota department of energy planning and development; and Tom P. Abeles, Ph.D., president of I & E Associates, Inc., Minneapolis reported on the various aspects of traditional state and shared savings methods of financing fiber fuel installation.

Richard Wright, Aqua-Chem, Milwaukee, WI, often referred to as "dean of engineers," reviewed specific firing principles and practices for the conference. Joe Koczan, physical plant supervisor, College of St. Scholastica, Duluth, who directs the heating installation at St. Scholastica, reported on its suspension burning system which is being fired successfully.

The btu's by the bale session, presented by Tom Miles, Portland, OR, was the highlight of the Wednesday sessions. Miles reported on a wide range of research and activity concerning "the Oregon experience." Agricultural residue such as bluegrass strippings in the Willomette Valley, Oregon was identified as being closely related to the Roseau bluegrass harvest region and it is expected that much of the technology from Oregon could be transferable to this area in Minnesota.

Operational displays on the grounds consisted of operational peat and residue dryers, peat harvesting equipment, furnace and boiler equipment along with hammermills and wood hoggers.

Persons interested in the fiber fuels technology, may obtain proceedings from this conference by writing to Fiber Fuels Report, University of Minnesota, Northwest Experiment Station, Crookston, MN 56716 which will be available early in September at a cost of approximately $15. This proceedings are expected to be a "state of the art" report of the conference and inclusive pertinent bibliography.

Garden Valley Holds 78th Annual Meet

Over 500 people, including 345 registered members, attended the 78th annual meeting of the Garden Valley telephone company in Erskine on June 7.

President L. J. Lee informed members that because of court decisions and rulings by the federal communications commission, toll access charges must be added to all members' telephone bills beginning in 1984.

Treasurer Armond Sannes summarized Garden Valley's 1982 financial report, stating that income last year increased over 14 per cent to $5.88 million — up approximately $750,000 over 1981.

Sannes pointed out that nearly 74 cents of each dollar of operating revenue last year was derived from long distance toll. Operating expenses and interest charges totaled just over $4.88 million in 1982 — up 7.5 per cent. Margins from 1982, the amount remaining after deducting expenses from the cooperatives revenues, were $995,766.

Three directors were unanimously reelected to serve on the cooperative's board. Oris Moen, Fertile, corporate secretary and the senior member on the board, was elected to his tenth three-year term as director of district one (Fertile, Beltrami and Maple Bay exchange).

Armond G. Sannes was renamed to represent district four (McIntosh and Winger). Sannes, McIntosh, was first elected to the board in 1977 and has served as treasurer since January 1982.

L.J. Lee, Bagley, was reelected as director of district seven (Bagley, Minerva and Shevlin). Lee, who was appointed to the board in 1969, has been president since 1975. Following the annual meeting, the board renamed Lee to serve as president.

Two amendments to the cooperative's by-laws, following a review by company attorney K.R. Erie, were adopted by Garden Valley members on June 7.

Amendments clarify that all references to "patrons" in the by-laws shall be interpreted as references to "members" of the Garden Valley telephone company; change "telephone service" to "communication services" and more clearly define the cooperative's net income, or margins, to be allocated to members as capital credits.

Average Cost Of Car Is 23.8 Cents Per Mile

Average cost of driving a vehicle 15,000 miles a year is 23.8 cents per mile, reported AAA Minnesota, down slightly from last year's 24.4 cents figure.

"Of course, there are a number of factors involved in the AAA study," said Gary Young, AAA spokesman. "AAA researchers calculated the car-ownership costs by considering both variable and fixed expenses." He explained that variable costs include gas, oil, maintenance and tires, while fixed costs encompass the one-time annual expenditures of insurance, license, registration fees, depreciation and taxes.

"The 23.8 cents figure is a composite cost of driving a subcompact, an intermediate and a larger-sized car approximately 15,000 miles a year," Young said. In its research, AAA used 1983 four-cylinder, six-cylinder and eight-cylinder cars for testing purposes. The average driving costs were 20.6 cents, 25.1 cents and 25.9 cents respectively.

At the same rate, driving a vehicle less will raise its per mile cost, he continued. "Driving the same cars approximately 10,000 miles per year costs the subcompact driver 27.7 cents per mile, the mid-size car owner 33.4 cents per mile and the large vehicle owner 34.5 cents per mile — a composite cost of 31.7 cents per mile."

Young stated that the most accurate method of determining car-operating costs is to keep personal records. To help calculate driving costs, AAA Minnesota has a free brochure entitled "Your Driving Costs" available. To obtain a copy, write the Public Relations Department, AAA Minnesota, 7 Travelers Trail, Burnsville, MN 55337 or call (612) 890-2500.

2.3 Million Veterans Get Compensation

An estimated 2.3 million veterans received Veterans administration compensation checks in 1982 — bringing the total paid out in the program during that fiscal year to over $9 billion.

Veterans received monthly checks ranging from as low as $62 per month, for those with 10 per cent disability, to as high as $3,461 for those with certain severe disabilities. For 100 per cent disability not involving major amputations or loss of use of limbs, the maximum amount of compensation is $1,213 per month.

Veterans whose service-connected disabilities are rated at 30 per cent or more are entitled to additional allowances for dependents. Additional amount is determined according to the number of dependents and the degree of disability.

The $9 billion cost of compensating veterans for service-connected disabilities was more than one-third of the agency's $25 billion budget, VA officials said. When combined with pension — payments made to veterans with disabilities not traceable to military service — the total is $13.9 billion, or more than half of VA's annual budget.

To be eligible for pension, a veteran must be totally and permanently disabled from a nonservice-connected cause and his family income may not exceed an amount specified by law — currently $6,980 per year for a veteran with a spouse. No such income restrictions apply to compensation payments.

The VA reported that some 800,000 veterans and one million survivors now receive pension.

Grant Awarded To Aid Project Heritage Design

Project Heritage Design, a non-profit business venture in Region I, has received a $59,000 grant from the governor's council on rural development to begin a cottage industry in northwestern Minnesota.

This new cottage industry will design and market quilts sewn by rural women in this region. Profit realized from the sale of these quilts is intended to be used to expand the project as the market allows, provide additional employment opportunities for rural women and create a women's center within Region I.

Inter-County community council of Oklee is the sponsoring agency of the project. A local board of directors has been organized to develop the project. Officers of the board include Deborah Matero, president; Betty Walton, vice president; Arlyne Forsberg, recorder; and Joanie Wilson, treasurer. Board members include Linda Bentson, Gloria Bjorkman, Milly Dallmann, Kathryn Dryden, Mary Follett, Glenda Gausen, Diana Josephson, Dee Kreuter, Betty Liden, Ruth Nepper, Margaret Saetre, Carletta Tierney, Gail Ueland and Linda Wallerich.

General manager and project design manager will be hired to direct project heritage design and applications for quilters will be taken in the near future.

Council Hears Plan To Use Carnegie Bldg.

approximately $9,000;

(4) New office space at an estimated rental cost of $12 per square foot would be located in the business center of the city;

(5) Addition of five jobs in the community;

(6) Saving of a historical building;

(7) Up-grading of the city parking lot east of the building; and

(8) Addition of a new, attractive, deli-cocktail lounge for the center of the city.

Requests which the city of Thief River Falls was asked to consider in order to assist with the proposed project included: selling the site and building to the investors for a "nominal" amount; up-grading the city parking lot on the east side; re-zoning the site from public to business; approving a tax exempt mortgage or an industrial revenue bond to finance the project development; and issuing a liquor and food license for the deli-cocktail lounge.

Mundt's enthusiasm for the project may have been tempered slightly on questioning by the council members who noted existing vacant office space in the Falls Mall, but he did not indicate that he felt it was a problem. He also noted that he was flexible regarding the cocktail lounge, when informed by Alderman Bill Penning that there might be some problems in obtaining the license, although he commented that the site "seemed to be a natural for it."

Questioned regarding how much he felt would be a "nominal amount" to pay the city for the building and site, Mundt cited several examples where buildings had been sold for $1,000, for similar projects, suggesting that they might consider paying $2,000. He noted that the city would be getting back approximately $24,000 in taxes maintenance costs saved, but council members noted that the city did not get 100 per cent of real estate taxes.

When comments were asked from the audience, Marv Enerson, representing the historical society noted that they were in favor of renovation of the building to prevent it from falling down. Favorable comments were also received from Northwest regional library director Barbara Jauquet and representatives of a committee which has been studying uses for the building.

Jane Mackenroth commented that if they wanted to sell the building for $2,000 she would write out a check right then, since she would like to put a restaurant in it. She noted that she had not done any studies on such a development, however.

Mundt noted that there could be substantial costs involved in bringing the building up to code, estimating that it would cost about $200,000 just for that purpose. He estimated that total construction costs for the proposed work with the addition would run $500,000. He also suggested that if the council wanted to open the project up to bidders, that bids should be assessed on the basis of aesthetics rather than dollars.

Council finally authorized Mayor Carlson to appoint a committee to consider offers on the building, but that they should consider closely the intended uses for it, without letting the process "drag-out for three or four years."

After considerable discussion, the council finally agreed to sign a formal resolution to approve a joint powers agreement between the cities of Thief River Falls, Red Lake Falls, Crookston, and East Grand Forks, and counties of Marshall and Polk. Agreement is intended to protect the interests of the various governmental units and the health and welfare of their inhabitants with respect to the siting of a facility for the disposal of hazardous waste by the state of Minnesota.

Participants in the agreement are to share expenses involved in possible legal efforts to oppose any site which would be deemed unsafe to the area. Alderman Ken Murphy noted that under the agreement expenses were to be divided on a per-capita basis, but that the agreement set forth limits which each participant would be required to spend. Thief River Falls committment was set at $10,000. Murphy noted that although the Pennington county board had verbally offered to financially support the joint powers agreement, they had not formally approved it.

Murphy was named to represent the city on the joint powers board. He noted in response to questioning that they would dissolve the board if a "safe, state of the art method of storing transportating and storing hazardous wastes was found."

Mayor Carlson noted that the final draft of the city's petition to the civil aeronautics board for reconsideration of their order selecting Bemidji Airlines as replacement carrier to Thief River Falls had been prepared by Attorney Robert Wurst and mailed to the CAB. He also noted that Mesaba Airlines had filed an appeal of that decision also, and that American Airlines had filed a letter in support of Mesaba. Executive Airlines has also filed an appeal of the CAB decision. In addition, the Minnesota department of transportation has filed a statement apposing the lowering of the essential air service determination for Thief River Falls.

In other business the council:

— Approved a permit for law enforcement personnel to have beer in Oakland Park for a picnic on June 26;

— Adjourned until Monday, June 27, due to a meeting with members of the chamber of commerce and Jobs Inc. on June 28. Council will also meet at noon on June 28 with members of the Pennington county board and representatives of the Bagley industrial development corporation to review a waste incineration proposal.

Update On Job Development Set Tuesday

supportive staff and services. Jobs Incorporated agreed to provide $3,500 for the balance of 1983 and $7,000 each year for three years. Monitoring the program will be Jim Winjum, vice president of Jobs Incorporated.

Budget developed by the organization totals $81,150 which includes $34,150 from the chamber of commerce, $15,000 each from the city and county, $10,000 from the school district and $7,000 from Jobs Incorporated. Not all agencies have as yet allocated the full budget amount.

Expense budget includes $21,600 for executive director's salary, $8,550 for payroll taxes, insurance, car expense and retirement; $12,000 for additional salary for staff or upgrading of staff to carry on normal chamber program and activities; $4,000 for half-time secretarial support; $2,500 for an employment survey; $17,500 for travel, lodging, food and entertainment in soliciting employer prospects; $6,000 for local resource people to help secure prospects; $5,000 for expenses incident to prospects visiting Thief River Falls; $2,500 for telephone; and $1,500 for supplies.

It is pointed out by the job development committee that every 100 new manufacturing jobs for a community will generate 74 other jobs, 95 more households, three more retail establishments, 91 more passenger car registrations, 77 more school age children, 305 more people in the area and $1,743,228 increase in annual income.

Executive director of the program is responsible for development and coordination of industrial development with the main objective of creating new jobs. He will establish budget proposals, participate in selection and development of the staff, coordinate activities, organize area resource people, advise boards of needed participation and motivate people toward job development in the community.

Supports Bill To Guarantee Equal Rights

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has endorsed legislation which he says would guarantee equal rights to all levels of education. The bill (H.Res. 190) would reaffirm Congress' commitment to enforcing Title IX of the educational amendments of 1972.

"There should be no discrimination in education according to gender in this country," Congressman Stangeland said. "If a school receives federal aid, it should not be permitted to discriminate against women in any way."

Recent court cases would limit Title IX protection to only those educational programs which receive direct federal aid. Although most courts continue to uphold the broad reach of Title IX, congressman Stangeland wants to eliminate any ambiguity in the law's interpretation.

"If a school discriminates against women in one program that does not receive federal dollars, it is subsidizing that program with federal aid that goes to other areas," he said. "That was not the intent of Congress and it is not acceptable to me."

The resolution has been referred to the House committee on education and labor. Two subcommittees are currently reviewing the legislation. Congressman Stangeland and the resolution's author, Rep. Claudine Schneider (R-RI), have been joined by 55 other Representatives in co-sponsoring the legislation.

Col. Rokke Is Faculty Dean At AF Academy

Col. Ervin Rokke

Col. Ervin J. Rokke has been selected dean of faculty at the U.S. air force academy in Colorado, succeeding Brig. Gen. William A. Orth who retired from active air force duty recently.

Col. Rokke, a 1962 graduate of the academy, is presently permanent professor and head of the department of political science. He is a graduate of Warren high school and his father, Edwin K. Rokke, was Marshall county treasurer for many years.

The academy dean assumes the rank of brigadier general and is appointed as an additional permanent professor from among the permanent professors who have served as heads of departments of instruction at the academy. Permanent professors of the academy are appointed by the President of the United States with the advice and consent of the U.S. Senate.

Colonel Rokke was born in Warren in 1939. After graduating from the academy, he earned his master and doctorate degrees from Harvard university where his academic advisor was Professor Henry Kissinger.

In addition to assignments at Yokota AFB, Japan from 1965-67, and Headquarters Pacific air forces, Hickam AFB, Hawaii from 1967-68, Colonel Rokke was an instructor of political science at the academy from 1968-69 and was assigned to the bureau of intelligence and research department of state, Washington, D.C. In August of 1982 he resumed his positions at the academy and since October 1982 has also served as acting vice dean.

Colonel Rokke's decorations include the Legion of Merit, Meritorious service medal with one oak leaf cluster and the air force commendation medal with one oak leaf cluster. He is married to the former Pamela Patterson and they have two children, Lisa and Eric.

Storm Strikes With Wind, Heavy Rains

Strong winds, heavy rain and a few scattered hailstones swept through the Thief River Falls area early this morning, causing some damage to trees, homes and other property.

The storm struck the Thief River Falls community between 3 and 3:30 a.m. with strong southwesterly winds. Rainfall of about one and one-half inches was resported in the city itself — including showers prior to the storm — with up to three and one-half inches recorded to the south and east.

St. Hilaire received heavy rain and some wind damage after having been hit by hail on Monday. It was reported that about 20 trees were blown down on the Kermit Finstad farm northeast of the regional airport but no damage was reported at the airport itself.

Wind-driven rain flattened some grain crops but the crops face a greater hazard from standing water which is now prevalent in most of the area.

Deadline For Farm Program Reports Listed

Farmers in Pennington and Marshall counties who had signed up in the 1983 farm program are reminded that a final report of planted acreage is required.

None of the program benefits, such as PIK bushels, diversion and deficiency payments, and loans on harvested grain will be available to any producer unless he files an acreage report with his ASCS office before July 15.

The report normally takes only a few minutes to complete, and it can be completed quickly and easily if it is done now. The closer to the July 15 filing deadline, the longer the lines will be and it could take many hours of waiting time just to complete this very short report, ASCS officials said.

The ASCS offices in Thief River Falls and Warren are open from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and the acreage reports will be accepted any time until July 15. No reports will be accepted after July 15, and those farms that do not file a report will not be enrolled in the 1983 farm program.

Area Farmers Reminded To Certify Acres

Leo Orpen, chairman of the Marshall county ASCS committee, requests that farmers certify their 1983 wheat and feed grain program acres early.

"With the large number of farmers in the program it will take their cooperation to get all farms certified by the July 15 deadline", Orpen stated.

"All farmers whether or not they participate in the program should certify their acres as they are then on record in the event they are used for future programs," Orpen concluded.

IRS Offers Tax Saving Thoughts

Although in the business of collecting taxes and administering tax law, the Internal Revenue service says the public has certain rights and available alternatives to legally minimize tax liability.

The secret is planning, and not just at tax time, but all year long. Just as people try to economize day by day by planning to make purchases during sales, or to go on vacations when bargain rates are in effect, for example, there are ways to cut down on the amount of tax to be paid in certain circumstances. Sometimes there's more than one right way to get things done.

Here are some of the instances when a taxpayer can save money. They are only to give an awareness that a tax break may exist. If they apply, plan ahead and save. For specifics on if, when and how, send for the appropriate IRS publications.

You want to sell your house. If you are age 55 or over and meet certain requirements, you will be able to exclude all or part of the capital gains you plan to make on the sale. (Pub. 523, "Tax Information on Selling Your Home.")

Your income this year is far greater than it was in the past. If you have a marked increase in the money you must pay tax on, maybe income averaging will save on your taxes. In effect, by using this method, you will be dividing your income over the four years prior to the windfall year. Income averaging can be used as often as it helps. If you get promoted each year, or your spouse returns to work, or you win the lottery, for example, try to income average. You can benefit from the time you spend making this computation. (Pub. 506, "Income Averaging.")

You want to go to work, but there's no one to mind the children. If you pay to have your children or disabled dependent cared for so you can work, you might be entitled to a credit against your taxes. A credit is a direct deduction from the amount of taxes you owe and can be real savings. To be eligible, you must meet certain requirements. (Pub. 503, "Child and Disabled Dependent Care.")

You plan to divorce your spouse, but haven't settled on any financial arrangements. Under certain circumstances, you can deduct periodic payments to a spouse as alimony, but you cannot deduct a lump-sum payment. The alimony, if deducted by one spouse, is taxable to the spouse receiving it. (Pub. 504, "Tax Information for Divorced or Separated Individuals.")

You are single, and a relative lived with you all year. If you are single and maintain a household for yourself and a family member or relative, you may be able to file as Head of Household — a less expensive filing status than Single. (See the instructions that come with your tax package for details.)

You own some stock and are thinking about selling it. If you make a profit on the stock, you must report that as income and be taxed accordingly. If you have a loss, you can use the loss to off-set other income. If you've held the stock for a year or less, the rules are different from what they are when you hold the stock for longer periods. Generally, the rules that apply to stock will also apply to other property held for personal use. (Pub. 544, "Sales and Other Disposition of Assets.")

You've just heard about a marvelous tax shelter which promises to reduce your taxes a great deal. There are legitimate tax shelters which will, effect, provide tax deductions. Generally, they benefit high income taxpayers, require large amounts of capital and carry with them financial risk. IRS has no particular publication on this subject, but warns that a tax shelter is not always a legal way to reduce taxes. Beware of a scheme that sounds too good to be true.

None of these situations apply to you, but you are curious to know if there are some ways you can save on taxes. This list was only meant to alert you to possibilities, and, of course, cannot cover individual situations. What's more, times change, and in a year or so you may want to look into areas that don't interest you now. Awareness that there are tax benefits in many forms is important even if you cannot take advantage of them now. (Pub. 910, "Taxpayer's Guide to IRS Information and Assistance.")

You realize now that there were tax breaks to which you were entitled in past years, but you didn't know it then. You can file an amended return, 1040X, and change items on returns for any of the last three years — three years from the date you filed your original return or within two years from the time you paid your tax, whichever is later. If your original return was filed late, you may not be able to get a refund, or the amount of the refund may be limited. A return filed early is considered filed on the due date (usually, but not always, April 15).

To order any of these free publications, write the IRS Forms Distribution Center, 6000 Manchester Trafficway Terrace, Kansas City, MO 64130.

TRF Holds Own Against Moorhead

Despite a pair of losses Tuesday, Thief River Falls' performance against the defending Ninth District champion Moorhead Blues might be regarded as a real confidence-builder; a moral victory for the youthful Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team.

Moorhead won the high-scoring games 12-9 and 9-6, but both times Thief River Falls rallied from big deficits — 8-0 in the opener and 7-0 in the nightcap — with determined efforts that kept the visitors on the ropes the rest of the night. In the past, Thief River Falls teams with more talent than the current squad might have resigned themselves to a ten-run-rule loss under those circumstances. But last night the scrappy Thief River Falls efforts drew post-game praise from both sides.

"You have to give Thief River Falls a lot of credit," said Moorhead coach Don Burgau. "Anytime you can come back against a team with our reputation like they did, it speaks awfully highly of your program. They never quit."

Thief River Falls coach Nick Drees said his team showed a lot of character in coming back like they did. "They battled back. They never gave up," he noted. "They're young. They don't know the how to quit."

Although everyone is looking for the Blues to once again rank as the favorite in the Ninth District where they've won nine of the last 11 titles, Burgau says his current club doesn't have the strength that his 1982 team showed in winning the tournament played in Thief River Falls.

"The last two years we have had two excellent baseball teams," he explained. "This club isn't there, yet. "I suppose, because of our past record, everyone looks to us again (as the Ninth District favorite), but we've got a long way to go."

Still, the Blues include most of the players that helped the Moorhead Spuds win a North Sub-Region 8AA high school baseball title this spring. Moorhead lost the Region 8AA championship game to a St. Cloud Apolle team that went on to a runner-up finish in the Class AA state tournament.

"They've got a good ball club," confirmed Drees. "Coming back like we did shows we have the ability to compete against them."

While Moorhead may rank as the Ninth District favorite, the Blues obviously aren't a dominant team yet. They lost a surprising 2-1 game last week to East Grand Forks, a team that had dropped a 3-1 decision to Warroad in its previous start. Thief River Falls, in turn, handled Warroad 7-1.

Detroit Lakes, Fergus Falls, Crookston, East Grand Forks, Moorhead and Thief River Falls could have an interesting get together when the newly-designed Class AA Ninth District tournament playoffs are held July 28-31 at Moorhead, a six-team, double-elimination affair that will match its winner against the Class A Ninth District tournament playoffs in a 2-out-of-3 championship series for a berth in the 1983 American Legion state tournament at New Ulm August 12-15. The eight-team, double-elimination Class A Ninth District playoffs, featuring four regular season league champions and four runner-up finishers, will be held July 28-31 at Battle Lake.

While Thief River Falls can take some pride in the fact that they came back strong to play a favored Moorhead team on even terms, the fact remains that the Blues won both games and Thief River Falls made some mistakes that hurt. Those mistakes led to those big deficits, and you won't often overcome those kinds of leads against good teams.

Moorhead made mistakes, too, prompting Burgau to say the doubleheader, although entertaining and played hard by both sides, "certainly wasn't pretty."

In both games Burgau had to alter planned pitching rotations and was forced to use top pitcher Chad Swanson. He was hoping to get by with his No. 4 or 5 starter in the opener and planned to give Tom Christensen, his top left-hander, just three innings of work in the second game while saving him and Swanson for this weekend's F-M invitational tournament. They open against Omaha, Neb.

"We came in with the idea of playing everybody, and we did," acknowledged Burgau, "but to win the game we had to go with Swanson."

That's to Thief River Falls' credit.

CAUGHT IN A run-down between first and second base, Moorhead runner Ted Kurash was chased down and tagged by Thief River Falls shortstop Kerry Wollin Tuesday in the seventh inning of the American Legion baseball doubleheader opener played here. First baseman Steve Solheim (12) and pitcher Ryan Drees (3) were also involved in the play, which started when Drees tossed a pick-off throw to Solheim. The defending Ninth District champion Moorhead Blues swept both halves of the high-scoring doubleheader, 12-9 and 9-6 for a 7-1 season record. Thief River Falls fell to 4-3.

Blues Sweep Tuesday Doubleheader 12-9, 9-6 . . .

Moorhead Out-Scores Legion

Offensively, Thief River Falls might have had its most productive day ever against the perennial Ninth District champion Moorhead Blues Tuesday, scoring 15 runs in an American Legion baseball doubleheader played on the fairgrounds diamond here. However, it was also an offensive field day for the visitors, who collected 24 base hits and scored 21 runs in sweeping the twinbill 12-9 and 9-6.

It was a gutsy performance by the youthful Thief River Falls players, who rallied from an 8-0 first-game deficit and a 7-0 second-game disadvantage to turn what appeared to be ten-run-rule decisions in the making for the Blues into entertaining down-to-the-wire finishes.

Down 8-0 and held hitless for three innings in the opener, Thief River Falls suddenly erupted for five runs on five hits in the fourth. Trailing 7-0 and again held hitless for three innings in the nightcap, Thief River Falls once more had a fourth inning surge that produced six runs on six hits. But both times those confidence-building rallies were answered by a pair of fifth inning Moorhead runs that reestablished the Blues' advantage.

Results of the doubleheader left Moorhead at 7-1 for the year while Thief River Falls fell to 4-3. A Thief River Falls vs. Gonvick game scheduled to be played Monday was switched to tonight (Wednesday) at 6:30 p.m. on the fairgrounds diamond, with East Grand Forks arriving here Thursday for a 7 p.m. Northwest League encounter.

An eight-team Thief River Falls invitational tournament will be played on the fairgrounds diamond Friday night, all day Saturday and Sunday afternoon. Thief River Falls will draw Red Lake Falls as a first-round foe Friday at 8 p.m.

Despite 15 base hits, only four Moorhead runs were earned in the Blues' 12-9 first-game win over Thief River Falls.

Five Thief River Falls errors — three of them in a four-run Moorhead third inning — proved costly.

Moorhead scored single runs off Thief River Falls sophomore pitcher Tim Nyland in the first two innings. Brian Monson walked with one out in the first, moved to second on a wild pitch and scored on a two-out ground ball single through the left side of the infield by Steve Hartog. Doug Schwab bounced a two-out single into left field in the second, stole second and scored when pitcher Vance Zuehlsdorf sent the ball back through the middle for an RBI single.

Darin Kraemer, who singled to left to start the third, came home on a controversial balk call made against Nyland on a pick-off move. Then three consecutive infield errors at third, second and short scored Chad Swanson, who had reached base on a fielder's choice and Curt Kovash, who beat out an infield single.

Moorhead gained that before-mentioned 8-0 spread in the top of the fourth on a two-base error to start the frame, a two-out, run-scoring double into the left field corner by Donnie Thompson and a bloop single into short left for a run by Schwab.

Thief River Falls finally got untracked offensively in the bottom of the inning on back-to-back singles by Tim Bottem and Kerry Wollin. Sophomore catcher Brian Kemnitz, who had an outstanding game behind the plate and was 2-for-4 at the plate, had an RBI double, with Ryan Drees contributing a two-run single to right. Steve Solheim reached base on an error, then a single to left by Kirk Jenson made it 8-4. Fifth run of the inning crossed the plate on a fielder's choice force-out at second when Swanson, the Moorhead catcher, erroringly raced down the line to back up first base on the double play relay throw, leaving home plate uncovered and allowing Solheim to score from second on the play.

But it was a short-lived Thief River Falls come-back. In the next half inning Moorhead regained control when Kurash singled and Monson walked. An infield out moved both runners up and another ground ball out scored Kurash. Swanson hit a ground ball single into left field for a 10-5 spread.

Thief River Falls once again gamely fought back with a pair of runs in the sixth when Kemnitz had a bad-hop single while Drees and Solheim walked. An error at shortstop on a ground ball hit by Jenson made it 10-7.

Three Moorhead singles and a two-base outfield error gave Moorhead breathing room at 12-7 in the top of the seventh, but the never-say-die Thief River Falls squad battled down to the wire with a pair of runs in the last half inning. A single fell into short left field for Drees that scored Al Ness, who reached base on a error to start it. Drees, who moved up on a ground-out and an infield single by Jenson, then scored on an errant pick-off throw by Kurash, who was now behind the plate.

It was more of the same in the nightcap as Moorhead won 9-6 just before the heavy rains began to fall.

A five-run first inning gave the Blues a quick lead they never relinquished. There were two walks to start it and an infield nubber by Donnie Thompson to lead the bases. A single up the middle by Vance Zuehlsdorf scored two runs and Dan Gnadt followed with a three-run home run over the left field fence.

Doubles by Tom Christensen and Brian Monson made it 6-0 in the second, with Zuehlsdorf doubling in the third, moving up on a passed ball and scoring on an infield out for a 7-0 game.

Thief River Falls struck back in the fourth when Brian Kemnitz singled and scored on a towering one-out Tim Bottem home run off the left field light tower. Al Ness, Ryan Drees and Kirk Jenson followed with consecutive singles to lead the bases. Gary Cornell drew a full-count walk for an RBI and two runs scored on missed squeeze bunt by Bob Huot when Zuehlsdorf, the catcher, sent the ball down the right field line on a throw behind the runner at first base. A single by Tim Nyland had Thief River Falls within 7-6.

Following the first-game pattern, Moorhead quickly responded with a pair of fifth inning runs on a single and a walk by Thompson and Zuehlsdorf, respectively, an infield ground-out for an RBI by Ross Erickson and a two-out single to center by Brad Steffen.

Thief River Falls threatened by putting runners at second and third with one out in both the fifth and seventh innings, but left them stranded.

Members of the touring unit include, left to right, pitcher Eddie Feigner, shortstop Dave Barnett, first baseman Gary West and catcher Eddie Feigner, Jr. Feigner's appearance will be preceded by a 7 p.m. Thief River Falls Old-Timer's fast pitch game. Advance sale tickets priced at $2 for students, $3 for adults and $9 for families, are available from all Thief River Falls fast pitch softball players, and can also be purchased at Popplers, TG Sporting Goods and Michael Motors.

King and His Court vs. TRF Fast Pitch All-Stars . . .

Eddie Feigner Appearance Here Planned Wednesday

Fast pitch softball pitching star Eddie Feigner, who has performed in front of some 20 million fans for the past 38 years, will make an appearance in Thief River Falls Wednesday, June 29, when the "King and His Court" four-man softball team will face the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league all-stars in an 8 p.m. exhibition game at the fairgrounds fast pitch diamond.

On tour since 1946, the world-famous Feigner is generally recognized as the greatest softball pitcher of all time. His delivery was once clocked at 105 miles-per-hour.

And he hasn't slowed down that much in either his pitching or his travels. Softball's version of basketball's Harlem Globetrotters, the King and His Court average something like 200 games a year from April to October. Crowds go from a few hundred in places like Thief River Falls to 16,000 for a benefit game vs. a collection of sports personalities on July 28, 1981 at the Silver Dome in Pontiac, Mich. He's also played in front of sell-out size crowds preceding major league baseball games at the Astrodome in Houston, Yankee Stadium in New York and Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, Municipal Stadium in Cleveland and Veteran's Stadium in Philadelphia.

His tours have taken him back and forth across the United States, and includes trips to such places as the Dominican Republic, Thailand, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, India and Pakistan. Opponents range from local all-star teams to professional athletes like those from the New York Islanders, New York Rangers, Boston Bruins, Boston Celtics, Oakland Raiders and the Miami Dolphins. And he's faced a collection of major league baseball players in exhibition situations.

"No reason I can't go another few years," says Feigner in a news release quote that is included among the publicity packet sent to local promoters preceding each of his appearances. "I still throw as fast as I need to, have control of some 50 different pitches and am enthusiastic as ever. Additionally, the competitive spirit remains. It bothers me to lose a game. That doesn't happen very often, though. We will win nine out of ten games we play."

Known as J.R., Eddie Feigner, Jr. didn't need his father's influence to earn a place with the King and His Court, says the supplied information.

"He was chosen because he was a talented ball player, not because he was my son," the father says. "He excels at every position, hits for average, hits the long ball, has exeptional speed and a great arm. Some call him the best all-around softball player in the world. I won't disagree."

J.R. has had eight consecutive 100-home run seasons. He's in his 22nd year with the King and His Court.

Barnett is the latest addition to the group. There have been 30 different players who have joined Feigner for his four-man show over the years, with Barnett joining the cast in 1981. Owning 9.8 speed in the 100, he's billed as the fastest man in the sport.

"If he isn't the fastest, he's at least tied for first," says Feigner. "I've played against Mickey Mantel, Lou Brock and other baseball speedsters, and none got down to first base any faster than Barnett," a centerfielder who hit .356 on the University of North Carolina third place NCAA World Series team in 1978 and had two years of major league baseball experience with the Montreal Expos before joining the touring softball group.

West, meanwhile, is the team's comic, combining solid defensive play and a .300 batting average with entertaining conversations with the crowd and opposing players.

"Playing softball is enjoyable and entertaining," says the mustached Californian who was a college football quarterback at Long Beach State and has been with Feigner for 15 years.

Advance sale tickets for the event, priced at $2 for students, $3 for adults and $9 for a family ticket, are available from all Thief River Falls fast pitch softball players, and can be purchased at Popplers, TG Sporting Goods and Michael Motors. Tickets at the gate will be priced at $3 for students, $4 for adults and $9 for a family pass.

Preceding the game will be a 7 p.m. Thief River Falls Old-Timer's game. No personal invitations are being issued for the game, but all retired Thief River Falls fast pitch softball players are invited to take part in the three-inning game. Interested players should contact Dwight Tangquist, Wally Grovum or Mukkett Collins.

FISHING THE Red Lake river below the dam in Thief River Falls at 3:30 a.m. Tuesday produced this fat 20-pound channel catfish for Steve Bergland. The fish, which measured 34½ inches long and 20½ inches around the middle, went after a nightcrawler. Bergland said he's caught five other catfish this year that have weighed between 9½ to 17 pounds.

MOORHEAD RUNNER Ross Erickson completed his slide across the bag before Thief River Falls third baseman Bob Huot had a chance to apply the tag during the seventh inning of Tuesday's American Legion baseball doubleheader opener played on the fairgrounds diamond. Erickson had an RBI single and moved all the way to third on the play when the ball got by the Thief River Falls outfielders. Moorhead outlasted Thief River Falls 12-9 in the first game and outscored the host team 9-6 in the nightcap.

DNR NEWS

Arrests Made

Road checks conducted by state conservation officers near Mille Lacs lake on May 16 and May 22 resulted in the arrests of 23 fishermen, according to the Department of Natural Resources.

Most of the arrests were for over-the-limit catches of walleye and northern pike. Three persons were arrested for failing to have a fishing license and three other arrests were made of anglers who had taken bass out of season.

More than 300 cars were stopped in the course of the two road checks, which were held near Garrison and Isle.

Deer Charge

A 20-day suspended jail term and a fine of $935 was assessed a rural Madelia man recently when he appeared and plead guilty in Blue Earth county court to two counts of taking deer during the closed season and one count of possession of a small amount of marijuana.

Sentenced was Mathew Gerald Lawrence. Earlier, a second man, Randy Scott Mickelson, Madelia, was also convicted of taking one deer during the closed season.

Both men were arrested by state conservation officers on the morning of February 1, following an investigation in which a search warrant was used to gather evidence.

One firearm was confiscated and big game license revocations are in effect for three years.

Flowers Protected

Persons visiting designated "state scientific and natural areas" have been reminded by the Department of Natural Resources that picking or digging wild flowers on these sites is against the law.

"People who do this are often unaware of the damage they are doing to other plants, other sensitive resources, and to special uses of state natural areas," said an official.

Scientific and natural areas have been established to protect and manage some of Minnesota's most unique and scarce natural resources. These areas protect remnants of Minnesota's original plant and animal communities, and are open to the public for nature observation, educational use and for scientific research.

Protected areas are often habitat for numerous rare and endangered species. Digging up of even a common wildflower may inadvertently destroy an inconspicuous endangered species or interfere with some longterm research project being conducted on the area. Existence of many wild plants tomorrow may depend on not disturbing them in state natural areas today.

Further, plants moved from the wild often do not survive in gardens since they have very specific habitat requirements, say the experts.

DNR advised persons interested in growing wildflowers to contact any of the many wildflower nurseries throughout the state. Nursery-grown stock is usually of superior quality and is shipped at the best time for planting.

Department noted also that plants acquired from a nursery are considerably cheaper than the costs associated with a court summons and restoration charges for illegally removing plants from the wild.

DNR Plants Trees

Approximately 50,000 acres of Minnesota land will be reforested this year, a slight increase over 1982, the Department of Natural Resources reports.

DNR Forestry Division has calculated that the program will require 34.5 million trees, mostly pine and spruce.

Some 14,000 acres of state owned land will be planted this year along with 8,000 acres of federally owned land. Counties will plant 7,400 acres; private forest industries 4,400; Christmas tree growers 3,000; and small private woodlot owners are expected to plant 12,000 acres.

Plantings last approached the 50,000 acre level in the early 1960's and gradually decreased to about 30,000 acres in the mid-1970's.

Some professional foresters believe the state should be aiming at a planting goal of 75,000 acres annually, if money can be found from public and private sources.

They claim that with the required effort Minnesota forests could produce twice the current harvest of wood products.

Recycling Efforts

Students at Farmington middle school have collected and recycled 55,000 aluminum cans and contributed the $340 they earned to Whitewater State Park in Southeastern Minnesota.

In expressing their gratitude for the gift, park officials said the money will be used to benefit Whitewater's naturalist programs.

Among the purchases with the funds will be a binoculars and spotting scope that can be used on nature hikes to view wildlife.

Director of the DNR's division of parks and recreation, Don Davison, said, "As public agency budgets are slashed, gifts and donations from those who utilize and appreciate their natural resources become more critical. Generosity of these young citizens is certainly to be commended. They have set a fine example."

He pointed out that the student's efforts demonstrate the many benefits of recycling. "Besides earning money, recycling efforts clean up the environment and conserve energy by making new cans, bottles and newspaper from discarded material.

A lawsuit by animal protectionists in California forced the Department of Fish and Game to capture, instead of kill, 200 excess deer from Angle Island State Park and move them to the Myacamas Mountains near Ukiah at a cost of $3,000 each.

National Wildlife Federation News Release

Star gazers may look for constellations, but along the East Coast, "Andre Watchers" look for a famous speckled seal.

For 14 years, Andre the harbor seal has beem swimming his way up the coast from his winter home at a Boston aquarium to his adopted summer home in Rockport, Maine.

Andre prefers the Rockport harbor to the "wild" of the ocean, according to this month's issues of Ranger Rick, the children's publication of the National Wildlife Federation (NWF).

In Rockport, Andre spends spring and summer under the watchful eye of Harry Goodridge, who's taken care of the seal since he was a baby. But because Rockport's water is too cold for Andre in the winter, Goodridge sends him to an aquarium in Massachusetts or Connecticut in the fall.

When he's turned loose from the aquarium each spring, Andre returns to Rockport. One year, he actually swam from the tip of Cape Cod to Maine — a 200-mile trip — in less than six days.

After Andre's first summer in Rockport, Goodridge arranged to take him to an aquarium, where he'd be cared for and in the company of other harbor seals. When the next spring came, Andre was released into the ocean just north of Boston, and everyone hoped he would return to the Atlantic.

Andre did return to the Atlantic, but he swam close to shore, and in just a few days, he was back in Rockport harbor, looking for Harry Goodridge.

Andre is now a New England celebrity — beloved by all those who watch for his annual swims up the coast and those who wait to hear that he once again has reached Rockport.

But Andre is particularly special to Harry Goodridge and his family, who have grown up with the seal. According to Ranger Rick, Andre even rides in the Goodridge car when he's on the way to visit their home.

Goodridge has also taught Andre to "fetch," which was relatively easy since harbor seals are natural retrievers. Andre actually became such an expert that he took part in Goodridge's daughter's wedding, which was held right next to the water in the harbor. At just the right moment, Andre fetched the wedding rings from the water, and took them to the bride and groom.

During his spring and summer in Rockport, Andre eats the fish Goodridge feeds him, swims in the harbor and performs tricks for the visitors who come to see the legendary Rockport "native."

Fire Damages L. Olson Home At Newfolden

Fire which caused extensive damage to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Olson about one and one-half miles southeast of Newfolden early Sunday has resulted in an appeal for clothing and other household items needed by the family.

Lyle was at home when the fire started and awakened about 5 a.m. with the house full of smoke. His wife Becky and daughters Tracy and Brandi were in Fargo at the time. Lyle left the house immediately and went to the nearby Harold Maki house to call the fire department. Newfolden fire department responded to the call and extinguished the blaze but most of the interior of the house was extensively damaged.

Bethlehem Lutheran church will serve as a collection point for clothing and other items, according to Jay Borchert of Thief River Falls, acting pastor. Lyle Olson wears a medium size shirt, pants with 34-inch waist and 32-inch inseam and size 9-9½ shoe. Becky wears a size 7 dress and 8-8½ shoe. Tracy wears a children's size 6X or 7 and size 12 shoe and Brandi wears size 4 clothing and a size 9½ shoe.

Household items, clothing or money may also be brought to the Marshall County State bank or mailed to: MCC Jaycee Women, Box 1, Newfolden, MN 56738.

Jaycee Women are sponsoring a shower in behalf of the Olson family on Wednesday, June 29 at the Newfolden community center beginning at 8 p.m.

ASCS Urges Accurate Farm Acre Reporting

Participation in the acreage reduction and payment in kind (PIK) program means that an accurate report of planted acreage becomes more important than ever. There are substantial penalties if you are found to have planted either more or less than what you report, and if the violation is serious enough it could lead to a suspension of all 1983 program benefits, according to the agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS), Pennington county.

If you have any doubts about your own planted acreage, including the acreage of the set-aside, you are encouraged to ask us for early measurement. When it requires a visit to your farm, there is a charge of $15 for the first field and $5 for each additional field. If ASCS can measure from the slides right here in the office, it costs $5 and $2.

By paying for this service, the measured acreage is guaranteed. If you find that you are over-seeded, you have the opportunity to destroy enough crop to get back into compliance before you certify your acreage. Early measurement may be a very good investment this year. Stop in or call the county office if you are interested.

County committee has opened the sign-up for the 1983-84 minimum tillage practice, and will continue to accept cost-share requests until July 15. Under the terms of this program, a producer conducts certain minimum tillage practices which will allow a ground cover of at least 25 per cent after the crop has been planted in 1984. Twenty producers were signed up for this practice this year, and the soil conservation service is measuring the ground cover as soon as the field or fields have been planted. Payment rate is $9 per acre with a maximum of 80 acres per farmer.

If you have land which is subject to wind erosion and would be interested in the minimum tillage practice during 1983-84, contact the SCS. The sign-up closes on July 15. Limited funds for regular annual ACP practices, such as field or farmstead trees, livestock and wildlife pits, new seeding, and in some instances, pollution control facilities, are also available.

ASCS has been finding rodents, birds, heat damage, sprouts and bugs in stored grain, any of which will cause a discounted price at the market place. Farmers are encouraged to check their bins.

From the auditions, semi-finalists will be selected to perform during the state fair, along with winners of county fair talent contests from throughout the state. Schindler At UND Week On Engineering

Dale Schindler of Thief River Falls was among 41 high school students from North Dakota and Minnesota who recently spent a week at the University of North Dakota in Grand Forks learning how engineering is taught on campus and practiced as a career.

During the past school year, high school counselors and math and science teachers in the two states were asked to encourage juniors and seniors strong in those academic areas to apply for the institute. Applicants are accepted on the basis of aptitude and interest. UND's school of engineering and mines sponsors the annual institute.

During the five days of intensive teaching, students received an orientation to UND's engineering facilities, heard talks by practicing engineers and UND faculty members, and tried some of their own design skills in projects. Those who attend the institute and later enter UND to pursue an engineering major are allowed to waive the university's introductory engineering course.

Add Vacation To Business Trip And Save Money

Vacation in the great outdoors doesn't have to cost an arm and a leg if you use your head — and a little financial savvy. According to the Minnesota society of CPAs, there are ways to combine your vacation with a tax-deductible activity, or to afford a better vacation by planning your expenses.

By law, the costs of a personal vacation are not tax deductible. However, provisions allow you to deduct certain travel expenses related to charitable activities or your business.

Each year a number of taxpayers combine a vacation in an unusual setting with participation in scientific research expeditions sponsored by nonprofit organizations. Research ranges from excavating an Indian village in South Dakota to studying ecological damage to caves in the Transylvanian Alps, to researching animal breeding habits on the Galapagos Islands.

Costs of such a vacation, including airfare, food and lodging, can be deducted as a contribution to the expedition's tax exempt sponsor. The sponsors include the University research expeditions program of the University of California at Berkeley and the Earthwatch organization in Belmont, MA.

If such a vacation seems too exotic, there are other ways to combine tax savings with an outdoor vacation. Try merging a vacation with a business trip.

If you travel to another part of the country for business, your round trip travel costs are deductible. But once your work is finished, you can vacation in the area by camping, hiking or canoeing in nearby parks or resorts.

Before you go on a trip primarily for business, you may want to look into any outdoor vacation spots close to your destination and plan on some extra time for a vacation before returning home. Your travel costs, which can be a major part of any vacation, are still tax deductible.

If your spouse or children join you, their separate travel costs are not deductible. However, you may save on their travel costs too, because many carriers offer special family rates.

When you plan an outdoor vacation, be sure to consider all costs, CPAs say. In addition to travel, special equipment, food and lodging, don't forget to budget for such incidentals as film, trail and highway maps, and park entry fees — things often overlooked.

Check the purchase price as well as rental price on equipment and supplies. You'll have to buy such personal items as special clothes or sleeping bags. A good touring bicycle and camping gear can be expensive. But if you buy good quality equipment, think the way a business owner would: ask yourself what the possible resale value of the equipment might be.

To save time and trouble and possibly money, you may want to sign up for an organized adventure tour like river rafting through the Grand Canyon, mountaineering in Alaska, or paddling through the swamps of Georgia. Many nonprofit environmental and wilderness organizations operate such trips. In this case, your membership fee in the organization may be tax deductible, and as a member you may get a discount on the cost of the trip.

Consider your cash flow situation with these trips. CPAs say some of their clients have had to register as much as a year in advance for some of the popular river trips. You may also be required to pay for part of the trip cost months in advance, and the balance within several weeks of beginning the trip. Remember, in some cases you may forfeit your deposit if you cancel your trip after a certain date.

CPAs cannot tell you where to go on your vacation but they can certainly help you plan to pay for it. Vacation spending can really add up, but by following sound financial rules you'll be able to save and not miss out on any fun.

Popular Fallacies

Some people think higher state and federal excise taxes on liquor would cause people to drink less and reduce the number of alcoholics in the U.S.

CONSUMER
PROPOSED INCREASE$

The fact is researchers have found no supportable evidence that taxes reduce alcohol abuse. Alcoholism is an illness and the alcoholic is least responsive to increases in price. It is the roughly 100 million consumers who drink in moderation who would be penalized by any tax increase, say the experts at the Distilled Spirits Council of the United States, Inc. (DISCUS), the trade association of the distilled spirits industry.

Rural Youth Institute Focus Is Leadership

Over 120 Minnesota high school juniors and seniors will spend the week of June 26 to July 1 at the University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC) as delegates to the seventh annual Minnesota Rural youth institute. "Growth Opportunities through Leadership Development" is the 1983 theme. Personal development, the acquisition of leadership skills, and an understanding of rural communities are the institute's primary focal points.

Minnesota Rural youth institute is co-sponsored this year by UMC and the Governor's council on rural development. The council is the ongoing sponsor with various higher educational institutions invited to submit applications for the institute. Previous institutes were held at Southwest state university, University of Minnesota at Waseca, and last year at UMC.

"You and the Future" is the focus for Monday with Dr. Warren Gore of the University of Minnesota ag extension service addressing the topic, "Design Your Own Destiny." Don Cavalier, director of career planning and placement, will discuss "Your Human Potential."

Tuesday's program is focused on problem solving in rural communities. Anthony J. Filipovitch from the urban and regional studies institute, Mankato state university, will lead the delegates in a series of simulation games to show rural community processes. This will be followed with workshops relating to county government.

Wednesday is the center of interest of the institute as the delegates will be divided into three groups, visiting different northwestern Minnesota communities to learn how each community operates and what makes things happen. The three communities are East Grand Forks, Warren, and Fosston. A "briefing" and "debriefing" for the delegates will be provided by Dr. Stephen Sylvester, UMC's assistant professor of social sciences.

Building community leaders is Thursday's theme as the delegates will attend the following workshops: "Goal Setting" by Dr. Donald Sargeant, assistant provost for academic affairs; "Time Management" by Lowell Larson, institutional advancement director; "Leadership Styles" by Sue Brorson, business division instructor; "Conducting a Meeting" by Twyla Treanor, business division instructor; "Stress Management" by Pat Abbe, University of Minnesota, Waseca; and "Effective Listening" by Dr. Richard Christenson, chairman, arts and sciences division.

Minnesota 4-H federation president Tony Kuznik, Jr. will speak to the delegates about being a leader.

Friday's schedule begins with a presentation, "Grow Deep Not Tall," by Karen Kaiser Clark of the center for executive planning, inc. of St. Paul. This will be followed by a wrap-up session with Dr. S.D. Sahlstrom, provost, titled, "Taking it With You."

Certificates will be presented, and the conference will be evaluated before it closes with a noon luncheon.

Minnesota dairy plants manufactured 500,000,000 pounds of American type cheese in 1982. This is a 10.6 per cent increase compared to 1981 and accounted for 18.6 per cent of the total U.S. American cheese production in 1981.

PLUS OR MINUS GOD ?

This young man, like multitudes of others his age, realizes he must soon be earning a living and perplexing questions arise.

What vocation shall he follow? Will the life-work he has in mind offer him a suitable outlet for his talents? Will he be happy and contented in that work?

And questions arise about the ethical standards he should set for himself. Just how honest ought a fellow be anyway? How loyal to the truth? Do moral compromises pay?

In other words, this young man is inquiring into the meaning of life itself. In essence, his question is, shall a fellow plan his life plus or minus God?

How he works things out depends largely upon his earlier training. If his religious life has been neglected, he is more likely to make the fatal mistake of trying to get along without God.

If he has been more wisely led, he will place God and truth and right at the center of his thoughts. If he seeks the better way, his House of Worship stands ready to offer him every aid.

Hints For Homeowners

Tips YOU Can Use From The Garage Door Council

Family security is one very good reason a growing number of homeowners are looking over their garage doors very carefully. They know that a well-maintained garage door is an important key to keeping the uninvited outside and keeping families safely on the inside.

Following these tips from Frank S. Fitzgerald, president of the Garage Door Council, may help you during a garage door security check. Says Fitzgerald:

- If your garage door is damaged in any way, don't put off repairs.
- An electrically operated door, if properly counterbalanced, will operate smoothly. If counterbalancing isn't done right at installation, it will reduce the life expectancy of your door opener.
- Look for qualified repair people. Check the Yellow Pages under "Doors" for your nearest garage door dealer. Look for those dealers who display the emblem of the Far Western Garage Door Association or the Door and Operator Dealers of America.
- Keep the tracks and other moving parts properly lubricated. This type of maintenance can be done by most handy do-it-yourselfers.
- Remember, a good garage door not only safeguards your family's security but is energy-efficient as well. When properly installed and maintained, it can open the door to convenience, peace of mind and savings.

If you have questions, write to GARAGE DOORS, Frank Fitzgerald, 3950 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, IL 60613.

Some Things Don't Change

Editor and publisher Earl Anderson of the Messenger-Banner at Stephen recently dug out an item which had been reprinted in the Messenger many years ago. He published it again, and it shows how little anything has changed over the years. We are taking the liberty of sharing it with you:

Most editors, including this one, have learned through the years to control their tempers fairly well.

But not completely.

The average editor not only likes people, he loves 'em. He has to, or he'd go crazy in a week. Probably no other business, job, field of profession gives more exposure to human foibles than the fourth estate.

So. . . usually he's pretty tolerant of the complexities of the human mind. . . unless you happen to use one of ten phrases or questions. Any one of these is practically guaranteed to turn the neck of an editor beet red in seconds. If you persist in pressing the point, you might even see steam come from his ears.

Just in case you'd like to spend an afternoon "editor-baiting" sometime, here are some of the things you should ask or say:

1) "How come it wasn't in the paper?" In 95 per cent of the cases "it" WAS in the paper. The reader just missed it.

2) "You should have known about it." No newspaper has a mind reading department. They blow the fire whistle to alert the firemen, and any newspaper needs advance notice, too.

3) "I want this story on the front page." If the story is of sufficient interest to enough people, it will be placed there without your asking. Besides, only about 3 per cent more people read the front page than the poorest-read inside page.

4) "Run this story the way I wrote it." This single statement will get you kicked farther out of more newspaper offices than anything else you can say. Too, if newspapers did, they'd just expose the colossal ignorance of spelling, grammar, and punctuation of the "writer".

5) "Our publicity chairman sent you. . ." This is the oldest dodge in the book. What this means is that she forgot and just blamed the newspaper.

6) "For $25 would you keep my name out of. . .?" Sorry, we can't. If the editor gets pinched for speeding, his name will appear too.

7) "My uncle is one of your big advertisers, and he'll. . ." If he quits advertising, it will hurt him far more than the newspaper.

8) "Are you busy?" We just put in 80-hour weeks because we like to work so well.

9) "I know, it's Sunday, but would you. . .?" We like to work on Sundays even better.

10) "You're our publicity chairman, and. . ." Oh, no we aren't! You can grind your own axe.

Well, now that you know how to play the game. . . have fun!

Universal Horoscope

Are you one of the people who eagerly searches out the horoscope in the daily paper to see what wondrous things are in prospect for you? This horoscope from the Lapeer (MI) County Press pokes a little fun at the more serious writers:

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — You have an inventive mind and are inclined to be progressive. That may be why you lie most of the time. This also explains why you are careless, impractical and keep making the same mistakes over and over. Everyone in town knows you are stupid.

Pisces (Feb. 19-Mar. 20) — You have a vivid imagination. This is why you sometimes think the FBI and CIA are following you. You lack selconfidence and generally are a coward. Changing your underwear more than twice a month might help.

Aries (Mar. 21-Apr. 19) — You are the pioneer type. You have a quick temper, are impatient, scornful and the best thing that could happen is that someone knock your block off, you half-wit.

Taurus (Apr. 20-May 29) — You are a quick and intelligent thinker. You are popular, probably because you have a reputation of being a hard worker and only a few know you are a Communist.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — You are practical and persistent and the fact that people talk about how cheap you are should not bother you.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — You are sympathetic and understanding. You've been a sucker all your life and never will be worth a plug nickel, just like all your aunts and uncles. Don't bother to try to get off welfare.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — You should think of yourself as a born leader. Actually, you're a bully, your arrogance is disgusting and you are nothing more than a thieving rat whose very existence is sickening.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Virgos hate disorder and worship logic. But your nit-picking makes everyone around you want to vomit.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) — Because you are artistic, you have trouble with reality. If you are a woman, you're probably flat-chested. Better get your blood checked.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) — Business is your strong point. You don't know the meaning of the word ethics. Most Scorpios are murdered.

Saggitarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) — You are optimistic and enthusiastic. You rely much on luck because you have no talent. People laugh at you because you can't do anything right.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Be less conservative and afraid to take risks. Of course, as lazy as you are, it's understandable. Avoid standing in one spot too long or pigeons will seek you out and decorate your attire, you shiftless lout.

DU Turns To The US

Following editorial is from the Grand Rapids Herald-Review:

A new Ducks Unlimited commitment to "restore, replenish and maintain" areas in the United States most critical to breeding North American waterfowl is a move in the right direction.

It made good sense for Ducks Unlimited to concentrate its conservation efforts in Canada during the last 46 years. After all, that's where 75 per cent of the continent's waterfowl breed. Any duck hunter knows how slim his season bag would be without the fall flights from Canada. DU has also spent money in Mexico on wintering havens for waterfowl since 1974. But DU officials have wisely recognized that something must be done in the United States, too.

Wetlands across the United States continue to disappear at an alarming rate. The Soil Conservation Service estimates that only 82 million of the original 127 million acres of wetlands in the U.S. are still here. It is a frightening trend which must be stopped.

Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Alaska are the states where Ducks Unlimited will concentrate its efforts. Experts say that those states raise more than 85 per cent of the nation's waterfowl.

Some who have little interest in ducks and geese may not know that wetlands are important in many ways. Biologists have documented use of wetland areas by more than 40 mammal species and 19 fish species. Eagles need wetlands. So do moose, beaver and the much-publicized and highly-treasured whooping crane. Wetlands can help control flooding. They provide the areas where wild rice and cranberries grow.

Highly-sophisticated equipment will help DU determine wetlands with the greatest potential productivity for waterfowl and wildlife. Ducks Unlimited has entered an agreement with NASA to inventory and monitor wetlands in the U.S. and Canada with information provided by Landsat 4, the most sophisticated communications satellite in the world. DU will use the images sent by Landsat 4 to decipher how it can best serve the needs of the nation's waterfowl and slow the continued loss of wetlands. Landsat 4 can inventory areas as small as a quarter-acre.

Spending funds to save wetlands in the United States is a good move from the public relations standpoint as well as for practical reasons. Some have been reluctant to contribute to an organization which was spending almost all of its money in Canada, wise as that action has been. Projects in the U.S. should increase interest in Ducks Unlimited, an organization which raised $34,700,000 last year and had 455,000 members in the U.S., Canada, Mexico, New Zealand, Saudi Arabia, West Germany, South Africa and Finland.

Ducks Unlimited reports that its officers and professional biologists have decided that "the resource (in the U.S.) could wait no longer." No organization has a better record or more resources and expertise than DU. It has saved millions of wetland acres and countless numbers of wildlife from needless destruction.

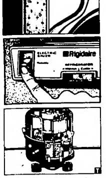
Those who love the outdoors will benefit from DU's new efforts in the United States.

Borrowed Nonsense:

On her deathbed, the wife told her husband. "All through our marriage you have never looked at another woman. Now that I'm going, I want you to marry again as soon as possible, and I want your new wife to have all of my expensive clothes."

"I can't do that," the husband replied. "What would a size 10 do with size 16 clothes?"

Hints For Homeowners



Buying an energy-efficient new refrigerator may save you almost enough money in 10 years to pay for the cost of the new refrigerator. Because of innovative design, average electric power consumption of today's household refrigerators is lower by nearly 50 percent when compared to units built just ten years ago.

Householders with a 10-year-old 17-cubic-foot Frigidaire refrigerator can buy a new 18-cubic-foot frostless model that can actually reduce operating costs so much than in just ten years more than $600 can be saved.

The energy savings result partly from more sophisticated technology and new materials. Frigi-Foam polyurethane insulation, for instance, is twice as effective as fibrous types being used today. Also, the state-of-the-art Meter-Miser compressor, sealed in steel and lubricated for life, squeezes the maximum refrigerating power from every kilowatt used.

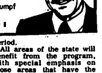
CAPITOL COMMENTARY



by LeRoy Stumpf

State Senator — District I

Though the problems facing Minnesota in 1983 are many and varied, a close look at those problems shows that some common threads run through them. A high statewide unemployment rate — it hit double-digits in January — is one of the most pervasive of those common threads.

High unemployment bogs down the economy in many ways. Unemployed workers don't pay state income taxes; the money in state coffers dwindles as a result. Unemployed workers can't afford to make as many purchases as they otherwise might; business activity is reduced accordingly. Unemployed workers collect unemployment benefits from the government; that creates a drain on government funds and a need for higher taxes. Perhaps most important of all, unemployment almost always leads to dissatisfaction and despair among people who would otherwise be satisfied, productive members of society.

Fifty-five per cent of Minnesota's unemployed workers are not now receiving any unemployment benefits; many of those people also do not qualify for general assistance (welfare). They consequently have no income and forced to depend on shelters and free food shelves to support themselves and their families.

The jobs program passed by the 1983 Legislature and signed into law by Governor Perpich will provide some much-needed relief for unemployed Minnesotans and should help them survive the recession. It will offer an alternative to welfare by providing meaningful jobs and opportunities for long-term employment.

A total of 14,000 six-month jobs in the public and private sectors will be created by the legislation. The program will be a temporary one that will run for two years. Hopefully, we will have overcome the worst of our economic problems by the end of that period.

All areas of the state will benefit from the program, with special emphasis on those areas that have the highest unemployment rates. The $70 million set aside for the program will be distributed to service delivery areas based on the number of unemployed people in each area as a percentage of the statewide total.

Based on 1982 unemployment figures, the six counties in Senate District 1 — Beltrami, Kittson, Marshall, Pennington, Red Lake and Roseau — should receive over $1.5 million in subsidies, enough to create 275 to 300 new jobs in the area. Following is a county-by-county breakdown of funding levels and numbers of potential new jobs: (The figures are based on 1982 data. Final calculations have not yet been completed for the first year of the program; actual figures may vary somewhat):

Beltrami, $547,500 funding for 103 new jobs; Kittson, $107,300 for 20 jobs; Marshall, $291,900 for 55 jobs; Pennington, $233,300 for 44 jobs; Red Lake, $135,700 for 25 jobs; and Roseau, $240,500 for 45 jobs.

The state will subsidize employers to pay workers $4 per hour for public sector jobs and a minimum of $4 an hour for private jobs. In order to encourage private firms to retain employees hired through the jobs program, employers will be exempted from repaying the money they receive from the state if they keep the new workers on the payroll for 18 months or longer. (Employers must pay back 70 per cent of the state subsidy if they lay off employees after they have worked only the required six months).

Public and non-profit employers will put people to work on such public improvement projects as soil conservation, reforestation and weatherization of homes and public buildings. The state department of economic security will administer the jobs program; implementation is set to begin July 5.

I am proud and encouraged that we in state government were able to create a new opportunity for our state's unemployed workers. And I am confident that the jobs program will prove to be one of the most constructive steps we took this session toward rebuilding Minnesota's economy and boosting Minnesota's morale.

If you have further questions on Minnesota's new jobs program, feel free to call or write my office at the State Capitol (306 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 or call (612) 296-8660) or to contact me at my home (Route 1, Box 47, Plummer, MN 56748).

4H CLUB

New Solem

The New Solem 4-H club held its monthly meeting on June 9 at the club house. The 4-H council report was given; Charlie Pride tickets will increase in price at fair time. Dairy Day schedule was announced. We decided to let the County Extension office schedule us where they need us for the 4-H fair food stand. Our club will support Monica Rausch for her trip to Japan. Judy Weleski volunteered to head quilt square project for our part in the county quilt project. Deb Matero, county extension agent, is willing to help any club that is interested with a special meeting on bread in a bag baking; our club is interested.

Club tour is set for July 13 and Deb Matero will tour with us. Jaki Weleski and Lisa Edington will plan the agenda, with food being prepared by our food project members. Record meeting will be July 18, 7-9 p.m. Maria Edington read a thank you from Joyce Kron for the flowers. Mrs. Kron invited us to come to her house for a weiner roast, so our picnic will be held there on Sept. 11 at 4 p.m. Two members signed up for the cystic fibrosis bike-a-thon (Lisa and Maria Edington). Lisa Halvorson gave a demonstration on rabbits; project talks were given by Karen Hall on indoor gardening and Mike Van Horn on beef cow-calf. Michelle Laidley was in charge of recreation.

The next meeting will be on July 14 at club house.

FANCY THAT!

With only 5.3 percent of the world's population, the United States manages to consume the greatest amount of the world's energy. That includes 28.6 percent of the world's gasoline and 32.9 percent of the electric power.

Many energy-wise Americans are taking advantage of a new refrigerator that cuts energy consumption by nearly 50 percent, compared to units built just ten years ago. Householders with a ten-year-old 17-cubic-foot Frost-Proof Frigidaire refrigerator can buy a new 18-cubic-foot frostless model that can actually reduce operating costs so much that in just ten years more than $600 can be saved. Its Meter-Miser compressor insures efficiency and reliability.

ENTERTAINING IDEAS

A "Divine" Dessert: Della Robbia Ambrosia

"Ambrosia," in the food sense, generally refers to a compote of oranges, coconut, and pineapple.

According to the dictionary, "ambrosia" can be anything with especially delicious flavor or fragrance. The word originated in days of mythology, when ambrosia meant "food of the gods" and was thought to impart immortality. Hence, an "ambrosial offering" has come to be something magnificent, supremely good, or simply divine.

This delicious dessert could refer to any of those definitions, except for the immortality claim! Della Robbia Ambrosia is a refrigerator dessert molded in a springform pan lined with ladyfingers. The filling is a creamy combination of canned vanilla pudding, gelatin, and fruits.

This refreshing, light dessert is the perfect grand finale to a company meal.

DELLA ROBBIA AMBROSIA

- 1 pkg. (3-oz.) orange-pineapple gelatin
- 1 can (11-oz.) Mandarin oranges
- 1 can (17-1/2 oz.) Thank You Brand Vanilla Pudding
- 1 can (8-1/2-oz.) crushed pineapple
- 1 carton (8-oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed
- 1-1/2 - 2 pkg. ladyfingers
- Toasted coconut

Drain Mandarin oranges; reserve liquid. Add water to make 1 cup. Heat juice/water to boiling, then add gelatin, stirring to dissolve. Cool and refrigerate just until the thickness of unbeaten egg white. Blend in pudding until smooth. Add drained Mandarin oranges (save a few for garnish) and undrained pineapple. Gently fold in whipped topping. Line bottom and sides of 9-inch springform pan with ladyfingers. Pile gelatin mixture into mold. Chill for several hours until firm. Before serving, garnish with reserved orange sections and toasted coconut. To serve, remove sides of pan and slice into slim wedges. Yield 12-14 servings.

FACE PAINTING was a popular activity for youngsters during Art in the Park in Thief River Falls Thursday, but three-year-old Benjamin Erickson was a mite suspicious about what was going on that he couldn't see. Doing the painting was Jodi Fimrite of the City View 4-H club. Flowers, balloons, stars and names were most popular items painted. Chairman of Art in the Park for the Thief River Falls community arts council, Nancy Fellman, said the event was considered highly successful in its downtown location and that requests were numerous for continuation of that format in the future.

Crop Acreage Certification Deadline Near

Deadline to certify crop acres for the 1982 wheat and feed grain program is near and many farmers in Marshall county have yet to certify their crop acres according to Leo Orpen, chairman of the Marshall county ASCS committee.

Orpen stated that there are only about ten working days left to get the balance of the farms certified in the county and he requests that farmers do not wait until the July 15 deadline.

Orpen also requested that farmers draw in their fields and list what crop is planted and how many acres are in each field on the photo copies they received from the office.

If producers wish to have their fields measured they may request measurement service at the time they certify those acres. The county office will measure the fields and provide the producer with the acreage. Cost for measurement service is $5 for the first field and $2 for each additional field.

Orpen concluded by stating that the cooperation of farmers in certifying early would be appreciated by the county committee and office staff.

ATTEMPTING TO SALVAGE his garden after heavy rains left it almost completely submerged early Wednesday morning, Tom Ratliff of St. Hilaire used a scoop shovel to hurry the water. Noting that residents of the city had been working hard to make things especially nice for the centennial celebrationn this weekend, Ratliff sounded a little disgusted as he noted "first hail, and now this." Cleanup operations continued, however; and residents were optimistic that the weather would cooperate with their plans for the big weekend.

One Time Army Recruiter Here Adopts Family

Tired?

Then don't read this column.

You'll be exhausted!

But for some reason, Sue A. and John F. Smith, who live near Post Falls, Idaho, are not.

Why they're not is unfathomable — because they have 12 children.

Of those, Sue says, only three are "homemade."

One is a foster child.

The other eight are adopted.

Heritages and nationalities are one big rainbow in the Smith home.

A single unit encompasses them all — the family Sue and John have welded together with two words, "love" and "understanding."

Nobody is more surprised than Sue to have 12 youngsters.

Unless it's John, that is.

"If you'd asked me five years ago if I'd have 12 kids, I'd have said you were crazy," Sue says.

Yet Sue herself keeps wanting to provide an open heart to one more child in need, and John — a detective with the Kootenai County sheriff's office — keeps agreeing.

To tally the order in which the children arrived, Sue furrows her forehead:

"In 1976, we adopted our first baby and named her Joy, as a tribute to my mother (Joy Manley of Post Falls).

"The baby was 9 months old when we got her from Korea; she is now 8.

"My husband had served in the military in Korea. After we married, we lived in Okinawa, and both of us learned some Korean language.

"We had always wanted to adopt a child. We were back in the States, stationed in Minnesota where my husband was an Army recruiter, when Joy was placed with us by the Holt adoption agency in Oregon.

"Jason, another Korean child, was adopted by us (also from the Holt agency) in 1978. He was 4½ years old; now he's nearly 10," Sue continues.

"Then, just four months after Jason arrived, I delivered my first 'homemade,' Jamee. I was one of those people not expected to get pregnant!

"We decided we wanted to adopt one more boy. That led to our taking David, then 11 and now 15, and his half-sister, Alicia, who was 8 and is now 12. They are from Texas and are Mexican-American. We adopted them through the Texas Department of Human Resources.

"In 1980, Jodee, my next 'homemade,' arrived. She is now 2½.

"Steven, a Caucasian from Southern Idaho, was adopted at age 9 and is now 11.

CLARISSA FOSS, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ell-Kay Foss of Wannaska and the reigning Miss Grygla, will be among nine candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title this year. She will attend Bemidji state university in the fall, majoring in mathematics education.

Clarissa Foss In TRF Pageant

by Marvin Lundin
Times Editor

(This is the first in a series of articles on candidates for the Miss Thief River Falls title at the Jaycee summer fest Saturday, July 30.)

Pageant competition will not be new to Clarissa Foss when she competes in the Miss Thief River Falls event. She is the reigning Miss Grygla and has also participated in the Miss Teen Minnesota pageant.

Clarissa, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ell-Kay Foss of Wannaska and graduated this spring from Grygla high school. She is five feet two and one-half inches tall, weighs 113 pounds, has light brown hair and blue eyes. Her pageant talent number will be a song or dance.

An active student at Grygla high school where she was valedictorian of the graduating class, Clarissa received star ratings at the district high school music festivals with vocal solos and an "excellent" rating in the national federation junior festivals for vocal solo.

She received school letters as members of the pom pom group and in drama, was a cheerleader, president of the Future Homemakers of America and participated in photography, basketball, choir, triple trio, newspaper and annual staffs. She has had one year of private voice lessons.

This fall she will attend Bemidji state university to seek a bachelor of science degree in mathematics education. She said she plans to puruse a career in secondary education mathematics because she enjoys the subject and there are many opportunities in the mathematics field.

St. Hilaire Centennial Set For Next Weekend

St. Hilaire will be a frenzy of activities for three days on July 2, 3 and 4 as the community observes 100 years of history with its centennial celebration. A full schedule is on the calendar for all three days of the event.

Several attractions will be available to the public all three days, including a photo and antique display at the kindergarten room of the school building and a flea market from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and Monday and from noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday. The flea market will be conducted in downtown St. Hilaire next to the laundromat and fee will be $5 per day or $10 for the three days for exhibitors.

About 300 reservations have already been made for the all-school reunion which will be held during the opening day of the centennial observance on Saturday. Registration will begin at noon at the St. Hilaire school with a $10 registration fee including the 6 p.m. Saturday evening banquet. The banquet will be served in the National Guard armory in Thief River Falls Saturday evening.

Gradutes of the St. Hilaire school from California to New York have indicated their intentions to attend. They include Esther Hovet Horsager, a graduate of the class of 1920, two from the class of 1922, four from 1923, seven from 1924, three from 1925, nine from 1926, six from 1927, three from 1928, six from 1929 and 10 from 1930. Among the special guests will be Inez Patterson of Thief River Falls, age 90, who was one of the early teachers in the St. Hilaire school.

While graduates of the school have been contacted about the reunion, it is intended for others as well. Woodrow Almquist is chairman of the reunion committee and may be contacted for details at 964-5749.

St. Hilaire Lions club will sponsor a tractor pull and three-wheeler races Saturday at the island east of the water tower. The tractor pull will be for tractors built prior to 1945 and will include several from the 1920's. Everett Flesche is chairman of the tractor pull which is scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. Since parking space is limited in the park area, an antique tractor and wagon is expected to be put to use transporting people from downtown to the tractor pull site.

Admission will be $2.50 for adults, $1.50 for students and free for pre-school youngsters. Admission is also good for the three-wheeler races to follow the tractor pull.

Tractors will compete in weight classes with trophies to be awarded to the top three places in each class. Divisions include those tractors weighing 3,000 pounds or less, 3,000 to 3,500 pounds, and increasing in 1,000-pound increments to 8,500 pounds. Entry fee will be $5 per tractor entered. Flesche said he is expecting about 40 entries for the tractor pull.

Bob Wald of the Lions club said that the three-wheeler race will offer three divisions in the amateur class and four divisions in the pro class. Classes will be filled according to age of the driver and size of the machine with Gene Sauve of Red Lake Falls assisting. Registration for the tractor pull should be completed in advance. Three-wheeler race registration will be started Saturday about 3 p.m. and there will be a $5 entry fee.

There will be three trophies in each class of the tractor pull and three-wheeler race.

Also on Saturday will be coronation of the centennial king and queen and judging of the beard growing competition. Both events will be on the tennis courts south of the school building if weather permits or in the gymnasium if weather is bad. Coronation is slated for 7 p.m. with the beard contest at 7:30 p.m.

Queen candidates are Martha Hasby, Edith Harbott, Isabel Gibbs and Alyce Sevre while king candidates are Jim Gaven, Jim Hasby, Emil Harbott and Harry Sjulson.

Trophies in the beard judging will go to the men having the best groomed, best

CHALK DRAWING of a polka dot elephant won a first place cash prize for Jolene Gonsorowski, age nine, during Art in the Park in Thief River Falls Thursday. There were more than 50 youngsters working on 42 entries in three divisions of competition. The drawings were made on the street surface on LaBree avenue as Art in the Park went downtown this year. Chalk drawing competition had a circus theme.

Publication Of Times Early Due To Holiday

Fourth of July holiday on Monday will again require that the Times be printed early to meet circulation deadlines. The Monday, July 4 issue will be printed on Saturday, July 2.

The advanced publication date will necessitate early advertising and news copy to be included in that issue.

Bacon Retires After 36 Years With Phone Co.

Al Bacon, Northwestern Bell supervisor in business services, is retiring after nearly 36 years of service in the telephone industry. Almost 28 years of that time was spent in the Thief River Falls area, where his community activities included the local chamber of commerce, Rotary club, Fraternal Order of Eagles, VFW and American Legion, communications chief for the county civil defense, advisor for vo-tech electronics group and past president of the Methodist men's club.

Bacon was honored at a company retirement party Friday evening at the American Legion club. He and his wife, Marge, plan to continue living in the area but may travel to the south during the winter months.

Dale Amundson will assume the Northwestern Bell managerial responsibilities for this area.

Bicycle Safety Clinic July 13

Bicycle safety clinic will be sponsored by the Thief River Falls police department on Wednesday, July 13, at 10 a.m. at the law enforcement center parking lot. Drawing among participants will be conducted for a free bycycle donated by Pepsi-Cola Bottling company of Thief River Falls.

DISCOVERY PLACE day care center entered a large group of children, all made up and in costume, in the kiddie parade sponsored by the Thief River Falls community arts council as part of "Art in the Streets" activities on Thursday. Although a number of paper hats disappeared along the way, their efforts were rewarded by the parade judges with first prize, worth $10. Organizers of the group had their hands full, and deserve a lot of credit, especially for being able to line them all up for a picture. As it turned out, a couple of the youngsters just wandered into the group because it seemed like the place to be.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

Habedank-Stittsworth Vows Spoken At Trinity

Jodi Habedank, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Habedank of this city, became the bride of Kirby Stittsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Stittsworth of Bemidji on Sturday, June 4, at 4:00 p.m., at Trinity Lutheran church in this city.

Approximately 200 relatives and friends attended the double-ring ceremony with Rev. Berton Hushagen officiating. LaVonne Masters was the organist. Vocal selections were "Annie's Song," by Tim Panek and Julie Schwartz, and "Wedding Song," sung by Wayne Krueger.

The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She was attired in a Victorian styled gown of dotted Swiss featuring a lace stand-up collar and an embroidered sheer V-yoke, accented with lace ruffles. Her long, full sleeves were gathered into lace cuffs by a narrow satin ribbon. Matching lace edged the tiers on her bouffant skirt which flowed into a chapel-length train. A wreath of blue roses and babies' breath held her bridal illusion, finger-tip veil, made by her mother. She carried a cascade of royal blue star flowers, light blue roses with bright blue rose buds and miniature white carnations, accented with babies' breath and satin streamers in white, light blue and royal blue. Her flowers, like all the flowers at the wedding, were made by her mother.

Kristi Habedank attended her sister as maid of honor. She wore a light blue Victorian styled gown with sleeves, yoke and collar of dotted Swiss. A white satin ribbon encircled the waistline. In her hair, she wore a floral comb, featuring blue rose buds and babies' breath. She carried a bouquet of light blue roses, bright blue rosebuds, miniature white carnations and babies' breath with light blue and white satin streamers.

Wearing similar gowns and headpieces and carrying identical bouquets were the bridesmaids: Marci Lull, Theresa Kertz, Kym Rundell, Tammy Johnson and Janell Kain. All are friends of the bride, and all reside in Thief River Falls.

Jenny Paquin, Medicine Lake, Mont., a friend, served as flower girl. She wore a similar gown and carried a white basket filled with blue rosebuds and white miniature carnations.

The rings were carried by Myke Stittsworth, Bemidji, a nephew of the groom. He wore a white suit with a blue rose bud boutonniere.

Best man was Clay Stittsworth, Bemidji, a brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Jim Carr, Mark Rakke and Mike Morganson of Bemidji, and Steve Rundell and Joe Johnson of Thief River Falls. All are friends of the groom.

Ushers were Greg Habedank, brother of the bride, and Corey Stittsworth, Bemidji, brother of the groom. All wore silver tuxedos with tails, blue shirts and blue rose boutonnieres. The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with tails.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Habedank selected a plum-colored street-length dress with a short-sleeve wrap jacket. The mother of the groom was attired in a dusty rose long-sleeved, street-length dress. Their corsages consisted of blue roses, miniature white carnations and babies' breath.

Honored guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Helgeland and Alice Habedank, the bride's grandparents: Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Spillum and Madge Stittsworth, grandparents of the groom; and Marcia Kalinowski, the bride's personal attendant.

A reception in the church parlors followed with Freda and Larrence Hemmesch and Sherry and Bob Ingersoll, aunts and uncles of the bride, as hosting couples.

Marlene Beedy, a friend of the bride's family, and Paula Stittsworth, Mason City, Iowa, aunt of the groom, cut and served the three-tiered, lemon flavored cake baked and decorated by Alice Hanson.

The cake was decorated with blue roses and topped with an arrangement of flowers corresponding with the flowers in the bride's bouquet.

Pouring coffee were Pearl Adamson, aunt of the bride; and Carolyn Spillum, Storden, aunt of the groom. Diana Stittsworth, Bemidji, a sister-in-law of the groom, was at the guest book. At the punch bowl and presiding at the gift table were Paula Erickson, a cousin of the bride, and Kristen Spillum, Storden, a cousin of the groom.

Waitresses were Cindy Hastad, a cousin of the bride, and Sherry and Lisa Stittsworth, Mason City, Iowa, cousins of the groom. Pinning the flowers were Kittie Cornell and Lynda Raymond, friends of the couple.

Relatives and friends attending the wedding were from Colorado Springs, Colo., Medicine Lake, Mont.; Mason City, Iowa; Buxton, Grand Forks and Fargo, N.D.; Storden, Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Minneapolis, Rochert, Wilton and Thief River Falls and surrounding area.

Following a wedding trip to Lakewoods resort, Cable, Wis., and Duluth, the couple is at home in Thief River Falls at 1912 East Greenwood. Both are employed in Thief River Falls. Photo, LeMar Studio, Crookston

Toastmasters Hear Goldsberry And Deb Ernst

Speakers at the first of the two monthly meetings of the Northwestern Toastmasters held recently were Jim Goldsberry, Lincoln high school English teacher, and Deb Ernst, social services director at Northwestern hospital.

Ernst's speech, her third, was judged the winner. Her topic was "Death the Final stage of Growth." Goldsberry's topic "Finding What you Want," was an introduction to using the Dewey Decimal System in finding library information. This was his ninth speech.

Impromptu two-minute table-talks were assigned to four toastmasters by Al Rux. Topics were "A woman running for president," "The possibility of Pioneer Ten finding intelligent life on its travels;" "The feasibility of brain transplants in the future," and "The why's of Archie Bunkers continued popularity." Winner of the table-talks was Carletta Tierney, who was assigned the last topic.

Toastmaster of the morning was Greg Pribula, who captured attention by reversing the scheduled events, thus demonstrating the uncomfortable feeling when deviating from the routine.

The second monthly meeting of the Toastmasters will be held Tuesday at 7:00 p.m., at the basement meeting room in the Pennington County courthouse. Toastmaster will be Arnt Aune. Al Rux and Cliff Swanson will be the speakers; Dick Kruse, the master evaluator; Ken Yutrzenka, table topics; Ken Stalboerger, timer; Greg Pribula, wizard, and Ron Martin, grammarian.

Anyone interested is welcome to attend.

Howard Lunsetters to Note 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lunsetter will be honored on their 25th wedding anniversary on Sunday, July 3 at the Gatzke school gymnasium. The event will begin at 2:00 p.m., with a program. A reception will follow.

The children, who are hosting the anniversary observance, invite all friends and relatives to attend. No invitations are being sent.

Brian Bomans Announce Birth of Second Son

Mr. and Mrs. Brian Boman of Farmington, N. Mex., announce the birth of a son, Michael James, on June 9. He has an older brother Robbie.

Grandparents from this area are Wallace Boman and Mr. and Mrs. Merle Dagen of rural Thief River Falls.

Youth Report To WCTU On Their Camp Activities

Local youth who had attended the Youth Temperance Camp (YTC) at Paynesville were special guests at the meeting of the Alice Mae Stuart Thief River Falls Women's Christian Temperance union held Thursday at the Oakland Park Nursing home.

Speaking to the group and telling of their experiences at camp were Nickolena Mostrom-Ose, Courtney Mostrom-Ose, Cheri Sinn, Darsey Besserud and Kristy Schantzen. Information was given on the daily schedules, speakers, films, and recreation which included group singing, crafts, canoeing and sports.

The meeting began with the hymn, "What a Friend we have in Jesus." The scripture mediation was II Sam. 22:1-3 "The Lord is my rock, my fortress and my deliverer. . . in Him will I trust." It was noted that unlike infidels who believe creation was a series of explosings, Christians acknowledge God's creations as a world of order and precision, citing as an example the appearance of Halley's comet on correct time in 1910. The mediation concluded with the admonition that "Just as God saw the importance of light in his creation process, so Christians must spread the light of salvation wherever they go.

Following the serving of fruit muffins, cup cakes, coffee and juice, the meeting resumed with a business session. Valborg Hanson reported on the cost of transporting the youth to the temperance camp. It was noted that the many checks in the offering met the immediate needs.

Also read were communications from public relations director Mrs. Ralph Siivola of West Bloomfiend, Mich. She included a report from Dr. Thomas Radecki, a psychiatrist at Southern Illinois university school of medicine and chairman of the National Coalition of Television Violence, stating that pre-school children showed unwarranted aggressive behavior in free play after heavy television viewing of violent programs. Dr. Radecki said that he hoped viewers who oppose violence will pressure advertisers to tone-down the network shows. The report showed that commercial network violence had risen 33 per cent since the group's last check late in 1981. The survey revealed commercial networks showed four times more violent acts than the two Canadian networks, and nine times more than Public Broadcasting service programs. A United States government study reported that there is an average of five violent acts per hour on prime time and 18 acts per hour on children's weekend programs. The report was based on a review of several hundred research studies.

The next meeting of the local union will be held July 22 at the Riverside Terrace community room.

Wayne Leinings Open House Set at Plummer

Cigarette smoking is the "chief preventable cause of death in our society," says Dr. C. Everett Koop, U.S. Surgeon General. It is not only a "major cause" of cancers of the lung, larynx and esophagus but also a "contributory factor" to cancers of the bladder, kidney and pancreas. Some 30 per cent of all cancer deaths are attributable to smoking and these will amount to 130,000 this year, according to the Surgeon General.

Injuries To Head Need Observation

Minor accidents that cause bumps, bruises and cuts are part of growing up for most children. But when children hit their heads, parents often become especially concerned.

The problem is that the extent of a head injury may not be apparent right away. Symptoms of injury may not show up for several hours.

That makes it important for parents to recognize the signs that indicate children need medical attention, said Leslie Fishman, M.D., acting director of emergency services at a St. Paul hospital.

Head injuries are a common reason that parents bring children to emergency rooms. And although falls and bumps to the head in sports and on the playground usually cannot be avoided, other head injuries can be prevented, Fishman said.

Many head injuries occur when babies fall while left unattended on beds or changing tables or when they tumble down open stairways. Greater use of car seats and seat belts also would prevent many head injuries, Fishman said.

Careful observation by parents is the best way to evaluate whether a child's injury calls for medical attention or whether a bump is minor enough to be cared for at home.

Parents who are concerned about any head injury should contact their physician or an emergency room for guidance, Fishman said. Main risks from head injuries are from actual trauma to the brain itself and from bleeding into the skull.

Parents may worry about skull fractures, but a skull fracture does not necessarily mean that a child is in danger, Fishman said. But a child should be seen by a doctor right away if parents find a depression in the skull or if part of the bone is chipped out, he said.

Skull fractures occur in two general areas: in the part of the skull where the scalp is; and in the base of the skull, which is located directly behind the face.

Injury to the base of the skull may cause leakage of fluid surrounding the brain, which could result in an infection. Symptoms of this type of injury are bloody or clear discharge from the nose or ears and black and blue marks below the eyes or behind the ears. A child with one or both symptoms needs immediate medical attention, Fishman said.

If a child receives a blow to the head, loses consciousness momentarily and then steadily gets worse, it may indicate a bleeding problem within the skull. These cases also require immediate attention of a physician.

Parents should assess a child's condition frequently during the first 12 to 24 hours after an accident. These are other signs that indicate that a doctor needs to be contacted right away: loss of consciousness for more than a few seconds, a depression in the skull, a seizure, vomiting more than once, any obvious physical change or change in behavior, loss of memory, pupils of unequal size or black eyes or blackness behind the ears.

A child who has a serious head injury may be given a CAT scan, which provides a cross-sectional image of the injured area. The scan often is more helpful than an X-ray in pinpointing the problem, Fishman said.

At-home treatment for children with head injuries includes a light diet, limited activity for 24 hours after the accident and use of non-aspirin pain reliever to treat headache or discomfort, Fishman said.

Wheat Council Holds Election Of Officers

Minnesota wheat research and promotion council, at its annual reorganization meeting in Crookston, elected officers for the 1983-84 year.

Ed Ross, a farmer from Fisher, was reelected chairman. Ross has been a member of the council since it was formed in 1977, and has been serving as chairman for the past year. He has also represented the wheat council on the board of associates. Ross is also a member of the Northern crops council, the governing board of the Northern crops institute, the demonstration and promotional facility recently constructed on the campus of North Dakota state university in Fargo.

Jerry Kruger, from Warren, was elected to the position of vice chairman of the wheat council. Kruger has been a member of the wheat council since 1981. He is presently serving as the chairman of the federal crop insurance committee of the national association of wheat growers.

Larry Bogestad, of Donaldson was elected as wheat council secretary. Bogestad has been a member of the wheat council since its inception in 1977.

Kermit Stahn, from Morris, one of the original nine wheat council members, was reelected treasurer, a position he has held since 1977.

Wheat council also elected representatives to serve on the board of directors of U.S. wheat associates for the 1983-84 year. The three council members elected to represent Minnesota on the U.S. Wheat Board included Chairman Ed Ross, of Fisher, Vice Chairman Jerry Kruger of Warren, and Treasurer Kermit Stahn of Morris. Fourth representative on the U.S. wheat board of directors from Minnesota is the President of the Minnesota association of wheat growers, Harry Howard from Warren.

Minnesota is one of the thirteen states affiliated with U.S. wheat associates, the regional organization formed to promote the sale and utilization of U.S. wheat through thirteen foreign regional offices located world-wide.

Other Minnesota wheat council members include, Kenneth Kuznia of Stephen, Robert Starr of Redwood Falls, Don Frederickson of Murdock, John Oberg of Ulen, and Rich Kruse of Breckenridge.

SCENIC VIEWS such as this are not all that uncommon along rivers and lakes in Minnesota, except that this particular river didn't exist until sometime early Wednesday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Emil Harbott Sr. whose house is hidden just behind the trees at right, said they were kind of enjoying "living at the lake," but noted that the little ditch which runs between their home and the elevator in St. Hilaire, is normally dry at this time of year. Many St. Hilaire residents had just finished cleaning up the debris left by a hailstorm on Monday night, when the heavy rains and high winds created another mess.

State Energy Use Unchanged From 1981

Total Minnesota energy use in 1982 remained virtually unchanged from 1981 use, according to a report released recently by the energy division of the Minnesota department of energy, planning and development. Preliminary figures for 1982 indicate Minnesota energy use was 1,097.7 trillion btu. Use in 1981 was 1,097.7 billion btu.

Although total energy use was basically the same in 1982 as in 1981, it is still 11.5 per cent less than the state's peak consumption year of 1979, and 4.6 per cent less than the pre oil embargo year of 1973.

Temperatures that were 25 per cent colder than in 1981 drove energy use up during the first half of the year. The second half was dominated by a downward spiraling economy. These two factors tended to offset each other.

There are several encouraging signs in the report, including a continuing drop in natural gas use due in part to conservation, and a decline in coal consumption.

Natural gas use fell three trillion btu, a 1.2 per cent drop from 1981 use. A declining economy and continuing conservation measures tended to offset the colder weather in the first half of the year. Continuing energy conservation is reflected in the steady decline in residential gas use per degree days. In 1982 an average residential customer used 16.8 cubic feet per degree day, down 0.7 per cent from 1981, and down over 21 per cent from the 21.3 cubic feet per degree day in 1973.

Total petroleum product use rose 2.8 per cent in 1982 although motor gasoline use remained technically unchanged. The use of propane and fuel oil rose 7.1 per cent and 6.6 per cent respectively. These increases were due to the colder weather which created additional demand for heating fuels and the increased need for propane to dry crops during the 1982 harvest season.

Coal use was 13.2 per cent less than in 1981. The major reason was a 14.8 per cent decline in Minnesota power plant use of coal due to less demand for electricity, and a significant increase in net imports of electricity from new coal plants in North Dakota and hydro power from Canada.

Total electric energy use fell 5.4 per cent. Nearly 31 per cent of Minnesota's primary energy use goes to electrical generation. This was primarily due to the depressed economy. Net generation of electricity was down 9.3 per cent due to the decline in consumption and the increase in electricity imports.

Peak demand for major Minnesota utilities reached a new high of 9,106 megawatts, 4.5 per cent higher than the previous high of 8,717 reached in 1980.

Shaving permits are being sold for $6 each. Square dancing show will conclude the Saturday activities.

Sunday events will open with an ecumenical church service at 10 a.m. at Calvary Lutheran church in St. Hilaire with Rev. Gary Moore leading the service. No services are scheduled Sunday at Black River and St. Pauli Lutheran churches and members of those congregations are invited to join in the Calvary service.

Softball tournament for women's teams will be conducted beginning about noon with several fields in St. Hilaire available for use, according to Howard Dalager, tournament chairman. More women's teams are needed for the event. Entry fee will be $40 per team plus a game ball.

Mixed tournament for up to 16 teams will take place on Monday with the same entry fee as for the women's event Sunday. Trophies will be awarded for first and second place teams and sportsmanship in each tournament. Teams can register with Dalager at St. Hilaire.

Centennial parade of approximately 100 units will get underway at 2 p.m. Sunday and pass through St. Hilaire on highway 32 from one end of town to the other. Parade direction has not yet been determined pending assessment of weather and grounds. Formation area will be posted on Sunday.

Allan and Karen Young, parade chairmen, continue to invite entries for the parade. While advance registration would be helpful, the Youngs said they would even take entries on parade day and fit them into the line of march. No marching band has yet been secured, but the Kem Temple Shrine band, Thief River Falls kitchen band and the Hoot 'n' Toots from Viking will be in the parade and the latter group will perform after the parade.

A number of buggies and antique cars are already registered to take part in the parade, along with floats, scout units and the Thief River Falls saddle club. First, second and third place prizes will be awarded to floats judged best in the parade.

A kiddies parade will also be part of the event with cash prizes for the three top entries.

Women's division winners will receive 100 per cent payback of entry fees. Ron Ulrich of Red Lake Falls will organize and officiate the event.

An open canoe race promises to be a real scramble to open up Monday's program of activities. Sign-up will begin at 8 a.m. at the island near the park in St. Hilaire. There will be only one division with a $2.50 entry fee per canoe. Entrants can have as many paddlers per canoe as they want but all contestants must wear lifejackets and bring their own equipment.

Race will consist of two laps around the island, according to race chairman Joe Sorvig, and cash prizes will be $100 for first, $50 for second and $25 for third place. Trophies will also be provided for the top three places.

Horseshoe tournament will begin with qualifying rounds at 10 a.m. at the six sets of horseshoe pits located in the St. Hilaire park area. The tournament will be a singles event only and contestants must bring their own pitching shoes. Entrants will throw 30 shoes to qualify for one of three classes.

Entry fee will be $5 per person and trophies and cash will be awarded for first and second place in each division. Following the qualifying rounds, actual tournament play will get underway at noon with the C division, according to chairman Roger Cota.

Children's games including hot wheels races will take place in the afternoon and the celebration will conclude with a fireworks display after dark Monday night.

One Time Army Recruiter Here Adopts Family

"Next, in December of 1981, we adopted three children in the same family in Chicago through the Illinois state Department of Children and Family Services. We flew back to Chicago to get them; they were very excited about being adopted.

"Christine, then 11 and now 12, is Caucasian. Her half-sister, Michelle, now 11 and 10 when we adopted, is Mexican-American. Their younger brother Michael then was 8 and is now 9, and he is black-white in parentage.

"Our own-birth daughter Julee is now 11 months old.

"All my 'homemades' were surprises to us," Sue says.

"Latest to arrive is Lisa, staying with us as a foster-care child. She arrived just 2½ weeks ago and is Amerasian.

"I went with the Heal the Children recent tour and met Lisa in Korea through St. Vincent's Home for Amerasians. She is here on a medical visa for eye care.

"We got word one evening Lisa would arrive in Seattle the following morning. Grandma kept the little babies; we loaded all the other kids into our 15-passenger van and drove to Seattle to pick her up."

The Smiths want the children to be proud of their racial heritages.

"We tell the children to be proud of what they are. We talk about cultural customs. I've obtained Korean costumes for all our Korean kids. We cook Mexican and Korean dishes, and we read together incessantly about different parts of the world and different peoples."

The Smiths even have invented a way to take the sting out of any racial slings or slurs the children may encounter.

Sue explains:

"We know the children may expect some teasing from American kids, so we make jokes about ethnic nicknames in our home. We even have ethnic nicknames for each other."

As though she were not doing enough for children, Sue founded and operates a private adoption agency called Adoptions in Idaho.

Licensed in the state of Idaho, its headquarters is in Post Falls.

"There are five of us, and we're all volunteers working there," Sue, the agency's executive director, says. "When we use services of licensed social workers, we hire on a contract basis. Prospective parents pay fees."

Every child in the Smith family has a chore, everybody in the family helps everybody else and everybody who's a Smith knows he or she is well-loved indeed — no matter what color he or she is.

Dear Readers,

Your funeral director keeps an accurate record of floral tributes received at the funeral home so that notes of gratitude can be sent. If the flowers are to be shared later with some hospital or church, the funeral director will see to it. If the family wishes, he will pro-offer the clergyman's honorarium, and that of musicians, and include them in current expenses.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

An outstanding entry from each state was recognized at the awards ceremony.

Program subject to change without notice.

THE BAND PLAYED ON while youngsters waited for their chalk drawings on LaBree avenue to be judged Thursday morning. The Rick Erickson band "Sweet Surprise" is pictured on the stage at left. Area at the right was used by the 42 entries in the chalk drawing contest which was another phase of the annual Art in the Park program. Music was presented by vocalists and instrumentalists at the stage throughout the day and a street dance was held in the evening with music by Bob Davidson.

Fireworks Are Illegal To Use In Minnesota

With the July 4 holiday rapidly approaching, state fire marshal Wes Werner of the Minnesota department of public safety reminds Minnesotans that fireworks are illegal in the state.

"It is unlawful to possess, offer for sale, sell at retail, or use or explode any fireworks," Werner said. Illegal fireworks include firecrackers (ladyfingers, cherry bombs, M-80s, etc.), Roman candles, bottle rockets, sparklers, fountains, snakes, party poppers, toy smoke devices, helicopter type devices and any other device designed to produce a visible or audible effect by combustion or explosion.

Provisions relating to fireworks can be found in Minnesota Statues 624.20 through 624.25 and Article 78 of the 1982 Minnesota Uniform Fire Code (MUFC), according to Werner. Misuse of fireworks can result in deaths, blindings, amputations and severe burns, Werner warns.

Werner recalls a July 5, 1981, incident where the driver of a car attempted to throw a lighted M-80 firecracker out of his window while driving. "The M-80 fell back into the car, landing near a bag of fireworks under the driver's seat and detonating the entire bag in one devastating explosion. The driver suffered first and second degree burns on the legs, severe lacerations of the buttocks and permanent loss of vision in the left eye. His female passenger suffered minor cuts and brusies and a punctured left ear drum, resulting in a permanent loss of hearing in that ear."

The damaged car has been displayed at the Minnesota state fair the past two years and is also available for display at other events throughout the state. Arrangements can be made by calling the state fire marshal's office at (612) 296-7641 or writing the division at 1246 University Ave., St. Paul, MN 55104.

According to consumer products safety commission estimates, injuries caused by fireworks soared 61 per cent between 1978 and 1981. During this period fireworks-related eye injuries increased 35 per cent. In 1982, fireworks-related eye injuries accounted for nearly 22 per cent of all fireworks injuries and were the highest since the 1976 Bicentennial celebration. Most of the victims are between the ages of five and 24, and, unfortunately, many are innocent bystanders. Nearly 60 per cent of the fireworks-related injuries occur two weeks before and after July 4 with the other 40 per cent on the holiday itself.

Wolfe Given Service Award By Engineers

Robert Wolfe of Bemidji has been selected by the Minnesota society of professional engineers to receive the W.R. "Bill" Coffin memorial public service award for 1983. The award was presented at the MSPE awards banquet at Breezy Point on June 25.

Wolfe is the Minnesota department of transportation district engineer for District 2 in northwestern Minnesota. He has been an engineer with the department since 1958.

According to Richard Pluntz, chairman of the MSPE awards committee, "this award was started 13 years ago to recognize individuals, organizations and groups who have given or made an outstanding contribution to the engineering profession and citizens of the state of Minnesota." Wolfe was nominated and selected to receive this award by his associates in the MSPE.

In his career with the department of transportation, Wolfe has served as area operations engineer in Golden Valley, area maintenance engineer in St. Cloud, area maintenance engineer in Duluth and in his current position as district engineer in Bemidji.

Wolfe earned his Bachelor and Masters degrees in civil engineering at the University of Minnesota. He attended junior college at Itasca junior college in Coleraine and is a graduate of the Deer River high school in Deer River.

New Wildlife Sanctuary Is Open To Public

by David Siegenthaler,
Manager

Even if you have the latest editions of the National Atlas, the Minnesota state map, or a map of Polk county, you are not likely to find this community on them. So grab a pen and follow these directions: from Warren, follow U.S. 75 south for 3 miles until you reach the Roan elevator. Follow this gravel-road east for 5½ miles. Make an "X" on the south side of the road. Take your map with your to your car (bicycle, horse or backpack) between the hours of 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Thursday and Friday, or from dawn to dusk on Saturdays and Sundays — and go find that "X". Welcome to Wetlands, Pines and Prairie Audubon Sanctuary.

You will find upon entering that a remarkable community has been awaiting your arrival. Your vehicle will have served its purpose. You may let it rest while you immerse yourself in the sights, sounds, smells, feels and tastes of this natural area. Follow the wooded trails along the canals, along marshy wetlands, out to the prairie restoration area, or to the natural succession areas where old fields are becoming forests. Listen to the sounds of natural voices.

Your visit to this community will be enhanced if you bring along a picnic lunch — tables, drinking water, and outhouses are provided. You may arrange a tour of the sanctuary, special programs, arrangements for large groups, or a visit at other than regularly scheduled hours by calling the manager, David Siegenthaler, at (218) 745-5663. admission is free.

Hang on to your newly updated map so you can find your way back. Perhaps in this community you will discover and rediscover your roots — and find comfort in them.

Older Model Mobile Homes May Be Sold

If you own an older mobile home and rent in a Minnesota mobile home park, it's important for you to know about a new state law which became effective in May of this year. Because of this law, you may now maintain, upgrade and weatherize your home with a reasonable hope of getting a return on your investment; and any buyer of your home can have the assurance that the home is safe.

Under this law, if you own a mobile home of any age, even 15 years old or more, you now have the right to sell your home within the park. Although the park owner retains the right to approve your prospective buyer's application to rent within the park, he or she must have a good reason to deny that application. No longer may the park owner refuse you the right to sell your home within the park because the home is 15 years old or older.

Law also requires that before any sale of your home, you must disclose to your buyer information about the home's compliance with certain safety measures. Disclosure must be on a standard disclosure form available from the park owner. Although the park owner can not require compliance with those measures before the sale is made, he or she can require the home's compliance with those measures within one to three years after the sale. This is just one of many special laws relating to the rights and duties of owners of mobile homes.

This information by the community legal education program is meant to help you learn your rights, but is not a complete answer to an individual legal problem. For legal help see your family attorney or call your legal services office serving low income persons.

State Firms Awarded SBA Sub-Contracts

Celso C. Moreno, district director for the Minnesota U.S. small business administration, announced recently that two Minnesota firms were selected as federal small business sub-contractor of the year for the state. They are "Unimatic Inc.," a manufacturer of screw machine products in Minnetonka, and "Tool Products Company," a manufacturer of precision die castings in New Hope.

Both companies were selected from thousands of small businesses in federal Region V which includes the states of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, as well as Minnesota. Within this region there were only nine companies so designated.

This is a yearly award to small firms who must first be nominated by federal prime contractors and then reviewed by a panel of procurement experts in Chicago and Washington.

"We are most proud to see Minnesota firms represented so well," said Moreno, "It is a credit to these firms and also an example for other small businesses that federal procurement, whether direct or as subcontractors, can be lucrative business." Moreno urged those small firms who wish to become involved in federal procurement to contact the small business administration for assistance in getting started.

Information On Cemetery At Viking Added

A feature article in Wednesday's edition of the Times provided some background information on the Viking cemetery, located about four miles northwest of Viking and operated jointly by the township and city of Viking.

A question was asked at the end of the article about the burial of Hilma Beckman, whose date of death is listed as three years before the cemetery was believed to have been started in 1886.

Arne Samuelson, who owns the original Beckman farm, informed the Times that remains of the Beckman girl — who was born in 1878 and died in 1883 — were moved from a site on the Beckman farm to the cemetery donated by Mathias Tostrup after the cemetery had been established. Samuelson said that several other graves, primarily of children, were also moved from private property to the cemetery site.

The article also failed to mention that James Tostrup of Newfolden is a descendant of Mathias Tostrup, a principal figure in the article.

Foreign Sugar Dumping Gets Attention

Congressman Arlan Stangeland has urged President Reagan to take swift action to block the dumping of foreign sugar on U.S. markets.

Stangeland was the original author of the sugar program in the 1981 farm bill. In implementing the program, the administration imposed both import fees and quotas on foreign-produced sugar. These measures were intended to maintain an adequate domestic market price and to keep the U.S. government from acquiring displaced U.S. sugar.

"These measures are being undermined because Canadian firms are abusing a loophole that was created when the administration implemented the sugar program in 1982," said Congressman Stangeland, the top-ranking Reupublican on the House sugar subcommittee.

Under the administration proclamations, the import fees and quotas applied to raw, refined and liquid sugars and molasses. But Canadian firms avoid those barriers by marketing "sugar blends," which are 94 per cent liquid sucrose or import sugar and six per cent high fructose corn syrup.

"Candian firms are using this loophole because their plants are close to the U.S. border," Congressman Stangeland said. "But if they are not stopped, other nations will also begin the practice. We will be flooded by foreign sugar. The 1981 sugar program will be undermined, and Minnesota beet-growers will be forced to switch to other crops that are already in surplus."

Congressman Stangeland noted that the sugar program was created to keep America from becoming completely dependent on foreign sugar, because unprotected sugar growers were being driven out of business by subsidized imports.

"We will be at the mercy of a foreign sugar cartel if this program is undermined and our domestic industry is crushed," he said. "I urge you to use your emergency authority under Section 22 of the agricultural adjustment act to restrict these imports. While this temporary measure is in effect, I also urge you to order an investigation by the international trade commission of this matter."

Stangeland was the first member of Congress to bring this matter to the administration's attention last fall. He has already persuaded agriculture secretary John Block to make identical requests to the White House.

Vets Hospital Takes Another Step Forward

Minneapolis veterans hospital moved yet another step closer to construction when the full senate approved the supplemental appropriations bill in Washington recently.

The $254 million hospital is included as part of the bill.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz said that Sen. Jake Garn, chairman of the appropriations subcommittee with responsibility for VA funding, had repeatedly assured him that he would include the hospital's appropriation in the bill. "I'm happy that he included it and that the senate passed it," Boschwitz said.

The Minneapolis veterans hospital had been an on-again, off-again squabble since the VA first supported the project in 1979. It first reached the VA budget in fiscal year 1981.

Now the hospital's funding has been approved, by both the House of Representatives and the Senate, and construction can begin this fall.

"The new hospital is extremely important to Minnesota veterans and I'm very pleased that we can now look forward to actual construction beginning soon."

IRA Homemaker Accounts

Following editorial is from the Bemidji Pioneer:

Homemakers do not earn salaries, so they are not permitted to open Individual Retirement Accounts. They can only have spousal IRA accounts, which are limited to $250 a year. The individual IRA account goes to $2,000 a year.

This creates a contradiction. Women who earn salaries for caring for other people's children or cleaining other people's houses can open individual IRA accounts. Women who raise their own children and keep their own house cannot.

That is an unfortunate inequity. The homemaker is a vital part of our society, the center of the family, and should not be treated as an inferior.

Many women — more than half — have entered the work force. But some have chosen not to, even when raising children means postponing or sacrificing their careers. Raising a family should not mean reducing their security in retirement.

In this era of high unemployment, many fathers have lost their jobs. Their wives must support the family, leaving the man in the homemaker role. These men are eligible only for spousal IRA accounts until they become employed again. They are doubly punished for unemployment, today and in retirement.

The amount deposited in an IRA account is deducted from taxable income. Interest earned on IRA accounts is not taxed until it is withdrawn when the individual retires. Then he is not likely to be in a high income-tax bracket.

The IRA is a good deal for the American worker; millions of people have put billions of dollars into IRA accounts. IRAs are good for banks and lending institutions, which have more reserves to loan to businesses and consumers. IRAs are good for the economy, promoting savings and investment.

But the exclusion of homemakers is a bad deal for the American family. It forces women to accept an inferior retirement account for staying home and caring for children. It penalizes the unemployed workers supported by their spouses.

U.S. News and World Report says that the White House is studying the possibility of extending the $2,000 IRA limit to homemakers.

Ed Dale, spokesman for the Office of Management of the Budget, says: "There is some discussion of liberalization of IRAs in the context of women. It has not yet been adopted as a policy. I don't know what the revenue loss would be. Our estimated loss of revenue for fiscal 1983 for IRA accounts was $4.2 billion."

The estimated $200 billion budget deficit is a serious problem, threatening the fiscal future of our nation.

The lack of IRAs for homemakers is an inequity, threatening the future of a particular group.

Resolving the budget defict comes first. But giving homemakers equal IRA accounts must not come far behind. Today's mother must not be tomorrow's poor old lady, unable to support her own retirement.

Raise Drinking Age

Following editorial is from the Swift County Monitor at Benson:

The Minnesota Legislature once again failed to take action that would raise the legal drinking age in Minnesota from 19 to 21.

Yet, overwhelming evidence continues to pour in indicating that increasing the legal drinking age to 21 would reduce motor vehicle accidents and fatalities.

The legal drinking age was 21 for many years until legislators bowed to the pressure of the argument that if young men are old enough to be drafted, they're old enough to drink legally. The Vietnam era dredged up a lot of bad habits and bad legislation, and this was one of them.

Legislators, faced with burgeoning accident rates caused by teenage drinking, realized their mistake and struck a compromise by increasing the legal drinking age to 19. But they didn't go far enough.

In 1978, the State of Michigan raised its legal drinking age from 18 to 21. The result? Alcohol-related, injury-producing accidents in the 18-to-20-year-old category dropped a dramatic 20 per cent, while property damage accidents dropped 17 per cent. And those lower accident rates continued through 1982 indicating that it was no "flash in the pan."

One year earlier in 1977, the State of Maine raised its legal drinking age from 18 to 20, and it, too, has experienced similar sharp reductions in accidents and fatalities caused by teen-aged drinking drivers.

We don't buy the argument that if one is old enough to be drafted and serve in his nation's armed forces, he's old enough to drink. Serving in the armed forces requires youth and strength, not necessarily maturity. Maturity is needed when you get behind the wheel of a vehicle, and the majority of teen-ages lack that maturity.

Growing up is a difficult enough process without requiring youngsters to handle their liquor as well, and the state Legislature should act as soon as possible to increase the legal drinking age to where it was for many years at 21. We'll wager that Minnesota will experience sharp reductions in motor vehicle accident rates and property damage just as Michigan and Maine have experienced.

Anti-Business Taxes

Following editorial is from the Canby News:

About 10 years ago, Time magazine featured a smiling Gov. Wendell Anderson on its cover, holding a stringer of northern pike, with the caption describing the good life of Minnesota.

The article expounded on Minnesota's quality of life — a high quality of life — complete with comparatively low urban crime rates, low unemployment, clean air and good entertainment.

Most Minnesota natives contended that everyone would live in the Gopher State were it not for two factors — mosquitoes and our winters.

Add a third factor — taxes, many of them on business.

The sad truth emerged during the last decade that Minnesotans paid, and paid heavily for their quality of life. Presently, when surrounding states are making concerted efforts to cut down the sprawl of government spending and improve the private business climate, Minnesota's DFL-dominated Legislature is doing exactly the opposite.

Gov. Rudy Perpich hasn't detoured from the long-standing DFL philosophy in any noticeable fashion. Despite his campaign rhetoric, his only idea of solving problems is to throw money at them.

While Perpich is critical of other states for luring away Minnesota business, the DFL track record of pricing business to the hilt is the real culprit. According to a recent study by St. Cloud state university, 300 state manufacturers concluded Minnesota will lose a minimum of 28,000 more jobs during the next five years when firms depart our borders.

These sobering facts face Minnesota taxpayers:

— Workers' compensation rates for manufacturing workers in the state are the third highest in the U.S., and rates have increased 500 per cent in the past 16 years.

— Maximum personal income tax rates are 16 per cent, the highest in the nation.

— Corporate income taxes are also the highest in the U.S. They have doubled since 1971, when they were hiked to 12 per cent and the federal tax deduction was abolished.

— Property taxes for industrial facilties are the highest in the midwest, and not surprisingly, among the highest in the country.

— Minnesota's sales tax has risen steadily to the point where the level is now tied for second highest nationally. Unemployment insurance costs are in that dubious category as well.

In dolars and cents, taking only the property and corporate taxes and workers' compensation costs into comparison, the prospects of keeping any business in this state don't seem too bright.

Using only these factors, a medium-size manufacturing plant in Fargo, ND, would incur $107,735 in state-induced costs. Across the Red River in Moorhead, MN, state-induced costs would be $384,234. In Hudson, WI, on the eastern border, state-induced costs would be $128,876.

New business isn't going to move into Minnesota just for the fishing, and right now, the taxpayers are being caught.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A bachelor's life, it has been suggested, is just one undarned thing after another.

Two drivers were surveying the damage to their cars after a traffic accident. One pulled out a whiskey bottle and offered it to the other, noting it would calm his nerves. The man took a deep swig, returned the bottle, and asked, "Aren't you going to have one, too?" "Yes," the first man replied, "but I think I'll wait until after the police have been here."

One of the problems of some of the new wonder drugs is the side effects — like bankruptcy.

We Shouldn't Turn Back The Clock on the REA

Until Congress passed the Rural Electrification Act (RE Act) of 1936, rural America operated virtually without telephones or electricity. Since then, the Act has provided rural America with high quality, affordable electric and telephone service. For example, 90 per cent of all farms in the U.S. had electricity by 1953, while telephone service to 90 percent of rural America was reached in 1976. But all this is now in jeopardy.

The problem is how the Rural Electrification Administration (REA) is funded. The REA's revolving fund — the sole source of all insured loans to Rural Electrification Distribution Co-operatives (REDC) for the past ten years — is in financial trouble. There are over 960 REDCs nationwide, and their job is to get electricity from power companies and distribute it to individual families.

The Revolving Fund gets its name from the fact that the old loan repayments are "revolved" back into new loans. The fund relies on repayments of old loans in order to fund new loans. The sale of Certificates of Beneficial Ownership (CBO) are an additional source of required funds. CBOs are basically loans from the government to the REA.

The fund is hurting because federal law prohibits the applied interest rate from exceeding 5 per cent. The imbalance on interest rates — 5 per cent income on interest on new loans and 10 to 15 per cent interest expense on new CBOs — has created a need for the fund to borrow from its own resources. By 1986 the fund will be feeding on itself because interest paid out will be more than interest income.

What follows is a summary of a bill, S. 1300, which I am cosponsoring, which will deal with the PEAs problems.

Provisions common to both electric and telephone programs.

+ Balance the Rural and Telephone Revolving Fund through periodic adjustments of interest rates. By allowing the REA to set interest rates high enough to offset the cost of CBOs, this allows the fund to remain balanced.

+ Subdivide the Revolving Fund into separate electric and telephone accounts. This is needed because the telephone program is changing a lot due to technical advances. Right now there is a large amount of money not given out in loans. By splitting program, new loans would be given out.

+ Convert notes due the treasury in 1993-2017 into money for the Revolving Fund. In 1973 the Revolving Fund was created. Loans to REDCs before 1973 will be due between 1993-2017. This provision would mean that the fund wouldn't pay back the government. If they paid back the government, they would only have to ask for another loan. This cuts the need for another loan and the red tape that goes with it.

+ Authorize the REA Administrator to repurchase CBOs. If you bought a car at 14 per cent interest and then the rate went down to 10 per cent, you would want to refinance the loan. The REA would like that same opportunity, and this provision would given it to them.

+ Authorize REA loan guarantee lenders to refinance loans to REDCs. This would do the same for the people that borrow from the REA. It would depend on how much interest rates drop to figure how much each REDC would save.

+ Authorize special rate loans for borrowers experiencing financial and other hardships. Before 1961, low density and hard hit areas were able to borrow at 2 per cent of half the standard interest rate. This provision would bring this help back.

+ Direct the REA administrator to subordinate or accommodate liens or mortgages at the request of the borrower, upon a finding that the borrower has the ability to repay their debt. This could increase the authority needed to enable and encourage increased non-REA investment capital. This would give private investors more security for their investment.

Provision applying only to electric program.

+ Maintain supplemental financing criteria and ratios currently in effect.

Provisions applying only to telephone program.

+ Increase from 1500 to 2500 the population limit on rural areas eligible for REA or Rural Telephone Bank (RTB) financing. This would make transfers of territories easier, which would improve the telephone system.

+ Modify the definitions of telephone service to include specifically transmission by wire, radio, light other visual or eletromagnetic means. The definitions were last revised 21 years ago. Since then, technology in communications has come a long way. Yet, because of outdated definitions, new equipment can't be bought. This would be changed.

+ Eliminate the prohibition against a loan in any state without a state regulatory body, unless the administrator finds that no duplication will result. Under old federal regulations there was a telephone monopoly. Duplication of services was not allowed. Now, with many new local telephone companies, duplication of services if needed in order to provide a competitive market. A competitive market would mean better services at cheaper prices to rural customers.

+ Eliminate fiscal year 1991 limit for further capitalization of the Rural Telephone Bank if the goal of 600 million dollars has not been reached. In 1981 federal capital investment allowed was increased by $300 million to $600 million. The increase was to come at $30 million over 10 years. Due to budget crunches, the amount received each year might be less than $30 million. This provision would remove the time fram,e allowing the REA to get the full $600 million regardless of how long it takes.

+ Eliminate the size limitations on acquisitions of exchange facilities which can be financed by the RIB. Presently, the size of the REDC must stay the same as it was when the first loan was given. This provision allows for each REDC to grow or to merge with other REDC's. This would improve service to rural customers.

+ Change the RIB's interest coverage test to compute it before income taxes, and to make it more flexible. This would mean a more equal distribution of money to borrowers.

The Rural Electrification Act of 1936 has served America well for nearly 50 years. By supporting this bill (S. 1300) I hope to insure the continued existance of the REA and the benefits it provides to rural America.

Learning CPR Is Promoted As Life-Saver

Driving a car. Balancing a checkbook. Swimming. Operating a computer. Learning CPR. Any of these skills might be considered essential for living in today's society, but only one — the art of cardiopulmonary resuscitation (CPR) — can save lives. Yet too often it's the skill missing from most of our lists of "Things to Know."

In a country where approximately one and one-half million people will have heart attacks this year, that omission is considered practically a crime by many health professionals.

A basic CPR course stresses prevention and recognition of symptoms, particularly in the area of coronaries, were the grestest risk occurs in the first two hours after symptoms appear, says Carol Kelsey, director of nursing education at a St. Paul hospital. Participants learn to perform CPR until paramedics arrive or until a victim can be transported to a medical facility. They also learn the Heimlich maneuver, a procedure to assist choking victims; how to assess the need for the two procedures; and when and how to summon emergency assistance.

Because CPR is fairly simple to perform, takes just hours to learn and can make a dramatic difference in saving lives, Kelsey doesn't understand why everyone doesn't know how to do it. But she hears a lot of reasons.

Some people believe they aren't strong enough. Since CPR involves artifically breathing for a victim and manual compression of the chest to stimulate the heart, it does require endurance and strength.

But one doesn't have to be unusually strong or a top athlete to be effective — reasonably good physical condition will do, says Kelsey. Today, even school children are learning the technique.

Lots of people also worry that they won't be able to do CPR the "right" way or that they will freeze and won't remember how to do it at all.

Instructor Deb Decker, R.N., disagrees. "People freeze in a crisis when they haven't been trained in what to do. I've talked to CPR people who say they were so scared they didn't have time to panic — they just went ahead and did the procedure."

Like driving a car or riding a bike, the steps of CPR come automatically and aren't forgotten once they are adequately learned.

There are several key groups of people who should know CPR: families of people who have had heart attacks, hospital personnel, the staff of doctors' offices and clinics, instructor at gyms and golf courses, even waiters and waitresses.

Studies have shown that the most successful resuscitation efforts occur when initial CPR is given within one to four minutes after a person stops breathing and then is followed by advanced life support treatment provided by paramedic teams. In addition to heart attacks, CPR can be the lifesaving factor in other crises, such as drowning, electrical shock, automobile accidents and choking.

Decker is puzzled that neither the women's movement, which advocates self-help in health care, nor the current health and fitness craze have spotlighted the need for learning CPR. Perhaps it's because we don't want to find ourselves in situations where we might be responsible for saving another person's life. It is an awesome responsibility and she advises CPR students to consider beforehand how they might come to terms with the consequences of their actions — particularly if a person dies.

"People need to be comfortable with what they did, even if the person they tried to save doesn't live," she says.

Knowing you did what you could is perhaps the strongest argument for learning CPR. We don't escape our responsibility to others simply by not learning what to do, Becker believes. "We owe it to strangers, let along to our families, to know CPR. People may not have a legal responsibility to be trained, but we have that responsibility to each other as human beings."

To The Editor:

I was asked at the last Pennington county council on aging to comment on a senior citizen center in Thief River Falls.

Senior citizen centers seem to be located in all size towns such as Goodridge, Hewitt, Osage, St. Cloud, Phoenix, Arizona; Park Rapids and Iron River, Michigan, to mention just a few. One can have a senior citizen center with no government money involved, such as in Hewitt, Minnesota. At Goodridge the city donated the building and the senior citizens obtained a grant to remodel.

It would seem to me that if somehow a building could be donated to the Pennington county council on aging that might take extensive remodeling, as at Goodridge, it would probably be easier to get a grant for this purpose. In a city the size of Thief River Falls I would think much if not all of the work could be donated in the most part by retired citizens. If this can be done in small cities such as Goodridge and Hewitt, why not in Thief River Falls? Where there is a will there is a way.

While a downtown location has merit I would hate to see the parking lot for the library used for this purpose. It is needed for the library. However, on the other side the library and the senior citizen center could complement each other.

Accress fo a multi-story facility might be done by a circular ramp. This has been done at the school house converted to a senior citizen building at Osage. One could check this facility as to whether a circular ramp would work in Thief River Falls.

St. Cloud has a center on the outskirts of the city with bus service provided. If it works for St. Cloud, why not for Thief River Falls?

Large cities such as Thief River Falls that have centers seem to have many programs for senior citizens on an on going basis rather than just once or twice a week. If the community of Thief River Falls will support a senior citizen center, this is no reason this much needed facility will not become a reality.

Yours truly,
David M. Brown

MN Rideshare Saves Gas And Vehicle Costs

Minnesotans have saved $48 million in driving costs and conserved about 8.2 million gallons of gasoline since the Minnesota department of transportation's (Mn-DOT) rideshare program began in 1980.

Individual commuters may have saved as much as $1,500 a year in driving costs by saving on fuel, maintenance, insurance and other expenses, said Richard P. Braun, state transportation commissioner. Ridesharing has also decreased the number of vehicle miles traveled each year by 101 million and reduced air pollution and congestion on city streets and the state's highway system.

Ridesharing also benefits communities in other ways, like reducing the number of dollars spent on gasoline to strengthen local economies.

"More than 60 per cent of each dollar spent for gasoline leaves the state right away," says Braun, "but dollars saved by ridesharing and used for other needs continue to circulate locally, increasing local business and jobs. Community rideshare efforts also provide the framework for a statewide energy program that can easily become operational in case of a fuel emergency."

Statewide, Braun said more than 20,000 commuters have changed their habits from driving alone to joining a vanpool or carpool or using available public transportation to get to work during the last two years.

"Minnesota rideshare has helped form about 7,400 carpools and 91 vanpools and has provided information about public transit to nearly 7,000 people," he said.

Ridesharing has taken many forms ranging from two or three neighbors sharing a short ride in a carpool to vans carrying 12 or more passengers on round trips of more than 100 miles each day.

The ridesharing concept also includes regular transit, paratransit and buses operated by companies for employee use.

As increasing numbers of commuters have changed their way of getting to work Mn/DOT has also changed the way rideshare programs are developed and operated.

Under direction by the legislature in 1981, Mn/DOT works with city governments, chambers of commerce and others to help them design and operate their own programs instead of providing direct services.

Since then, Mn-DOT has worked with public and private agencies in cities such as Eden Prairie, Fairmont, LeSueur, Olivia, Marshall and now Virginia on the Iron Range to create their own ridesharing programs to develop car and vanpools. Mn/DOT has worked with larger cities such as Duluth, Mankato, Moorhead, Rochester and St. Cloud to develop pooling and to stimulate ridership on public transit systems.

Host Thief River Falls team beat Red Lake Falls 13-5, Karlstad 10-5 and Warroad 5-1 en route to the title in the eight-team, three-day event. Thief River Falls, now 8-4, will play a 6:30 p.m. doubleheader at Bemidji tonight (Monday), then play 7 p.m. Northwest League games Tuesday vs. Hallock, Thursday at East Grand Forks and Friday vs. Karlstad before participating in an invitational tournament at Winnipeg this weekend.

Starting Sunday's three-game schedule, Warroad rallied from a 5-2 deficit by scoring six times after two were out in the sixth inning for an 8-5 come-from-behind semifinal triumph over grafton.

Three errors and a hit-batsmen led to the Warroad outburst. None of the runs were earned, although Son Shaugoby had a two-run single in there and Mark Boucha had an RBI double.

Grafton, 7-4, had the lead by scoring three times in the third without the benefit of a base hit; five walks and an error did it for them.

A 5-2 Elmwood lead became a 9-2 cushion in the top of the sixth when the Giants collected four base hits — including extra-base RBI blows by Glenn Gilbert and Kelly Gosselin — were combined for two errors and two walks.

Elmwood finished the tournament with a 4-11-1 record. Gonvick went home 3-5.

TRF 5
Warroad 1

Strong pitching by Tim Nyland and the continued hot hitting of Tim Bottem sparked Thief River Falls to a 5-1 championship game victory over Warroad Sunday night.

Nyland scattered five hits — three over the first six innings — without walking a batter. Bottem was 3-for-4 for the game and 8-for-11 for the tournament. He scored eight runs and drove in four.

"Bottem was our most consistent hitter," confirmed Thief River Falls coach Nick Drees, who admittedly consistency isn't always the team's strength because of its youthful flavor and his penchant for line-up chances.

"We maybe don't always put the best nine players on the field," he admitted. "We want to give everybody a chance to play."

"Nyland pitched an excellent game. He kept the ball down and threw strikes," noted Drees, who was also impressed with the defensive play by shortstop Kerry Wollin and the key hits supplied by centerfielder Kirk Jenson during a 3-for-3 game with two RBI's.

Thief River Falls struck for two first inning runs when Bottem dropped a single into short right field and Wollin walked on a full count pitch. Runs crossed the plate on back-to-back RBI singles by Al Ness and Jenson. All this happened with two out.

Same combination — a Bottem single and a Wollin walk — worked for two more run in the third. Jenson's single into short center field scored Bottem and moved Wollin to third. An errant pick-off throw scored Wollin.

Bottem singled again in the fifth and scored when Jenson beat out a two-out infield single.

Lone Warroad run off Nyland came in the fourth as Dion Hebel reached base on an error, moved up on a passed ball and scored on the third error of the inning.

Thief River Falls moved to 8-4 for the year, although catcher Brian Kemnitz was lost with a broken finger suffered in the tournament opener. Warroad is 5-3.

TRF Is 8-2 Winner Over Gonvick Club

Making the most of out of three hits, Thief River Falls rode the 13-strike-out performance of pitcher Bob Huot to an 8-2 American Legion baseball win over visiting Gonvick Wednesday.

One of the Thief River Falls hits was a two-run second inning home run by Kerry Wollin, scoring Tim Bottem, who had reached base on an error, ahead of him.

Gonvick tied it 2-2 in the top of the fourth, but two walks and a single by Kirk Jenson in the fourth were followed by a two-out infield error that allowed two Thief River Falls runs to cross the plate. There were three walks and an error for three fifth inning runs, with three more walks and a single by Jeff Anderson producing a sixth inning run — on a bases-loaded walk issued by Todd Anderson.

Meanwhile, Huot was striking out at least two batters in four of the seven innings, fanning the side in the second and fifth.

Successful Fund-Raiser

An excess of $1,100 was reportedly raised Sunday during the Lincoln high school fund-raising shortstop golf tournament held at the Thief River Country Club.

"An absolute success," was the way a program spokesman described the event.

Boys and girls golf, like the baseball, cross country, swimming and tennis programs at Lincoln high school, have been designated as community-funded activities in a budget move by school officials. Those sports won't be offered unless money is raised outside of school district funds to support the teams.

A $2,000 goal was set by a committee involved with the golf program. But even though yesterday's total didn't reach that high, backers are sure there will be golf teams at Lincoln in 1983-84. Plans are currently being discussed for a second fund-raiser this summer, a junior golf tournament.

Meanwhile, a Lincoln fund-raising tennis tournament continues to accept registrations for July 8-10 with various classes of singles and doubles competition for all age levels being planned.

Entry fee is $10, which includes a singles and a doubles event, plus a new can of balls. Entry deadline is Tuesday, July 5. Entry blanks are available at several downtown locations in Thief River Falls. Additional information can be obtained from Jeanne Olson at 681-4728 or Ron Stordahl at 681-1356 or 681-2693.

Miscellaneous

+ Compliments go out to Thief River Falls park and recreation department workers and youth baseball coaches for the work they have done in restoring the Little League Diamond this spring. The facility was uprooted to a degree when a street-paving project was completed. The area has been restored to a first-class facility, with work continuing. Lots of complimentary words have also been heard concerning the fairgrounds baseball diamond utilized by the high school, Legion and Babe Ruth teams. Park and recreation personnel, complemented by Legion baseball players and coaches, have developed the best diamond in northwestern Minnesota.

+ Thief River Falls entries Deb Jacobson and Marge Corliss were the 1-2 championship flight finishers last week in the annual ladies invitational golf tournament at the Minakwa Country Club in Crookston. Jacobson shot an 18-hole total of 86 and was also the meet medalist. Corliss finished with a 93.

+Grygla-Gatzke school board announced last week that Rick Nelson will serve as head coach of the Grygla-Gatzke cooperative program football team this fall, with Darwin Hargen serving as an assistant coach. Nelson had served as head coach at Goodridge and Hagen was head coach at Grygla as the two schools operated separate programs in the nine-man North Tri-County Conference. Decision to form a cooperative program was made last spring.

+ Left-hander Craig Stahlecker pitched a no-hitter last week, striking out 10 batters in leading Crookston to a 10-0 Northwest League American Legion baseball win over Karlstad.

+Warroad Lakers senior amateur hockey team, which has utilized a number of Thief River Falls players in the past, will make a hockey-playing tour of Europe this winter. Leaving January 27 from Winnipeg, the Lakers will fly to Amsterdam and play in France, Austria, West Germany, Belgium and Holland on a 12-day trip. Arrangements are being made for fans to travel with the team. Information on the travel package will be available in mid-July, according to Lakers manager Cal Marvin. Last year the Lakers traveled to Alberta and Alaska for games. The team is currently involved in a number of fund-raising activities for the European trip.

+ Bob Gernander, who coached Greenway-Coleraine to state high school hockey titles in 1967 and 1968, will return as the Radiers' head coach this winter after a ten-year absence, succeeding former Crookston Mount St. Benedict coach Mick Metzer. Not on the Greeway faculty, Metzer, who coached the Raiders the past four years, resigned to devote more time to his business. Gernander will remain as recreation director and manager of the West Range Arena.

EAST GRAND FORKS runner Rod Mosher went around Thief River Falls catcher Brian Kemnitz and scored from second base on a single to center field by teammate Bill Zeller with two out in the top of the sixth inning during Thursday's American Legion baseball game played in Thief River Falls. The throw to the plate arrived just a moment too late to give Kemnitz a chance to tag Mosher, who represented East Grand Forks' first run of the game. Umpire Paul Williams and East Grand Forks on-deck batter Mike Hartje, who follwed with an RBI single into short right field, watched the action.

Thief River Falls American Legion Baseball Tournament . . .

TRF Wins Invitational Title

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team stopped just short of being a perfect host Sunday in the finals of the eight-team, three-day invitational tournament played on the fairgrounds diamond.

While visiting teams had few complaints about Thief River Falls' first-time attempt at staging a regular season invitational tournament, featuring mostly smaller area teams, Post 117's generosity, stopped short of giving the championship trophy away as Thief River Falls beat Warroad 5-1 in the title game.

"We're very pleased with it," said Thief River Falls coach Nick Drees in a post-tournament appraisal. "Things went smooth. We set it up for these smaller towns, so they could compete in a tournament situation they might not otherwide be able to."

The fact that his team won it with wins over Red Lake Falls 13-5, Karlstad 10-5 and Warroad made the warm, sun-drenched tournament even more enjoyable from his standpoint.

"We played well in all three games," he explained. "The attitude of the kids was excellent the entire tournament."

Warroad coach Penny Nash, although naturally disappointed with the final-game loss, was happy with his team's showing. He figured his team had a good shot at reaching the finals, and that's what they accomplished.

"Overall, I'm satisfied," reported Nash. "We feel we've got a pretty good ball team. "Today (Sunday), we just faced a team with a little better pitching, plus a couple of kids who can hit the ball pretty well."

Warroad reached the finals by drubbing the Elmwood Giants of Winnipeg 14-1 and coming from behind to edge Grafton 8-5.

"We're real happy with this," said Nash, holding the runner-up trophy. "There's not many tournament opportunities like this for us — a small town so far away from everybody. We enjoyed it."

Thief River Falls scored four times after two were out in the top of the first inning en route to a 13-5 first-round win over Red Lake Falls Friday night.

There were five walks that inning, an error, a wild pitch and a two-run ground ball single up the middle by Steve Solheim.

That type of play continued as the margin mounted to 9-1 through three innings. Red Lake Falls cut it to 9-5 in the fourth with five base hits, but a three-run Tim Bottem home run in the fifth rebuilt the Thief River Falls advantage.

Only five of the Warroad runs were earned. That long Warroad third inning also included four hits, four walks and two wild pitches.

TRF 10
Karlstad 5

It took a little longer than what some of the home town viewers were hoping for, but Thief River Falls doubled Karlstad 10-5 in a Saturday night semifinal game.

Thief River Falls pitcher Tim Bottem was working on a two-hit shutout had had two out in the bottom of the fifth inning for an apparent 10-0, five-inning win. But. Kevin Larson, who had walked with one out, stole second and moved to third on an infield ground-out, scored on a wild pitch to prolong the game for 30 more minutes.

And during that stretch Karlstad tacked on four more runs — two of them unearned.

Offensively, Thief River Falls started with a three-run second inning on a two-out RBI single to left by Tim Nyland and a two-run, ground-ball error hit by Ryan Drees past the glove of Karlstad first baseman Tommy John Deere.

Kerry Wollin had a lead-off single in the third and scored on a two-out single to left by Gary Cornell. Thief River Falls then broke it open with a five-run fourth that included four base hits, three errors, a walk and a wild pitch. Only earned run of the inning came on Bottem's ground ball single up the middle.

Bottem tripled to right and scored on an infield ground out in the fifth for the final Thief River Falls run.

Bagley 2

Elmwood scored on a throwing error with two out in the bottom of the seventh inning for a 3-2 consolation semifinal win over Bagley late Saturday night.

All three Elmwood runs were unearned, including the game-winning as Jay Nein singled, stole second and third, then scored on a throwing error following the steal of third.

Bagley, forced to sit around some seven hours after its first-round loss that afternoon before starting the consolation game about 9 p.m., left with a 4-3 record.

Late Inning Scores Lift EGF Legion Past TRF 7-1

Stymied for five innings by Thief River Falls righthander Kerry Wollin, East Grand Forks 'offense finally got to the tiring pitcher in the final two frames Thursday as the visitors pulled out a 7-1 Northwest League American Legion baseball decision on the fairgrounds diamond.

Wollin was impressive in limiting East Grand Forks to just two singles through five innings. He faced just two-over-the-minimum 17 batters in protecting a 1-0 Thief River Falls. Wollin gave up a two-out single to right by Todd Christiansen in the first, but he was thrown out on a stolen base attempt; lead-off batter Rod Mosher was given an infield single on a nubber down the line that found nobody covering first base in the fourth; and Mike Hartje drew a walk to lead off the fifth.

Those were the only East Grand Forks base runners for the first five innings. But Wollin, holding down regular duty at shortstop, hadn't pitched since a season-opening 2-0 win over Fertile back on June 3, and the three-week absence on the mound showed itself in the sixth.

A one-out single by Mosher to center started it, and Paul Amundson drew a full-count walk. Still, there were two outs before the East Grand Forks runners began crossing the plate as Bill Zeller bounced a ground-ball RBI single into center field; Hartje dropped a bloop single behind first base for a run; and Kevin Nunn put one into the left field corner for a two-run double that made it 4-1.

East Grand Forks salted it away in the seventh on back-to-back home runs by Amundson and Christiansen. Amundson hit a two-run shot over the left field fence and Christiansen followed suit over the left-center field barrier.

Thief River Falls' lone run came in the bottom of the first when lead-off batter Tim Nyland singled to left and Ryan Drees walked. Tim Bottem's ground ball to shortstop forced out Drees, but the relay to first for the attempted double play was wide of the mark, allowing Nyland to score.

East Grand Forks left town with a 5-7 record. Thief River Falls saw its Northwest League record fall to 1-2 and its Class AA Ninth District mark slipped to 0-4.

DNR hotline

1. How may I obtain blue line photos of aerial surveys of Pickeral and Cormerant Lakes in Becker County?

Blue line copies of the high-level aerial photos taken of the entire state of Minnesota by Mark Hurd Aerial Survey, Inc. in 1969 are no longer available for public purchase. The photos were prepared for use by state agencies, and by contractual agreement, the Hurd Company retained all reproduction rights. They discontinued the sale of the "blue lines" to individuals because of insufficient public demand. For more information, contact the firm directly: Mark Hurd Aerial Surveys, Inc., 345 Pennsylvania Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN; telephone 612-545-2583. Gerald Paul, Regional Hydrologist.

2. I am 13 years old and would like to know if I could raise pheasants to increase their populations in the Ogema area.

Ogema is located on the northern fringe of the pheasant range in Minnesota. Although it may seem that adequate habitat is present in this area for supporting higher populations, the winters are generally too severe to allow it. Attempts to increase pheasant numbers by raising birds and then releasing them would more than likely be unsuccessful because the harsh winters would not allow the birds to survive to the nesting season. Jim Breyen, Assistant Regional Wildlife Supervisor.

3. Who has navigation rights* to the channel at Loraine Beach by Waskish?

Navigation channel at Loraine Beach is connected to Upper Red Lake and is considered a physical extension of the lake and is, therefore, open to public usage. Boating on the channel cannot be restricted by any adjoining property owners, but docking on their land can be. If there is any doubt or if it appears that your navigational rights are being infringed upon, contact the local conservation officer, Greg Spaulding, phone 218-647-8213, and ask him to investigate the matter for you. Gerald Paul, Regional Hydrologist.

4. Got a question, a complaint, or a suggestion regarding how your natural resources are managed?

DNR Hotline is your direct channel to a representative who will answer you, whether it concerns parks, fish, wildlife, forests, waters of minerals. Write DNR, "Hotline", 2115 Birchmont Beach Road NE, Bemidji, MN 56601; telephone 218-755-3976.

Pets And People: Best Friends Can Be Good Medicine

by Julianne Chappell
Smithsonian News Service

Man's best friend has been a friend for thousands of years. In fact, one theory holds that the first animals to be domesticated — the ancestors of "Canis familiaris," the dog of today — were initially tamed by children as pets, not as adjuncts to hunting or warfare as one might suspect.

Archaeology supports the case for a close primal relationship between humans and canines. When fossil skeletons of a man and a young dog were unearthed in Israel in 1978, the man's hand was resting on the dog — a sign, some say, of the bond between them. The remains date from 12,000 B.C.

As far as we know, the companionship between man and his second-best friend developed later. Ancestors of the cat were consorting with the Egyptians nearly 3,500 years ago.

However ancient the relationship between man and beast, it flourishes today. In the United States, more than half of all households include at least one dog or cat. Our human population of 230 million is supplemented by more than 40 million dogs, over 23 million cats, between eight and nine million horses and numerous but unnumbered other creatures, from birds to fish and reptiles to rodents.

Sheer numbers compel attention, but what does it mean, this passion afflicting more than half of us? Desmond Morris, author and animal-behavior expert, portrays it as a perversion of human relationships — a misdirection of human sympathy toward animals rather than people. Morris is not unique. Geoffrey Chaucer, writing in the 14th century, indicts one of the religious pilgrims in "The Canterbury Tales" on this account: "She used to weep if she but saw a mouse caught in a trap . . . and she had little dogs she would be feeding with roasted flesh, or milk, or fine white bread . . . She was all sentiment and tender heart."

The lady was extreme, of course, living in an "extreme" age: The trip to Canterbury occurred at a time when English peasants resorted to cannibalism to ward off starvation. But today, are we also guilty of squandering wealth, not to mention compassion, on "useless" animals?

Not in Judith White's view. White, education officer at the national zoological park in Washington, DC, points out that "all forms of life have value, a mouse no less than an elephant — or a human being." If we need further justification, science is beginning to demonstrate that the bond between man and beast is good for us, mentally and physically. Pets, scientists say, may even help their people live longer.

Good news is coming from researchers in this country and elsewhere in the western world who began in earnest about 10 years ago to study what they call the human-animal bond. In the last five years, their work has gained significant support — that is, money — from the pet food institute, a trade association representing the manufacturers of dog and cat food. Other supporters include the Latham foundation, a non-profit organization "committed to advocate humane treatment of both people and animals." Some major universities have created centers or committees concerned with this area of research, and new interdisciplinary graduate programs are developing, such as the one at Ohio State university involving psychology, psychiatry and veterinary medicine.

It was at Ohio state in the mid-1970s that Drs. Samuel and Elizabeth Corson, both psychologists, launched some of the first rigorous scientific studies of the effects of pets (in these cases, dogs) in the treatment of the mentally ill and on the well-being of the elderly in nursing homes. The studies showed that the animals had direct, positive effects on patients' behavior and sense of contentment; pets also served as a "social lubricant," increasing interactions between patients and other people.

These findings tally with the results of another scientific study conducted in England, also in the mid '70s, in which retired individuals living independently were provided with parakeets or plants or nothing. The three groups were monitored over a period of five months. Parakeet owners alone showed positive improvements in social attitudes, including self-esteem, mental health and general "happiness." The feathered friends also helped keep their companions warm. How? Several people had let their homes get dangerously cold during the winter, thus risking hypothermia, a potentially fatal condition involving a drop in body temperature. These individuals readjusted the heat once they learned their pets could not tolerate temperatures below 65 degrees Fahrenheit.

Back in this country, Aaron Katcher, a University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist, and his colleagues have been coming up with data suggesting that pets are, in general, good for people. For instance, petting and talking to animals, the researchers found, can lower pulse rate and blood pressure. Watching fish can have similar effects.

Katcher also discovered this: In a study of social factors related to survival of patients for one year following hospitalization for heart disease, pet ownership proved to be the single most important predictor of survival — independent of all other factors tested, such as whether an individual was married or single, socially active or isolated and so on.

Katcher writes, "This research finding suggests that pets may have important effects on the lives of adults that are independent of and supplementary to human contact." In other words, the bond between pet and person is authentic and has its own merit, quite apart from the relationships between people.

In another study, Katcher found that men, contrary to popular opinion, get as mushy over their dogs as women do. The researcher says men are as quick as women to pet, fondle, caress and kiss their animals in public. Men do, however, restrict this show of affection mainly to the canine kingdom. A Canadian study showed that men prefer dogs to cats by an overwhelming 10 to 1 margin, which suggests a cultural bias against men owning cats.

Unfortunately, research results like these, from carefully designed and executed scientific experiments, are still sparse. Conclusions based on case studies and untested hypotheses are far more common, and they constitute what one researcher has called a well of "pop psychiatry" on the subject of the human-animal bond. The many claimed salutary effects of pets on child development, for instance, remain virtually untested.

Some of the claims about pets and children are misleading, Phyllis Wright, vice president for companion animals of the humane society of the United States, points out. Often parents are encouraged to get pets to help their children learn responsibility. "Pets can't teach responsibility," Wright says. "Parents do that." She maintains that animals suffer when entrusted to the care of youngsters who are not carefully guided by adults.

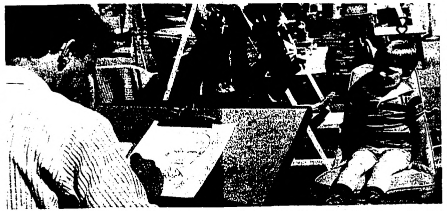
Theme of responsible pet ownership is echoed by other humane organizations and by the American veterinary medical association and the pet food institute. These organizations are well aware that the human-animal bond often fails the animal. An estimated 25 million pets are abandoned each year. Wright claims that some 10 million animals end up in shelters or pounds. Twenty per cent of these are returned to their owners or adopted; 80 per cent are put to death. "For many animals, the gift of a humane death is the only kind act they ever know," Wright remarks.

Judy White of the national zoo says that people concerned about such dismal statistics can encourage responsible attitudes toward pet ownership, especially in children. "The national zoo, and many local zoos, try to foster responsible attitudes through petcare classes and other educational activities. We hope children will learn to look upon all creatures with respect," she said.

White reminds people that they can unintentionally communicate the wrong attitudes. Teachers, for instance, will sometimes bring a "pet," like a guinea pig, into the classroom for the students to study, enjoy and care for. "With the right supervision, children can learn a great deal that is positive," White says. "But if the teacher gives the animal away at the end of the year, the last lesson is that it's okay to abandon a pet."

If children are properly guided, both they and their animals benefit from a close association — about this White has no doubt. What else but a pet can offer unconditional affection, loyalty and pure fun? Aaron Katcher and other researchers are beginning to investigate what pets mean to the development of children. Katcher, for instance, thinks that a pet may be the only creature capable of giving affection to and receiving it from boys at a certain stage of development — the time when they are too old to kiss mom and dad and too young to kiss girls.

Of course, no one knows what tales science may tell in the next few years about the relationship between pets and people, young or old. But with the good news so far, and more to come, it's enough to make a pet lover purr.



CARICATURE DRAWINGS were done by artist Sid Holt of Alexandria during Art in the Park in downtown Thief River Falls on Thursday. LaBree avenue from Second to Third streets was closed to traffic and artists and craftsmen from throughout the area exhibited and sold their creations. Holt is a student in commercial art at the Alexandria technical institute. His model in the above photo is four-year-old Eric Jelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Jelle of Thief River Falls. He and his brother were brought for sittings by Al Christofferson, a neighbor from across the alley. "We don't have any grandchildren," Christofferson said, "but Scott and Sandy's kids call us grandpa and grandma."

ICC School To Work Idea Is Successful

Inter-County community council's (ICCC) "School to Work Transition Project" is proving very successful for high school graduates. The project teaches job seeking skills and is being funded by the Minnesota private industry council. Program teaches job search techniques in a group setting and has an 85 per cent success rate.

Crookston and Thief River Falls Job Training offices are facilitating the project. Four job search facilitators from the job training offices — formerly CETA offices — have been teaching job search techniques to youth participants. Pat Ueland and Leanne Dodge have been teaching the program at Thief River Falls, and Gail Ueland and Linda Garcia have been teaching the program at Crookston.

Youth participants are being paid minimum wage for successful completion of the skills training portion which runs five to seven days, and they are also reimbursed transportation costs to and from their home to the job training offices. The project covers all of Region one which includes Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, and Norman counties.

Any high school graduate to age 21 should contact the job search facilitators at Thief River Falls or Crookston or could call Arlin Melgaard, project director at Oklee, (218) 796-5144.

Project will have two different groups at each training site during the months of July, August, and September and interested participants should apply through the nearest job training office, call 681-7350, Thief River Falls, or 281-5135, Crookston and ask for a counselor from the job search program.

Torgersons Attend Farmers Union Camp

Debbie and Lisa Torgerson of Thief River Falls were among 55 students in grades 10 through 12 participating in the Minnesota Farmers Union camp held at Sibley State Park June 13 through 17. "United and Strong" was the theme for camp, which stressed family agriculture, its roots, the present situation and the outlook for the future.

"One of the items campers concentrated on during this intensive camp session was economics. Campers discussed business management decisions, the way farming has become a technically-oriented business, and the importance of working together," said family and youth activities director Ann Vellek. "Economics was stressed in most activities, from running a cooperative camp store to playing a game called the farming game."

Through the activities provided at MFU camp, each student planned an activity they could carry out when they returned home, to influence agriculture and their future.

Tillage Most Economical To Fight Erosion

Conservation tillage is the most economical tool available today to fight soil erosion. Farmers from all parts of the state have found that leaving crop residues on fields not only saves soil but saves time and labor. This means more profit dollars, notes Ralph Rundell, conservationist for the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

These same farmers enjoy the extra benefits of a conservation tillage system such as lower fuel and machinery costs, less soil compaction and increased moisture rentention, Rundell said. Conservation tillage systems of no-till, till plant or chisel tillage can be successful in reducing the 100 million acres in Minnesota that are subject to erosion.

"Recent rains have pointed out that erosion can and does occur in our District. It has been reported that you can fly above some fields and see the gullies where the heavy rains have been running off the fields. This is costly to repair and could have been reduced with more residue on the surface to slow up the runoff," he added.

"We're starting a file on conservation tillage including information from the conservation tillage information center and other publications we have ordered. If you would like more information on this subject, stop by or call the conservation office in Grygla."

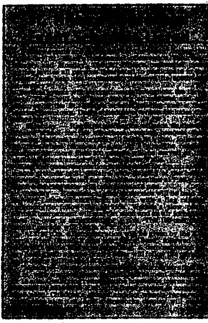
Coming Of Railroad Was Start For St. Hilaire



Incorporation of the city of St. Hilaire — which will observe its 100th anniversary with a three-day celebration July 2, 3 and 4 — coincided with the coming of the railroad on July 4, 1883. The town grew with the construction of a lumber mill in 1897 to reach 911 by 1905. Today the population is listed at 388.

Number of people in the community six miles south of Thief River Falls will be expanded considerably during the three-day weekend, however, as former residents return and visitors travel to St. Hilaire from many miles around.

Origin of the name of the town is unknown for certain, although four popular theories exist. One is that it was named by Arthur Yvernault, an early resident, who came from a French village by the same name. Another is that there had been an early trading post at the townsite, operated by a trader named St. Hilaire.

A third theory is that Frank Ives, a Crookston attorney retained by the Great Northern railroad, named the city after Jules Bartholemy St. Hilaire, a French statesman. Final story is that the first meeting to found St. Hilaire was held in the home of Rachel and Washington Adams, and Rachel or a guest named William Sorsleil named the town after one on Gespe' Bay from where they had come.

According to the centennial booklet published by the St. Hilaire centennial committee, the sawmill which caused a boom in the community's history was constructed in 1897. The mill was 192 feet long and built 22 feet above the ground. It contained large sawing equipment, powered by steam engines. Due to a lack of timber in the nearby area, the mill closed on Oct. 20, 1906, and was moved to the Bemidji area.

A listing of businesses in St. Hilaire in February of 1901 included a newspaper, bank, three general stores, two hardware stores, two first class hotels, several smaller hotels, five saloons, a furniture store, boot and shoe store, harness shop, three blacksmith shops, three grain elevators, two meat markets, a drug store, feed mill, two livery stables, photography gallery, jewelry store, steam laundry, two confectionery stores, barbershop, millinery store, three restaurants and a billiard parlor.

Presently the town includes a plumbing supply store, grocery store, cafe, two liquor stores, service station, two used auto sales, meat locker plant, post office, laundromat, three beauty shops, bank, elevator, welding shop, salvage yard, backhoe ser-

Council Grants Family Bowl Liquor License

Thief River Falls city council approved issuance of an on sale liquor license for the Family Bowl at their regular meeting held Monday night in council chambers at city auditorium.

That permit was issued to owner Tom Greelis on the condition that he meet requirements which include making certain improvements to his property. Some concern was expressed by council members over accessibility of liquor to minors, since the bowling alley is patronized by many young people. City attorney Robert Wurst rendered an opinion that the city ordinance would not allow Greelis to sell drinks outside a designated lounge area, but that customers would be able to purchase their drinks in the lounge and carry them out to the area of the bowling lanes. This was agreeable to Greelis, although he said he had hoped to have been allowed to have a waitress take orders in the lane area.

Alderman Ken Murphy claimed that Greelis had originally requested only that liquor be allowed in the lounge area, stating opposition to the

Bids Received For Projects In This Area

Apparent low bids totaling $3,246,952 for 19 highway maintenance projects in 19 counties were received by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) on June 10.

Pennington county on TH 1, Schenkey, Inc., Middle River, submitted the apparent low bid at $27,480 for production and stockpiling of mineral aggregate for TH 1 at a pit four miles north of Dorothy. To begin July 18, work is to be completed within 30 working days.

In Roseau county on TH 89, Northern Paving, Inc., Crookston, was the apparent low bidder at $57,310 for bituminous surfacing on 2.1 miles of TH 89 between the south county line and a point 2.1 miles north. Work is scheduled to begin July 5 and to be completed within 10 working days.

Project Review Committee Hears Reports

Question uppermost in the minds of members of the local project review committee on hazardous waste disposal was answered last week when the group met in the Newfolden community center, according to Marcella Gonsorowski of Newfolden, a member of the committee.

Jerry Johnson of the Minnesota waste management board staff assured the committee members that they are free to submit suggestions and advice at any time in reference to the formulation of the final hazardous waste management plan, Mrs. Gonsorowski said.

Vance Wiseth, a member of the committee and chairman of the Northern Area Fact Finding committee, expressed concern as to how much of the verbal input was being relayed to the waste management board and the resultant value of such input. Earl Hougard questioned how much credence is placed on input from the project review committee.

Tom Johnson, assistant to chairman Robert Dunn of the waste management board, was in attendance at the meeting and presented an overview of the hazardous waste superfund bill.

Report on "Assurance of Security" is expected to be released later this month by the WMB, and that topic holds much concern for the Marshall county committee, Mrs. Gonsorowski said.

Next meeting will be held July 7 at Newfolden community center and local citizens are encouraged to attend and present suggestions and comments concerning the hazardous waste disposal issue.

Over $6,000 Is Raised Through Kidney Auction

Morris Howick, chairman of this year's Kidney Fund auction which was held at the Thief River Falls sports arena on June 18 and 19, reported that the total amount raised through that effort was $6,213.31.

"I'm pleased and grateful that so many people were willing to contribute articles to be sold, as well as the time, labor and money which helped to make the sale a success. I only wish I could thank each one individually," he said.

Howick noted that because the local branch of the Kidney Foundation has incorporated, much of the money raised would be kept in the local area to assist needy people who are victims of kidney disease. After the local branch of the kidney foundation has determined how much it will need to expend, the balance will be forwarded to the state foundation to help finance research, education and assistance programs.

Thief River Falls board of education revised its revenue and expenditure budgets for the current and coming year and recalled five certified staff members from unrequested leave at the regular meeting conducted Monday evening at the school district service center.

The 1983-84 budget for K-12 was tentatively set at $7,907,058 for revenue and $7,556,107 for expenditure.

Tentative AVTI revenue budget for 1983-84 was set at $3,038,884 and expenditure budget at $3,038,388. Projected fund balance for June 30 of this year is expected to be approximately $121,000 and for June 30, 1984, to be approximately $401,000 in the K-12 budget.

Chamber And Jobs Inc. Hold Update Meet Tues.

Update meeting cosponsored by the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce and Jobs Incorporated attracted approximately 90 people to the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls Tuesday evening. Topic was the revised organization aimed at additional job creation in this community.

Stan Upham, president of the chamber of commerce, reviewed the work which led up to formation of a jobs stimulation plan. He noted that an ad hoc committee was formed of representatives from business, industry and public areas to meet, discuss needs and ideas and formulate the plan. Jim Winjum was selected to serve as chairman of the committee.

The plan developed called for a consolidation of effort by the chamber of commerce and Jobs Incorporated, headed by Ev Ault, with the executive vice president of the chamber of commerce, Jerry Sandstrom, to allocate 75 per cent of his time to work in the jobs recruitment area.

Annual budget established was for $81,150 and includes $34,150 from the chamber of commerce, $7,000 from Jobs Incorporated, $10,000 from the Thief River Falls board of education, and $15,000 each from the city of Thief River Falls and Pennington county. Funds are to be expended in salaries, related personnel expenses, surveys, solicitation of prospects, hiring of resource people or services, telephone, supplies and expenses incident to having prospects visit Thief River Falls.

Presentations were made to the governing bodies of all entities and support was given by all, Upham said. Funding granted was for the first half year of the program with continued funding in most cases contingent upon review and evaluation at the end of the six-month period.

Participants in the meeting Tuesday evening made comments relative to various viewpoints of the project, depending upon their involvement in it.

Dave Strong, part of the management group at Forsberg's, Inc., and a member of the ad hoc committee, discussed how his own company had been wooed by other communities. Watertown, SD, was one of the aggressive suitors, he said, emphasizing tax advantages of South Dakota business. Also seeking to attract business to its area with invitations and materials is the city of Brainerd. He showed promotional materials from both cities.

Ev Ault, chairman of Jobs Incorporated, said he was excited by the combined effort being made and happy to be a part of it. He expressed appreciation for public support received and encouraged continued private support through chamber of commerce and Jobs Incorporated participation.

Roger Tunberg, vice chairman of the ad hoc committee and of the chamber of commerce, noted that substantial changes would be necessary in operation of the chamber. With the executive vice president devoting much of his time to the new program, Tunberg said, committee chairmen and others in the chamber leadership will have to function with less organization and support from the professional staff.

Mayor Bob Carlson was called on for comments by Upham and responded by noting that Thief River Falls has never been a difficult place to raise money for worthwhile projects. Now that the funding has been granted, he said, the true test will be what can be accomplished with it. He pointed out the possibility of failure of the program, despite optimistic projections, and warned that the community should be ready for that possibility.

Harry Sjulson, chairman of the board of education for School District 564, commented on the support provided by the district. He said that funds came through the community education committee, which operates separately from the general fund. And he expressed the opinion that sometimes there are actions which must be taken in an attempt to improve community conditions.

Don Grabanski, member of the Pennington county board of commissioners from Thief River Falls, said he believed the new organization should take an active role in promotion of the community and area. "We who live here know what the community has to offer," he said, "but we don't do a good enough job of telling other people about it." He cited small towns which have gained recognition by organization and promotion of major events.

Jim Winjum, who chaired the ad hoc committee and has been asked to chair the continuing job development group, responded to questions from those in attendance. He noted that budget development was a "best guess" effort and that specific expenditures had not been determined. He also expressed the opinion that efforts should be underway immediately to get the program operating. Asked if July 1 would be an appropriate starting date, since funding was received on a half-year basis, he quipped, "Do you think we should wait that long?"

Pets And People: Best Friends Can Be Good Medicine

by Julianne Chappell
Smithsonian News Service

Man's best friend has been a friend for thousands of years. In fact, one theory holds that the first animals to be domesticated — the ancestors of "Canis familiaris," the dog of today — were initially tamed by children as pets, not as adjuncts to hunting or warfare as one might suspect.

Archaeology supports the case for a close primal relationship between humans and canines. When fossil skeletons of a man and a young dog were unearthed in Israel in 1978, the man's hand was resting on the dog — a sign, some say, of the bond between them The remains date from 12,000 B.C.

As far as we know, the companionship between man and his second-best friend developed later. Ancestors of the cat were consorting with the Egyptians nearly 3,500 years ago.

However ancient the relationship between man and beast, it flourishes today. In the United States, more than half of all households include at least one dog or cat. Our human population of 230 million is supplemented by more than 40 million dogs, over 23 million cats, between eight and nine million horses and numerous but unnumbered other creatures, from birds to fish and reptiles to rodents.

Sheer numbers compel attention, but what does it mean, this passion afflicting more than half of us? Desmond Morris, author and animal-behavior expert, portrays it as a perversion of human relationships — a misdirection of human sympathy toward animals rather than people. Morris is not unique. Geoffrey Chaucer, writing in the 14th century, indicts one of the religious pilgrims in "The Canterbury Tales" on this account: "She used to weep if she but saw a mouse caught in a trap . . . and she had little dogs she would be feeding with roasted flesh, or milk, or fine white bread . . . She was all sentiment and tender heart."

The lady was extreme, of course, living in an "extreme" age: The trip to Canterbury occurred at a time when English peasants resorted to cannibalism to ward off starvation. But today, are we also guilty of squandering wealth, not to mention compassion, on "useless" animals?

Not in Judith White's view. White, education officer at the national zoological park in Washington, DC, points out that "all forms of life have value, a mouse no less than an elephant — or a human being." If we need further justification, science is beginning to demonstrate that the bond between man and beast is good for us, mentally and physically. Pets, scientists say, may even help their people live longer.

Good news is coming from researchers in this country and elsewhere in the western world who began in earnest about 10 years ago to study what they call the human-animal bond. In the last five years, their work has gained significant support — that is, money — from the pet food institute, a trade association representing the manufacturers of dog and cat food. Other supporters include the Latham foundation, a non-profit organization "committed to advocate humane treatment of both people and animals." Some major universities have created centers or committees concerned with this area of research, and new interdisciplinary graduate programs are developing, such as the one at Ohio State university involving psychology, psychiatry and veterinary medicine.

It was at Ohio state in the mid-1970s that Drs. Samuel and Elizabeth Corson, both psychologists, launched some of the first rigorous scientific studies of the effects of pets (in these cases, dogs) in the treatment of the mentally ill and on the well-being of the elderly in nursing homes. The studies showed that the animals had direct, positive effects on patients' behavior and sense of contentment; pets also served as a "social lubricant," increasing interactions between patients and other people.

These findings tally with the results of another scientific study conducted in England, also in the mid '70s, in which retired individuals living independently were provided with parakeets or plants or nothing. The three groups were monitored over a period of five months. Parakeet owners alone showed positive improvements in social attitudes, including self-esteem, mental health and general "happiness." The feathered friends also helped keep their companions warm. How? Several people had let their homes get dangerously cold during the winter, thus risking hypothermia, a potentially fatal condition involving a drop in body temperature. These individuals readjusted the heat once they learned their pets could not tolerate temperatures below 65 degrees Fahrenheit.

Back in this country, Aaron Katcher, a University of Pennsylvania psychiatrist, and his colleagues have been coming up with data suggesting that pets are, in general, good for people. For instance, petting and talking to animals, the researchers found, can lower pulse rate and blood pressure. Watching fish can have similar effects.

Katcher also discovered this: In a study of social factors related to survival of patients for one year following hospitalization for heart disease, pet ownership proved to be the single most important predictor of survival — independent of all other factors tested, such as whether an individual was married or single, socially active or isolated and so on.

Katcher writes, "This research finding suggests that pets may have important effects on the lives of adults that are independent of and supplementary to human contact." In other words, the bond between pet and person is authentic and has its own merit, quite apart from the relationships between people.

In another study, Katcher found that men, contrary to popular opinion, get as mushy over their dogs as women do. The researcher says men are as quick as women to pet, fondle, caress and kiss their animals in public. Men do, however, restrict this show of affection mainly to the canine kingdom. A Canadian study showed that men prefer dogs to cats by an overwhelming 10 to 1 margin, which suggests a cultural bias against men owning cats.

Unfortunately, research results like these, from carefully designed and executed scientific experiments, are still sparse. Conclusions based on case studies and untested hypotheses are far more common, and they constitute what one researcher has called a well of "pop psychiatry" on the subject of the human-animal bond. The many claimed salutary effects of pets on child development, for instance, remain virtually untested.

Some of the claims about pets and children are misleading, Phyllis Wright, vice president for companion animals of the humane society of the United States, points out. Often parents are encouraged to get pets to help their children learn responsibility. "Pets can't teach responsibility," Wright says. "Parents do that." She maintains that animals suffer when entrusted to the care of youngsters who are not carefully guided by adults.

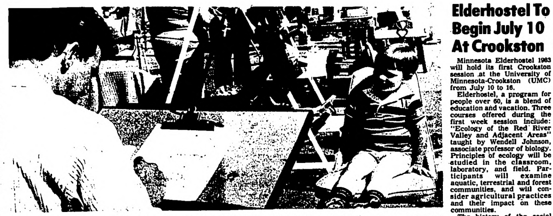
Theme of responsible pet ownership is echoed by other humane organizations and by the American veterinary medical association and the pet food institute. These organizations are well aware that the human-animal bond often fails the animal. An estimated 25 million pets are abandoned each year. Wright claims that some 10 million animals end up in shelters or pounds. Twenty per cent of these are returned to their owners or adopted; 80 per cent are put to death. "For many animals, the gift of a humane death is the only kind act they ever know," Wright remarks.

Judy White of the national zoo says that people concerned about such dismal statistics can encourage responsible attitudes toward pet ownership, especially in children. "The national zoo, and many local zoos, try to foster responsible attitudes through petcare classes and other educational activities. We hope children will learn to look upon all creatures with respect," she said.

White reminds people that they can unintentionally communicate the wrong attitudes. Teachers, for instance, will sometimes bring a "pet," like a guinea pig, into the classroom for the students to study, enjoy and care for. "With the right supervision, children can learn a great deal that is positive," White says. "But if the teacher gives the animal away at the end of the year, the last lesson is that it's okay to abandon a pet."

If children are properly guided, both they and their animals benefit from close association — about this White has no doubt. What else but a pet can offer unconditional affection, loyalty and pure fun? Aaron Katcher and other researchers are beginning to investigate what pets mean to the development of children. Katcher, for instance, thinks that a pet may be the only creature capable of giving affection to and receiving it from boys at a certain stage of development — the time when they are too old to kiss mom and dad and too young to kiss girls.

Of course, no one knows what tales science may tell in the next few years about the relationship between pets and people, young or old. But with the good news so far, and more to come, it's enough to make a pet lover purr.



CARICATURE DRAWINGS were done by artist Sid Holt of Alexandria during Art in the Park in downtown Thief River Falls on Thursday. LaBree avenue from Second to Third streets was closed to traffic and artists and craftsmen from throughout the area exhibited and sold their creations. Holt is a student in commercial art at the Alexandria technical institute. His model in the above photo is four-year-old Eric Jelle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Jelle of Thief River Falls. He and his brother were brought for sittings by Al Christofferson, a neighbor from across the alley. "We don't have any grandchildren," Christofferson said, "but Scott and Sandy's kids call us grandpa and grandma."

ICC School To Work Idea Is Successful

Inter-County community council's (ICCC) "School to Work Transition Project" is proving very successful for high school graduates. The project teaches job seeking skills and is being funded by the Minnesota private industry council. Program teaches job search techniques in a group setting and has an 85 per cent success rate.

Crookston and Thief River Falls Job Training offices are facilitating the project. Four job search facilitators from the job training offices — formerly CETA offices — have been teaching job search techniques to youth participants. Pat Ueland and Leanne Dodge have been teaching the program at Thief River Falls, and Gail Ueland and Linda Garcia have been teaching the program at Crookston.

Youth participants are being paid minimum wage for successful completion of the skills training portion which runs five to seven days, and they are also reimbursed transportation costs to and from their home to the job training offices. The project covers all of Region one which includes Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Polk, Red Lake, Pennington, and Norman counties.

Any high school graduate to age 21 should contact the job search facilitators at Thief River Falls or Crookston or could call Arlin Melgaard, project director at Oklee, (218) 796-5144.

Project will have two different groups at each training site during the months of July, August, and September and interested participants should apply through the nearest job training office, call 681-7350, Thief River Falls, or 281-5135, Crookston and ask for a counselor from the job search program.

Torgersons Attend Farmers Union Camp

Debbie and Lisa Torgerson of Thief River Falls were among 55 students in grades 10 through 12 participating in the Minnesota Farmers Union camp held at Sibley State Park June 13 through 17. "United and Strong" was the theme for camp, which stressed family agriculture, its roots, the present situation and the outlook for the future.

"One of the items campers concentrated on during this intensive camp session was economics. Campers discussed business management decisions, the way farming has become a technically-oriented business, and the importance of working together," said family and youth activities director Ann Vellek. "Economics was stressed in most activities, from running a cooperative camp store to playing a game called the farming game."

Through the activities provided at MFU camp, each student planned an activity they could carry out when they returned home, to influence agriculture and their future.

Tillage Most Economical To Fight Erosion

Conservation tillage is the most economical tool available today to fight soil erosion. Farmers from all parts of the state have found that leaving crop residues on fields not only saves soil but saves time and labor. This means more profit dollars, notes Ralph Rundell, conservationist for the Marshall-Beltrami soil and water conservation district.

These same farmers enjoy the extra benefits of a conservation tillage system such as lower fuel and machinery costs, less soil compaction and increased moisture rentention, Rundell said. Conservation tillage systems of no-till, till plant or chisel tillage can be successful in reducing the 100 million acres in Minnesota that are subject to erosion.

"Recent rains have pointed out that erosion can and does occur in our District. It has been reported that you can fly above some fields and see the gullies where the heavy rains have been running off the fields. This is costly to repair and could have been reduced with more residue on the surface to slow up the run-off," he added.

"We're starting a file on conservation tillage including information from the conservation tillage information center and other publications we have ordered. If you would like more information on this subject, stop by or call the conservation office in Grygla."

Coming Of Railroad Was Start For St. Hilaire

Incorporation of the city of St. Hilaire — which will observe its 100th anniversary with a three-day celebration July 2, 3 and 4 — coincided with the coming of the railroad on July 4, 1883. The town grew with the construction of a lumber mill in 1897 to reach 911 by 1905. Today the population is listed at 388.

Number of people in the community six miles south of Thief River Falls will be expanded considerably during the three-day weekend, however, as former residents return and visitors travel to St. Hilaire from many miles around.

Origin of the name of the town is unknown for certain, although four popular theories exist. One is that it was named by Arthur Yvernault, an early resident, who came from a French village by the same name. Another is that there had been an early trading post at the townsite, operated by a trader named St. Hilaire.

A third theory is that Frank Ives, a Crookston attorney retained by the Great Northern railroad, named the city after Jules Bartholemy St. Hilaire, a French statesman. Final story is that the first meeting to found St. Hilaire was held in the home of Rachel and Washington Adams, and Rachel or a guest named William Sorsleil named the town after one on Gespe' Bay from where they had come.

According to the centennial booklet published by the St. Hilaire centennial committee, the sawmill which caused a boom in the community's history was constructed in 1897. The mill was 192 feet long and built 22 feet above the ground. It contained large sawing equipment, powered by steam engines. Due to a lack of timber in the nearby area, the mill closed on Oct. 20, 1906, and was moved to the Bemidji area.

A listing of businesses in St. Hilaire in February of 1901 included a newspaper, bank, three general stores, two hardware stores, two first class hotels, several smaller hotels, five saloons, a furniture store, boot and shoe store, harness shop, three blacksmith shops, three grain elevators, two meat markets, a drug store, feed mill, two livery stables, photography gallery, jewelry store, steam laundry, two confectionery stores, barbershop, millinery store, three restaurants and a billiard parlor.

Presently the town includes a plumbing supply store, grocery store, cafe, two liquor stores, service station, two used auto sales, meat locker plant, post office, laundromat, three beauty shops, bank, elevator, welding shop, salvage yard, backhoe ser-

Council Grants Family Bowl Liquor License

Thief River Falls city council approved issuance of an on sale liquor license for the Family Bowl at their regular meeting held Monday night in council chambers at city auditorium.

That permit was issued to owner Tom Greelis on the condition that he meet requirements which include making certain improvements to his property. Some concern was expressed by council members over accessibility of liquor to minors, since the bowling alley is patronized by many young people. City attorney Robert Wurst rendered an opinion that the city ordinance would not allow Greelis to sell drinks outside a designated lounge area, but that customers would be able to purchase their drinks in the lounge and carry them out to the area of the bowling lanes. This was agreeable to Greelis, although he said he had hoped to have been allowed to have a waitress take orders in the lane area.

Alderman Ken Murphy claimed that Greelis had originally requested only that liquor be allowed in the lounge area, stating opposition to the

Bids Received For Projects In This Area

Apparent low bids totaling $3,246,952 for 19 highway maintenance projects in 19 counties were received by the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) on June 10.

Pennington county on TH 1, Schenkey, Inc., Middle River, submitted the apparent low bid at $27,480 for production and stockpiling of mineral aggregate for TH 1 at a pit four miles north of Dorothy. To begin July 18, work is to be completed within 30 working days.

In Roseau county on TH 89, Northern Paving, Inc., Crookston, was the apparent low bidder at $57,310 for bituminous surfacing on 2.1 miles of TH 89 between the south county line and a point 2.1 miles north. Work is scheduled to begin July 5 and to be completed within 10 working days.

Project Review Committee Hears Reports

Question uppermost in the minds of members of the local project review committee on hazardous waste disposal was answered last week when the group met in the Newfolden community center, according to Marcella Gonsorowski of Newfolden, a member of the committee.

Jerry Johnson of the Minnesota waste management board staff assured the committee members that they are free to submit suggestions and advice at any time in reference to the formulation of the final hazardous waste management plan, Mrs. Gonsorowski said.

Vance Wiseth, a member of the committee and chairman of the Northern Area Fact Finding committee, expressed concern as to how much of the verbal input was being relayed to the waste management board and the resultant value of such input. Earl Hougard questioned how much credence is placed on input from the project review committee.

Tom Johnson, assistant to chairman Robert Dunn of the waste management board, was in attendance at the meeting and presented an overview of the hazardous waste superfund bill.

Report on "Assurance of Security" is expected to be released later this month by the WMB, and that topic holds much concern for the Marshall county committee, Mrs. Gonsorowski said.

Next meeting will be held July 7 at Newfolden community center and local citizens are encouraged to attend and present suggestions and comments concerning the hazardous waste disposal issue.

School Board Revises Its Budget, Recalls Staff

Thief River Falls board of education revised its revenue and expenditure budgets for the current and coming year and recalled five certified staff members from unrequested leave at the regular meeting conducted Monday evening at the school district service center.

Following a report by business manager Harry Nelson, resolutions were approved adjusting the 1982-83 revenue budget from $7,269,694 to $7,282,314 and the expenditure budget from $7,712,450 to $7,669,724. The 1983-84 budget for K-12 was tentatively set at $7,907,058 for revenue and $7,556,107 for expenditure.

Tentative AVTI revenue budget for 1983-84 was set at $3,038,884 and expenditure budget at $3,038,388. Projected fund balance for June 30 of this year is expected to be approximately $121,000 and for June 30, 1984, to be approximately $401,000 in the K-12 budget.

School Board To Organize Friday Morning

Organizational meeting of the Thief River Falls board of education, at which new member Paul Bortnem will be installed, will be conducted Friday at 7 a.m. in the school district service center board room. Supt. Robert Block will preside pending election of a board chairman for the 1983-84 year.

Chairman elected will then conduct the remainder of the meeting, including election of vice chairman, clerk and treasurer. Setting of salaries will take place with current annual salaries including $3,000 for chairman, $2,800 for clerk, $2,600 for treasurer and $2,400 for directors.

Other routine year-opening business will be conducted, including designation of official depositories, newspaper, attorney, meeting time and place. Committee assignments to a dozen positions will be made by the chairman.

Other business at the organizational meeting will include a negotiations review by negotiator John Roszak and discussion of AVTI supervisor of student services position and quotations on purchase of a dishwasher.

Over $6,000 Is Raised Through Kidney Auction

Morris Howick, chairman of this year's Kidney Fund auction which was held at the Thief River Falls sports arena on June 18 and 19, reported that the total amount raised through that effort was $6,213.31.

"I'm pleased and grateful that so many people were willing to contribute articles to be sold, as well as the time, labor and money which helped to make the sale a success. I only wish I could thank each one individually," he said.

Howick noted that because the local branch of the Kidney Foundation has incorporated, much of the money raised would be kept in the local area to assist needy people who are victims of kidney disease. After the local branch of the kidney foundation has determined how much it will need to expend, the balance will be forwarded to the state foundation to help finance research, education and assistance programs.

Chamber And Jobs Inc. Hold Update Meet Tues.

Dave Strong

Roger Tunberg

Jim Winjum

Stan Upham

Update meeting co-sponsored by the Thief River Falls chamber of commerce and Jobs Incorporated attracted approximately 90 people to the Best Western inn of Thief River Falls Tuesday evening. Topic was the revised organization aimed at additional job creation in this community.

Stan Upham, president of the chamber of commerce, reviewed the work which led up to formation of a jobs stimulation plan. He noted that an ad hoc committee was formed of representatives from business, industry and public areas to meet, discuss needs and ideas and formulate the plan. Jim Winjum was selected to serve as chairman of the committee.

The plan developed called for a consolidation of effort by the chamber of commerce and Jobs Incorporated, headed by Ev Ault, with the executive vice president of the chamber of commerce, Jerry Sandstrom, to allocate 75 per cent of his time to work in the jobs recruitment area.

Annual budget established was for $81,150 and includes $34,150 from the chamber of commerce, $7,000 from Jobs Incorporated, $10,000 from the Thief River Falls board of education, and $15,000 each from the city of Thief River Falls and Pennington county. Funds are to be expended in salaries, related personnel expenses, surveys, solicitation of prospects, hiring of resource people or services, telephone, supplies and expenses incident to having prospects visit Thief River Falls.

Presentations were made to the governing bodies of all entities and support was given by all, Upham said. Funding granted was for the first half year of the program with continued funding in most cases contingent upon review and evaluation at the end of the six-month period.

Participants in the meeting Tuesday evening made comments relative to various viewpoints of the project, depending upon their involvement in it.

Dave Strong, part of the management group at Forsberg's, Inc., and a member of the ad hoc committee, discussed how his own company had been wooed by other communities. Watertown, SD, was one of the aggressive suitors, he said, emphasizing tax advantages of South Dakota business. Also seeking to attract business to its area with invitations and materials is the city of Brainerd. He showed promotional materials from both cities.

Ev Ault, chairman of Jobs Incorporated, said he was excited by the combined effort being made and happy to be a part of it. He expressed appreciation for public support received and encouraged continued private support through chamber of commerce and Jobs Incorporated participation.

Roger Tunberg, vice chairman of the ad hoc committee and of the chamber of commerce, noted that substantial changes would be necessary in operation of the chamber. With the executive vice president devoting much of his time to the new program, Tunberg said, committee chairmen and others in the chamber leadership will have to function with less organization and support from the professional staff.

Mayor Bob Carlson was called on for comments by Upham and responded by noting that Thief River Falls has never been a difficult place to raise money for worthwhile projects. Now that the funding has been granted, he said, the true test will be what can be accomplished with it. He pointed out the possibility of failure of the program, despite optimistic projections, and warned that the community should be ready for that possibility.

Harry Sjulson, chairman of the board of education for School District 564, commented on the support provided by the district. He said that funds came through the community education committee, which operates separately from the general fund. And he expressed the opinion that sometimes there are actions which must be taken in an attempt to improve community conditions.

Don Grabanski, member of the Pennington county board of commissioners from Thief River Falls, said he believed the new organization should take an active role in promotion of the community and area. "We who live here know what the community has to offer," he said, "but we don't do a good enough job of telling other people about it." He cited small towns which have gained recognition by organization and promotion of major events.

Jim Winjum, who chaired the ad hoc committee and has been asked to chair the continuing job development group, responded to questions from those in attendance. He noted that budget development was a "best guess" effort and that specific expenditures had not been determined. He also expressed the opinion that efforts should be underway immediately to get the program operating. Asked if July 1 would be an appropriate starting date, since funding was received on a half-year basis, he quipped, "Do you think we should wait that long?"

Lori Jorgensen Takes Part In Youth Seminar

Lori Jorgensen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jorgensen of Thief River Falls, participated in the sixth annual Minnesota youth leadership seminar June 17-19 at Macalester college in Saint Paul.

Selected by their high school principals, 163 high school sophomores attended the two-and-a-half day workshop on the American incentive system. The workshop, sponsored by the Saint Paul Jaycees, is organized by the Hugh O'Brian Youth foundation, established in 1958.

Lori wrote the following about her experience:

"We had panel discussions on these topics: 'The Media and Its Influence', 'Women in Business in the Eighties,' 'The Impact of More Computers at Home and in Business,' 'Making Ends Meet in a Slumping Economy,' 'Agriculture — A Victim of World Recession,' 'Opportunities, Advantages and disadvantages of a Small Business' and 'Leadership as Evidenced in the Armed Forces.' "

"Hugh O'Brian stopped in and surprised us and spoke to us about having self-respect and to go after our dreams and how freedom to choose is so important in our life styles," Lori said.

"We held a talent show, skits by our discussion groups and also a dance by Sound Entertainment which played rock, polkas and waltzes.

"All together it was an extremely busy and fun-filled weekend. I would like to see every high school sophomore experience what I did that weekend. My trip was sponsored by the Zehlians club, Kiawanis and Northern state bank.

idea of having it out where minors might be given access to it. Greelis noted that it would be a problem of management, noting that he had had no difficulties in controlling sales of beer. He also noted that many other bowling lanes in the state serve liquor on the lanes without serious problems.

Aldermen Bill Penning and Milan Borsheim noted that the bowling alley was an asset to the community, emphasizing that it was important for it to be able to compete with other lanes in the state when bidding for tournaments. Greelis noted that he would not have the lounge open when he had organized junior programs bowling on the lanes, with the lounge intended primarily to serve adult league bowlers on weeknights. Since the bowling alley does not serve the kind of food required to come under the heading of a restaurant license, minors will not be allowed to enter the lounge area, but Greelis noted that he would have a special area with games and entertainment for young people. The lounge will be completely enclosed within the present building, and will occupy approximately 1300 square feet, seating 85. Greelis noted that he had about five acres available for expansion if business warranted it in the future. Council noted that if he desired to change the ordinance in the future, so that he could serve liquor outside the lounge area, it would have to be brought to a referendum vote of the citizens.

Vote on approval of the license was six to two, with aldermen Ken Murphy and Don Goodrich voting against it.

Cliff Larson, local representative of the Minnesota department of transportation reported that bids had been opened on the Highway 59 improvement project. He noted that the low bid of $3,818,079, was about $100,000 under the engineer's estimate for the project. He commented that they were generally pleased with the bids, since all four of the bidders had good reputations for quality work. Second qualifying bid was $24,000 over the low bid. After formal review, the contract will be awarded, with pre-construction conferences scheduled in about two weeks.

Larson reported that difficulties being experienced by MnDOT in obtaining right of way for the frontage road project were primarily over an additional five feet of right of way which they were requesting for placement of signs and to prevent parked cars from overhanging the curb. Four or five property owners have objected, claiming that it will harm access or parking on their properties. He also reported that informational meetings would be held this fall to gather response to plans for the Third Street improvement project, between First Street and Atlantic Avenue. He noted that if no objections were raised at those meetings, hearings on the project would not be necessary.

In other business council:

— Authorized allocating funds from the mayor and council expense account, not to exceed $1,000, to be used by the Jaycees to purchase fireworks for a display during Summerfest activities;

— Referred a request from residents of the Sherwood Forest area to have improvements made to the "marina", to the park and recreation committee. Council members expressed reluctance to expend city funds to improve a "developer's scheme." Alderman Milan Borsheim stated that he was willing to turn his head if the residents wanted to expend their own money to deepen the channel;

— Heard that as of June 19, 302 cab rides had been given to senior citizens, at a cost to the city of $302, indicating that the subsidy program is being utilized. Program was established for a three month trial basis in an attempt to assist the cab service to compete with the bus lines;

— Heard that the liquor committee was considering purchase of the Consumers Coop building for use as a downtown liquor store location. No action was taken by either the committee or council;

— Heard that eight employees were eligible for the early retirement incentive program, which would pay them $10 for each month of full time employment;

— Heard that a total and permanent disability had been approved under the public employees retirement act for LeRoy Westerlund, former liquor store employee, effective May 14, 1983.

— Heard that bicyclists were being ticketed for violations of riding through stop signs and riding on the wrong side of the road.

Answers from the Bible by Pastor Don Peres

Q. Pastor Don, would you please explain from the Bible a serious question that I have. Does God really blot out people's name from the Book of Life? If He does, do they lose their salvation?

A. This is probably one of the most complex question that I have had to answer from the Bible. It is one that I have received several times and have avoided. It is one that cannot be answered adequately in just one new column.

The Bible teaches that the moment we believe on Jesus Christ with all our heart, repent of our sins, receive Christ into our hearts, and have been washed in the blood of Christ, that our names are written down in the Book of Life. Luke 10:20, Philippians 4:3, Revelation 20:11-15.

The Bible also mentions that people can have their name blotted out of the Book of Life for different reasons. I believe that if your name has been blotted out that you no longer have salvation.

In the book of Exodus, God warns the people about worshipping other Gods before him. The people had made a Golden Calf and started worshipping it instead of the Living God.

Exodus 32:33 says "and the Lord said unto Moses, whosoever hath sinned against me, him will I blot out of my book."

Psalms 69:28 says "Let them be blotted out of the book of the Living, and not be written with the righteous."

Revelation 3:5 says "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the Book of Life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before His angels."

Revelation 22:19 says "and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the Book of Life, and out of the Holy City, and from the things which are written in this book."

The words blot out means to erase or wipe clean. The allusion here is to erasing ink from a parchment by a fluid as the muriatic acid, or erasing oriential inks of burnt ivory, cork, and gum water by a wet sponge. No trace of the writing can be seen at all afterwards.

My advice concerning the blotting out of names from the Book of Life is, keep loving God with all your heart, be faith to His Word in Bible study and in obedience to His word, love your fellowman as Christ would love him, and keep sharing Christ with those who don't know him. Then you won't have anything to worry about.

If you have any questions that you would like to have answered from the Bible, please write: Pastor Don Peres, Box 129, Thief River Falls, MN 56701.

Hit-Run Driver Faces Harsher Penalties Now

Hit-and-run accidents continue to be a problem in Minnesota according to the Minnesota department of public safety.

In 1982, nearly 10 per cent (8,748) of the accidents which occurred involved a vehicle which left the scene of the accident. Unfortunately, this is especially evident when a pedestrian is also involved. Of the 10 fatal hit-and-run accidents, nine resulted in death for a pedestrian.

Not surprisingly, many of the hit-and-run accidents occur at night. Over 35 per cent of the hit-and-run accidents happened between 9 p.m. and 3 a.m.

In an attempt to deal with the problem, the Minnesota legislature recently passed legislation which requires that hit-and-run drivers who flee from a fatal or injury-causing accident face felony penalties of up to five years and-or a $5,000 fine when a death results and up to three years in jail and-or $3,000 fine where an injury occurred.

Former Addie Seidel Prints New Cookbook

Addie Gonshorowski of Eugene, OR, the former Addie Seidel of this area, has published a book entitled "Sugar-Less Recipes," according to a feature article which appeared recently in the "Portland Oregonian" newspaper.

Mrs. Gonshorowski is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Seidel. Seidel was Pennington county highway engineer for many years. The self-published book is circulated through Ad-Dee Publishers, Inc., Drawer 5426-SL83, Eugene, OR 97405.

Most of the sweetness in recipes in the book comes from the use of fresh, canned or dried fruits or from aspartame, a protein-based non-saccharin sweetener. Each recipe includes a note on food exchanges as used by the American Diabetic association.

One Minnesota farmer generates over $65,000 a year in cash receipts from his farm production. Most of it will be spent in Minnesota to cover his expenses.

200 Attend Inter-County Annual Meet

About 200 people attended Inter-County community council's 18th annual meeting on June 15 at the Oklee high school auditorium. People came from the four counties served by Inter-County including Red Lake, Pennington, Clearwater and Polk with the largest representation from Clearwater county. Many in the audience had served as volunteers for one or more of Inter-County's programs.

Ruth Ann Wefald, assistant commissioner of the Minnesota department of economic security, brought a welcome and commendation for Inter-County's work from Governor Perpich and Commissioner Beerhalter. She also announced that the Minnesota legislature had transferred additional funds to the community services block grant, which supports several programs at Inter-County and that administrative funds will now become available for the emergency food and shelter program and the surplus commodity distribution.

"This agency does the best job of delivering services to low income persons of all the CAPs in the state," was part of the message that Steve Watson, director of the Minnesota CAP directors association, brought to the annual meeting.

Watson also gave an overview of the work of the CAP association which was instrumental in increased core funding for Minnesota community action agencies. The legislature in the last session appropriated funds which will provide for the first real increase in core administrative funding for Inter-County (and other Minnesota CAPs) since 1976.

Watson also announced that Inter-County should be eligible to operate programs which will become available under the newly enacted state emergency jobs bill. The bill, the first of its kind in the country, will cost about $70 million and will provide for 14,000 six-month jobs throughout the state.

Dr. Alex Easton, president of Northland community college in Thief River Falls, was guest speaker for the evening and spoke of his past experience with community action agencies. He described our society as one which is benevolent and compassionate as witnessed by the promptness with which our country responds to world disasters. He warned of the subtle dangers which threaten our benevolent natures and the importance of the continuation of our compassionate society which depends on maintaining an attitude of concern for one another.

Humanitarian award was given to past board member and chairman, Arne Higdem, by Roy Jorgenson, Inter-County executive director, and Lloyd Wold, present chairman of the board. Jorgenson praised Higdem for his open-minded cooperation and support over two terms as chairman of the board and 10 years as a board member. Jorgensen acknowledged his hard work, especially in Clearwater county, and praised his courage in speaking his mind on issues that concerned the operation of Inter County.

EARLY HISTORY of the city of St. Hilaire was tied closely to the sawmill operated there. The mill was built in 1897 and closed in 1906 due to a lack of timber in the nearby area. Population of the city swelled from 300 in 1895 to 840 in 1900 and 911 in 1905. The mill pond on the Red Lake river is shown in this photo which is printed on one of the souvenir post cards being sold by the St. Hilaire centennial committee. The centennial will be observed Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Gas Demand Down Despite Tourist Season

Despite the onset of vacation season, demand for gasoline is down one to two per cent compared with last summer. Higher auto efficiency and more careful trip planning are the main reasons for slow gasoline sales, according to Minnesota AAA.

Retailers' inventories are not being depleted as quickly as expected during this peak driving season, therefore competition for customers is intensifying. Brian Ettesvold, Minnesota Service Station association president, reports that many stations around the state are selling self-service regular below cost to attract business.

Minnesota AAA's July 4 fuel survey found that the gap between full-service and self-service prices has widened substantially during the past month, reflecting the continuing trend of greater demand for self-service gasoline.

According to the survey of 82 service stations, current average full-service prices in Minnesota are as follows with northern Minnesota comparative figures in parentheses: Regular, 1.377 ($1.353); unleaded, $1.434 ($1.401); premium, $1.605 ($1.509); unleaded premium, $1.580 (no price listed); and diesel, $1.275 ($1.270).

Average self-service prices are: regular, $1.233 ($1.298); unleaded, $1.289 ($1.359); premium, $1.376 ($1.449); unleaded premium, $1.366 (no price listed); and diesel, $1.172 ($1.273). (All prices reported are cash prices per gallon after discounts.)

Approximately half of the stations surveyed will be closed Sunday, July 3, and on Monday, July 4, AAA reports.

Task Force To Study Juvenile Code Change

Minnesota juvenile justice advisory committee (JJAC) proposes to fund a Minnesota task force on juvenile code recodification. The task force will study the Minnesota juvenile code and its relationship to the child welfare laws, and will make recommendations to the 1985 legislature on recodifying the juvenile code.

Appointments to the task force will be made by the director of the state planning agency. The deadline for application is July 15.

Application forms and further information may be obtained by contacting: Criminal Justice Program, Office of Local Government, Department of Energy, Planning and Development, 100 Hanover Building, 480 Cedar Street, St. Paul, Minnesota 55101. Telephone number is (612) 296-3133.

Higher Gas Taxes Cause Ripple Effect

Although inflation has come down markedly in the last year — and may be held as low as 3.3 per cent in 1983 — a recent report reflecting higher gasoline taxes serves to illustrate its explosive impact.

Public was hit first by higher prices at the gasoline pumps, in this instance, and later on taxpayers will be hit in their pocketbooks.

According to the U.S. chamber of commerce, roughly a third of the 0.6 per cent rise in consumer prices in April was due to the five-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline prices which went into effect April 1.

In its analysis, the chamber found that the tax increase — and rise in prices — will raise the cost of federal entitlement programs by an estimated $500 million a year, as a result of automatic indexing provisions. These major spending programs, including social security and federal pensions, are indexed to rise with the rate of inflation, or the increases in the consumer price index (CPI).

Thus, the ripple effect of the gasoline tax increase led to higher inflation, higher government expenditures and to a higher deficit. The higher deficit, in turn, has resulted in persistent calls in Congress for even higher taxes to lower the deficit.

Urges Repeal Of Law Denying Student Aids

Senator Dave Durenberger has urged the Senate to give consideration "at the earliest possible opportunity" to his legislation that would repeal a 1982 law denying federal student assistance to youths who fail to register for selective service.

Even though a federal district court in Minnesota last week issued a permanent injunction against implementing the law, Durenberger said his legislation, which he introduced in January, was needed because of a possible government appeal of the court ruling.

Durenberger, in a letter to his Senate colleagues, said, "If the solicitor general should appeal (the) ruling, we are likely to keep colleges, universities and students in limbo for a year or more. I'm convinced that (the) ruling will be upheld, and I consider it pointless to spend time and money appealing the inevitable.

"I intend to seek adoption of my bill at the earliest possible opportunity — perhaps as an admendment to the FY 1984 defense authorizations bill," Durenberger said. The defense bill could come to the Senate for consideration as early as mid-July.

Durenberger wrote his colleagues that he supports registration, but opposes the denial of student assistance.

"Registration is a legal as well as a moral duty. Those who choose not to meet that duty should be prosecuted and, if convicted, sentenced." However, he said that the penalties of up to five years in jail and a $10,000 fine were sufficiently severe.

In addition, Durenberger said the link between student assistance and compliance with the registration law puts college administrators in a "de facto police role," it discriminates against lower- and middle-income students since wealthy students do not need federal assistance and it establishes guilt and punishment without a trial.

In commenting on Judge Donald Alsop's decision, Durenberger siad that "a respected federal jurist has stated in no uncertain terms that (Congress') action was more than simply impractical; it was unconstitutional as well."

Durenberger's bill was introduced on the first day of the 98th Congress and referred to the committee on labor and human resources. No hearings have been held on the proposed legislation.

Algae Growth Could Be Toxic

Minnesota is blessed with thousands of lakes that provide recreation, employment, and attractive sites for homes and cabins. But lakes are also home to a certain group of plants — algae — that can occasionally interfere with our enjoyment of these resources, according to the Minnesota pollution control agency (MPCA).

Algae occur in virtually all lakes in Minnesota, but their numbers or concentrations can vary considerably from lake to lake. Microscopic, free-floating plants, algae are most abundant during warm weather in water that is rich in nutrients (primarily phosphorus and nitrogen, which fertilize aquatic plants as they do crops and lawns). Under certain environmental conditions, algae can multiply very rapidly — particularly blue-green algae, some of which can become toxic to pets and livestock drinking water from the lake.

Special characteristics of blue-green algae allow them to grow and multiply faster than other types of algae. Many types of blue-green algae are able to use nitrogen from the air as well as from the water, which gives them an advantage over other types of algae which depend on nitrogen in the water. Blue-green algae can use sunlight more efficiently at lower levels than most algae.

Unlike other algae, blue-green algae have gas vacuoles (pockets of gas) which enable them to float. The gas vacuoles allow the blue-green algae to rise above other algae and out-compete them for sunlight. In nutrient-rich lakes, blue-green algae can become so abundant that they completely dominate the other free-floating plants in a lake and produce a dramatic change in the appearance of the water, causing an "algae bloom."

In an algae bloom, a lake becomes much less transparent, has a green or blue-green color and often has a strong odor as the algae accumulate in large floating mats and begin to decompose. This "pea soup" condition can be unpleasant for those who live near the lake, and occasionally these blue-green algae blooms can become toxic.

Toxic algae blooms are strongly influenced by the wind. Sometimes, the wind can completely dissipate a toxic bloom in just a day or so. But at other times, the wind can increase the danger of a toxic bloom by blowing clumps of the floating algae mats toward the downwind shore of a lake. Most problems occur when the algae are clumped around the shoreline and livestock, pets and wildlife drink the water. Toxic effects in animals can occur only when they ingest the algae-laden water.

Degree to which an animal is affected depends upon several factors: the amount of water ingested by the animal, body size, the amount of food in the animal's stomach, sensitivity of the species and individual animal, and the type and amount of toxin present in the bloom. An animal that has ingested toxins from an algae bloom can show a variety of symptoms ranging from nausea and skin irritation to severe disorders involving the circulatory, nervous, and digestive systems, and severe skin lesions. The animal may suffer convulsions and die. Sporadic cases of animal exposure have been documented in Minnesota since 1882, with most incidents being reported in the southern part of the state.

Humans are seldom seriously affected because the unpleasant look and odor of water associated with a blue-green algae bloom tends to make them avoid it. However, while no human deaths have been caused by freshwater blue-green algae blooms, digestive disorders, skin irritation, and allergy-like reactions have been reported.

Not all blue-green algae blooms are toxic; in fact, the bast majority of them are not. But because they can occur so quickly and can vary so much in toxicity and frequency, all blue-green blooms are potentially dangerous. They cannot be accurately predicted, and laboratory tests are too expensive and time consuming to be useful in identifying them. A blue-green algae bloom can change from non-toxic to toxic or vice versa without a significant change in appearance.

Since toxic blooms are unpredictable, it is best to avoid any algae scum with a thick, green or blue-green, paint-like appearance. Body contact recreation (swimming, waterskiing, etc.) should be suspended, and livestock and pets should be temporarily provided with a different water source. Often the bloom can be avoided by simply moving to another location on the lake.

If you suspect an animal has been affected by an algae bloom, you should contact your veterinarian as quickly as possible. Some of the toxins that can form in a bloom have the ability to kill in an hour or less while some may take up to 24 hours to take effect. A physician should be consulted if you suspect a person has been exposed to a toxic bloom.

According to the MPCA, blue-green algae blooms may be reduced by controlling phosphorus and pesticides that may enter a lake. Phosphorus, an essential nutrient for algae growth, may be added to a lake by rainwater runoff carrying farm and lawn fertilizers and by wastewater from improperly operating septic systems. Rain may also wash pesticides from fields, gardens and lawns into lakes, killing microorganisms that help reduce algae populations. Limiting runoff that carries nutrients and pesticides and repairing malfunctioning septic systems may reduce the chances of algae blooms occuring, the MPCA said.

For more information on toxic algae, call the MPCA central office in Roseville at (612) 296-7373 or the regional office at Detroit Lakes, (218) 847-1519.

Entended Pay For Jobless Ends In Minn.

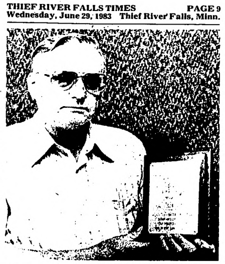
Week ending June 18 was the last week for which extended unemployment benefits could be paid in Minnesota, assistant commissioner Eugene Sampson said recently.

Approximately 22,000 Minnesotans have been collecting benefits under the program which provided up to 13 additional weeks of benefits to persons who had exhausted their regular benefits.

More than $30 million in extended benefits have been paid since the program went into effect on March 20. Extended benefits are paid when the unemployment in the state reaches a designated level and are discontinued when the unemployment rate falls below the designated level.

Persons who were collecting extended benefits on June 18, may be eligible for federal supplemental compensation entitlement.

Federal supplemental compensation program amended on April 1, tied the maximum amount payable in each state to that state's insured unemployment rate (IUR). The maximum amount payable in Minnesota has been reduced from twelve (12) weeks in April when the IUR exceeded five per cent to eight weeks, effective June 19, due to a drop in the IUR to less than four per cent.



MERIT AWARD presented by the Minnesota chapter of the American Society for Public Administration in 1983 went to Ervin Strandquist of rural Newfolden. Strandquist has been active for many years in the Minnesota Association of Township officers and was the first chairman of the Northwest Regional Development council, also serving in that capacity for a number of years. The "Lloyd Short Award for Distinguished Service" was presented at the chapter's annual dinner meeting in St. Louis Park. Previous winners of the award in recent years included such familiar names as Donald Fraser, George Latimer, Martin Sabo and Robert Herbst.

Gov. Announces Help Hotline For Jobless

Governor Rudy Perpich announced a new statewide telephone information service for Minnesota's long-range unemployed recently at a 9 a.m. news conference at the state capitol.

Governor Perpich said a new "Help Hotline" will supplement, but not replace, local information-referral services which provide information on emergency food and shelter.

New hotline, 1-800-435-help, is designed to provide information for localities without information-referral services. Calls to the "Help Hotline" from counties served by information-referral programs will be routed to that local resource.

Help Hotline was introduced in Duluth-Iron Range-Arrowhead counties, June 1, and is provided under a grant by Northwestern Bell, which is also supporting initial staffing of the service by youth emergency services (YES), a non-profit telephone counseling service in Minneapolis.

During his announcement today, Governor Perpich stressed the hotline's role as a back-up to the local information-referral services. Efforts to make the public aware of the hotline will emphasize the role and identity of these local resources.

"The Help Hotline was set up to help meet the information needs of those who may not know about food and shelter resources that are available in Minnesota — especially those who have suddenly become unemployed and are frustrated and frightened," said Perpich. "It's for those who aren't used to being poor, who don't know that there's help out there."

Help Hotline was established through a joint venture of the governor's task force on emergency food and shelter, youth emergency services and Northwestern Bell.

Hog Producer Inventories At High Levels

Minnesota hog producers reported inventories of 4,470,000 hogs on June 1, 1983, up 18 per cent from last year and a seven per cent gain from the last quarter, according to the Minnesota agricultural statistics service.

Inventories in the 10 major states (which account for about 79 per cent of the U.S. inventory) totaled 45.3 million head, up 10 per cent from last year and up eight per cent from the March 1 quarter. The total U.S. inventory gained 11 per cent from last year to 57.5 million head.

The March-May pig crop totaled 2,131,000 head in Minnesota (up 23 per cent from last year) and 21.1 million head in the 10 states (up 17 per cent). The total U.S. March-May pig crop at 26.5 million head was up 17 per cent.

The 275,000 sows that farrowed in Minnesota in March-May averaged 7.75 pigs per litter versus 7.55 last year. Sows that farrowed in the 10 states totaled 2.77 million and pigs per litter at 7.61 surpassed the previous year's average of 7.50. The U.S. March-May farrowings at 3.48 million were up 15 per cent.

Hog producers say they'll continue to increase farrowings for the next two quarters. Minnesota producers plan a four per cent increase in June-August and a two per cent increase in September-November.

Public Opinion Of Tax Index Is Surveyed

Indexing of income tax rates for inflation is a broad, sweeping tax principle which will affect millions of U.S. taxpayers. Scheduled to go into effect on January 1, 1985, indexing will prevent bracket creep, which pushes taxpayers into higher tax brackets although their real income stays the same or actually falls off.

Few tax laws or regulations would directly affect a larger proportion of the nation's workforce.

In a recent opinion survey 66 per cent of the public said either that they had not read or heard of tax indexing or didn't know if they had. And, once informed, 31 per cent were unable to express an opinion.

However, when advised about tax indexing and how it would end bracket creep, the public strongly favored indexing, according to a U.S. chamber survey. Interviewers talked with 1,509 persons selected as a national scientific sample.

After reading a description of the change in the law, which is part of the economic recovery tax act in 1981, respondents were asked if they think indexing should be repealed or allowed to go into effect.

Of all respondents, 80 per cent felt it should be repealed, 49 per cent believed it should go into effect and 31 per cent did not know.

Both indexing and the third year of tax cuts enacted in the 1981 law are under attack in the Capital from some members of Congress who want to raise taxes, rather than control spending, as the way to reduce the size of federal budget deficits. The third-year tax cut of 10 per cent is scheduled to go into effect July 1.

The U.S. chamber of commerce warns that major tax increases at this time would slow down or abort the economic recovery already under way.

The individual taxpayers, as well as the business community, are left hanging in doubt over the future course and state of the economy.

Melgaard Is Recipient Of Scholarship

Nancy Melgaard, a 1983 graduate of Lincoln high school, has been awarded a scholarship from the Norwest scholarship program. Nancy is the daughter of Joan Stroble, an employee of Norwest bank in Thief River Falls.

Applicants were measured on their educational performance and leadership ability. Criteria included grade point average, personal and school references, participation in school and community activities and work experience.

Nancy says she plans to use her scholarship this fall when she starts at Concordia college in Moorhead. A member of the National Honor society, she graduated at the top of her class and has participated in her high school's yearbook staff and school newspaper staff.

Nancy is also active in Trinity Lutheran church youth league and has taught Bible school there. She has worked part-time at the Best Western for the past three years.

SCHOLARSHIP from Norwest Banks was presented to Nancy Melgaard of Thief River Falls by Roger Reuter, president of the Thief River Falls bank. Nancy will be a freshman at Concordia college in Moorhead next fall.

Solems Returns From Florida

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem left Sunday afternoon, June 12 for Rothsay where they were overnight guests at the Rev. Kermit Solem home. It was Alfred's and Rebecca's wedding anniversary so their ten year old grandson Aaron had baked a chocolate cake, granddaughter Cassy had drawn a sheet of greetings, and for a table centerprice the children had picked a bouquet of lilacs, the flowers used at the wedding 48 years ago. Monday forenoon Kermit and Bonnie Solem and their six children and Alfred and Rebecca Solem left by car for Minneapolis, where they were all supper guests at the home of Morris and Adeline Halvorson. The Kermit Solem family stayed overnight at the Friendship Inn motel and the grandparents at the Halvorson home. Wednesday morning at 8:30 they all boarded a plane for Orlando, Florida, where they arrived at 12:30 EST, a flight of three hours. They were met at the airport by Gene and Wanda Stillman, friends of Kermit's and Bonnie's, who had arranged for a large motor home to be the home for the vacationers until June 23. The Solems all stayed at the Stillman home on Merritt Island near Cocoa Beach the first night. The next morning they left for the Kissimmee campgrounds at Kissimmee, where they camped for three days while visiting Disney World and Epcot, both of which were fantastic. A highlight was the lighted parade at 11 o'clock one evening. Saturday, June 18 all left camp early for Jacksonville in order to get there by noon for the dinner invitation at the home of Bonnie's uncle and aunt, Jack and Marlene Hodgson, but ran into a two-lane traffic jam which delayed them 2½ hours. They all attended the Richard Maxwell-Shirley Hodgson wedding at 4 o'clock at the Faith Lutheran church in Jacksonville, with the reception following at which Bonnie cut the cake. The Solems were all overnight guests at the Hodgson home. Sunday morning they all attended services at the Faith Lutheran church in the forenoon and spent the afternoon at the Jax Beach at Jacksonville, where they had their supper sitting on the sand at the beach. They were all overnight guests at the Hodgson home. Monday morning Kermit, accompanied by his parents, drove to Port Charlotte, where they spent seven hours visiting Alfred's sister, Ruth Lee. She had warned them that they would meet a "decrepid old lady" but that was not the case. Ruth who will be remembered by many from our area, is 82 years old, looks good and feels good. She lives in a condominium. The rest of the Solems and the Hodgsons, 13 in all, spent the day at Silver Spring, where they enjoyed the jungle boat ride and the glass bottom boat ride. The next day, Tuesday, was spent at St. Augustine, where they toured the oldest fort in the United States. This Spanish fort, begun in 1672, stood firm against English attacks and helped Spain to hold Florida for many years. During the American Revolution it was a British stronghold. Later it became a U.S. military prison. After touring this fort they went to Marineland, where they enjoyed the dolphin show and underwent scenery, and later were overnight campers at the Ocean Village campground at Ormand Beach. Wednesday was spent at Daytona Beach, a drive though the city of Canaveral and then on to the home of Gene and Wanda Stillman, where all spent the night. Thursday, June 23 the Solems together with Gene and Wanda and Gene's aunt, Mrs. Mary McConnell of Minneapolis toured the Kennedy Space center, enjoyed dinner at a restaurant, and then drove to Orlando to board the plane for Minneapolis at 3 EST, arriving at 6 CST. They were met at the airport by William Halvorson of Bloomington, spent a few minutes at his home and then the Solems went on to Rothsay. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Solem returned to their home Friday. They reported sunny weather most of the time, with intermitten, heavy showers of rain and some hot days, but had air conditioning in the trailer home. It was an enjoyable, interesting, educational trip to be long remembered.

Friday evening Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Larson attended her 40th Lincoln high school class reunion at the Travelers Host motel in Thief River Falls. Harryet made and served the punch. Saturday afternoon was a bus tour of the city and in the evening a banquet was enjoyed at the Elk's club. Harryet was in charge of the guest book.

Contrasting Tournaments

While things were running smoothly over the weekend in the eight-team, three-day Thief River Falls American Legion baseball tournament, won by host Thief River Falls with a 5-1 championship game victory over Warroad, it didn't go as well in the fourth annual Doug Oman invitational in Crookston when a dispute with an umpire left the championship game deadlocked 1-1.

It didn't go well at all, reported Lori Mateer of the Crookston Times. Right off the bat, Park Rapids showed up nearly two hours past game time Saturday.

Then after Crookston beat Park Rapids 8-4 and Wadena knocked off Fertile, the Crookston-Wadena championship went into the books as a 1-1 draw when Wadena coach Jerry Tucker pulled his players off the field with one out in the top of the ninth inning.

Tucker claimed that home plate umpire Bob Baab was intimidating his players in the dugout and said he "wasn't going to have anyone do that. You didn't give the other team any warning, you just gave my players the warning," he told Baab in a face-to-face confrontation. Baab had just thrown Wadena catcher John Peipkorn out of the game.

With the tie, Crookston goes to 5-5-1 for the year. Lefthander Craig Stahlecker had a three-hit, 17-strikeout performance going when the title game ended abruptly. Crookston visits Moorhead tonight (Wednesday) in a Ninth District Class AA clash.

Miscellaneous

+ Thief River Falls' Scott Sabo, the University of Wisconsin hockey-baseball player, is pitching this summer as a member of the Crookston Reds amateur baseball team. He was the losing pitcher Friday in a 2-1 setback to Moorhead. He allowed just three hits and struck out eight, but a walk and a wild pitch accounted for one Moorhead run and a triple and a firlder's choice plated the winning run.

TO AMUSE fans and to display his special talents, Eddie Feigner will undoubtedly pitch blindfolded at one point tonight (Wednesday) when "The King and His Court" four-man softball team takes on the Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league all-stars in an 8 p.m. exhibition game on the fairgrounds fast pitch diamond. Providing protection for Feigner during his blindfold routine in the unlikely event someone should make contact with his delivery, is first baseman Gary Ward. Thief River Falls fast pitch softball oldtimers game starts tonight's activity at 7 p.m.

Eddie Feigner Game Scheduled Tonight

A 21-player Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league all-star team roster will be matched against Eddie Feigner, "The King & His Court," world-famous four-man softball team tonight (Wednesday) in an 8 p.m. exhibition game at the fairgrounds fast pitch softball diamond.

Feigner, who is in his 38th successive season on the road displaying his fast ball that was once clocked at 104-miles-per-hour and an assortment of some 30 different pitches, is backed by teammates Dave Barnett, a shortstop with major league baseball experience who is called one of the fastest softball players in the game; first baseman Gary Ward, an on-the-field comic; and catcher Eddie Feigner, Jr., a versatile, multi-talented performer who has been touring with his father for 22 years.

Thief River Falls fast pitch softball league all-stars scheduled to face Feigner include Jeff Hendrickson, Jeff Tunberg, Tim Erickson and Randy Dallmann of Popplers; Howard Dalager, Paul Walker, Nick Drees, Mike Drury and Mark DuChamp of Schmidts-Coke; Al Melvie and Rick Kofstad of Melvies; Ron Ostby, Bruce Johnson, Darrell Stromlund, Roger Cota, Al Erickson, Tom Neibauer, Mike Kvarnlov and Larry Coltom of Neibauer's; Tony Johnson and Gordy Peterson of United Satellite Systems.

Feigner, though, is obviously the star of the show. You don't see his name in newspaper headlines and the world isn't keeping track of his strike-outs like they are with major-leaguers Nolan Ryan and Steve Carlton. But to the men and women who done those fancy uniforms and populate the sandlots in commercial softball leagues, his name is magic. He's the hero of the working stiffs, it has been reported.

"We're sort of like the Harlem Globetrotters," Feigner says in a news release preceding his visit. He's one of the last of the great American road shows.

He's generally recognized as the greatest softball pitcher of all-time. The speed is the biggest attraction. There was a time when an Eddie Feigner pitch was clocked at 104 miles-per-hour.

"I threw that a long time ago," he confessed. "I'm down in the 90's now, which is still faster than anyone can throw.

And he pitches 225 complete games in a six-month tour each season, which started when he chose softball over baseball in the post-depression era of the 1940's for economic reasons.

"The ball player wasn't making all that much, and if you could throw a softball, you could get a good job with a company and the boss sometimes would slip you 20 bucks extra," he says in his media kit.

Tickets at the gate tonight will be priced at $3 for students, $4 for adults and a $9 family ticket will be offered.

TRF Beats Bemidji 3-1, Hallock 6-3 . . .

Legion Extends Winning Streak To Five Games

Thief River Falls American Legion baseball team stretched its winning streak to five games with back-to-back wins over Bemidji and Hallock to start a week that will include 7 p.m. Northwest League games Thursday at East Grand Forks and Friday at home against Karlstad, along with a weekend invitational tournament appearance at Winnipeg.

Playing at Bemidji Monday, Thief River Falls came home a 3-1 winner. Playing at home Tuesday, Thief River Falls was a 6-3 Northwest League winner over Hallock.

Thief River Falls, now 10-4, last lost by a 7-1 margin to East Grand Forks a week ago.

Kerry Wollin pitched a three-hitter Monday as Thief River Falls beat Bemidji 3-1.

Wollin walked four and struck out seven in his second consecutive strong outing. Last Thursday he pitched five nearly perfect innings against East Grand Forks before tiring in his first start in three weeks and would up losing a 7-1 decision. This time he went the full seven in strong fashion, limiting Bemidji to a seventh inning single over the final five frames.

Thief River Falls' offense, stymied for three 1-2-3 innings, did its damage in the fourth when Ryan Drees collected a one-one single and Wollin drew a two-out walk. Kirk Jenson came through with an RBI single, moving Wollin to third. Thief River Falls then executed a successful double steal for the second run of the inning, with Jenson scoring on a single by Al Ness.

Hallock 3

First six Thief River Falls batters reached base and scored in the first inning Tuesday, and that was the extent of the offense for the night in a lackluster 6-3 victory over visiting Hallock.

Long Thief River Falls first inning included a walk issued to Tim Nyland, a bloop single to left by Brian Kemnitz, a two-run triple to the center field fence by Tim Bottem, an RBI bloop single off shortstop Butch Kraska's glove by Kerry Wollin and a walk given to Kirk Jenson before Hallock starting pitcher Rich Anderson was lifted without retiring a single batter.

It wasn't much better for relief pitcher Loren Younggren, whose first two pitches were RBI singles by Al Ness and Gary Cornell. A ground-out by Dean Brandon brought home the final run of the inning.

Rest of the night was anticlimatic. Thief River Falls went the next four innings without a base hit, while Hallock scored a pair of unearned runs in the third and tacked on another run in the fourth to make the game appear to be a lot closer than it really was.

In the Hallock third, Jessie Strege reached base on an error and scored when Darren Fredrickson bounced a ground ball single into right field with two out and went all the way to third on the play when the ball got by outfielder Brian Kemnitz. Kraska walked and a delayed double steal worked for a run.

Hallock remained winless at 0-5.

Costs Increase

As a result of legislative action, the cost of all permits issued by the Department of Natural Resources to control aquatic vegetation or nuisance organisms will be doubled on July 1.

Information on permit requirements and the new charges can be obtained by contacting the DNR Ecological Services Section, Box 25, Centennial Building, St. Paul, MN 55155; telephone 612-296-2835.

Information can also be obtained from regional headquarters and area fisheries stations throughout the state.

Revenue generated by the fees is used to help pay the cost of issuing the permits and the inspection of larger treatment areas by DNR personnel.

Native Prairie Lands

Owners of "native prairie lands" in Minnesota who wish to exempt such lands from property taxes must make application by July 15, according to the departments of natural resources and revenue.

Normally, said officials, the deadline is June 1 but for this year only the deadline has been extended. Application forms are available at the offices of county assessors.

Law exempting native prairie lands from taxes was passed by the Minnesota legislature in 1980 with the objective of preserving the remainder of such lands in their natural state. The law also provides that as long as the native prairie is maintained, credit will be received on the taxes paid on the balance of the property.

To be eligible, a person must own at least 10 acres of prairie (5 acre minimum in certain southern counties) which is dominated by native prairie plant species. The tract must not be in use as pasture and must not have been severely altered by plowing or spraying with herbicides.

Owner must also agree to preserve it in its natural state in order to continue receiving the tax credit.

If the prairie is plowed or otherwise severely altered (such as by grazing or massive application of herbicides) so that it no longer qualifies, the credit and tax exemption are cancelled.

Everyone benefits under the new program, state officials say. Landowners have part of their property taxes paid for them by the state; local governments get compensated for the tax base loss resulting from taking the prairie land off the taxrolls; and the state preserves one of its valuable natural resources.

Prairie land once covered most of western and southern Minnesota. The prairies were colorful and diverse grasslands composed of 100 to 200 or more species of native grasses and flowering plants. The DNR estimates that only one-tenth of one per cent of Minnesota's natural prairie remains today.

To find out more about what qualifies as native prairie, landowners can call the DNR's Natural Heritage Program. Toll-free number is 1-800-652-9747. For answers to questions about how the tax credit program works, people should call the Department of Revenue's Property Equalization Division, 612-296-5135.

FWS Investigates Bald Eagle Killings

Between 200 and 300 bald eagles were deliberately killed over the last three years on and near a national wildlife refuge in South Dakota to supply feathers, beaks, talons and bones for a lucrative black market in Native American artifacts, according to a major federal undercover operation concluded recently in eight states and announced by Secretary of the Interior James Watt.

Two-year investigation by special agents of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is expected to result in the charging of up to 50 individuals for their involvement in the killing or sale of 19 species of federally protected birds. Eighty federal and state conservation officers began contacting subjects and executing arrest or search warrants on June 15 in Florida, California, Utah, Oklahoma, Montana, Colorado, North Dakota and South Dakota. Large quantities of bird parts and finished craft items were seized.

Bird feathers and parts were used to manufacture "authentic" reproductions of Indian artifacts such as headdresses, rattles, jewelry, lances, hair ties, wing and peyote fans, whistles, and other ornaments. Items were then sold to collectors and hobbyists in other parts of the nation and in Europe, where interest in American Indian artifacts is strong.

Watt said that the investigation indicated that the "feather traffic" exists in most states. "Nationwide, it is thought to be directly responsible for the slaughter of at least 300 bald eagles every year along with other protected species. Last year's bicentennial celebration of the naming of the bald eagle as our nation's symbol brought news that the species is beginning to recover from a number of threats," Watt said. "That's why it is particularly saddening to learn of this wanton slaughter."

Killing of migratory birds and sale of their feathers and parts are prohibited under the migratory bird treaty act. Bald eagles and golden eagles are also protected under the endangered species act and the bald and golden eagle protection act.

In spite of the federal laws, birds continue to be killed because of the high prices that can be earned on the black market. War bonnets made with eagle feathers can sell for over $5,000, depending on the number of feathers used and the quality of the workmanship. Nest Box Study Shows 20 Per Cent Are Used

Department of natural resources, section of wildlife in Thief River Falls, recently completed a wood duck survey in the area and noted an increase of four per cent in nest box occupancy over last year.

Wildlife managers statewide attempt to measure changes in breeding populations of cavity-nesting waterfowl by checking nest boxes each spring. Jon Cole, area wildlife manager, mentioned that the majority of boxes checked in the Thief River Falls area were along the Thief and Red Lake rivers and were put up by private individuals.

The only species of duck using the boxes was the wood duck but as one moves further north and east from here, goldeneyes, hooded mergansers and common mergansers also use the man-made structures which simulate a cavity in a tree, the preferred nesting sites for these species.

All told, nine out of 44 or 20 per cent of the wood duck boxes and natural cavities checked had wood duck use, and eight others were used by squirrels, kestrels and yellow-shafted flickers.

Cole noted that several other boxes were observed that have not been included in the survey in the past. Many of them did not receive any use because of several reasons: (1) Box was located too low to water and provided easy access by predators; (2) No wood shavings were placed in the box to provide suitable nesting materials for the hen (wood ducks do not carry any materials into a cavity for their nests) (3) Openings were too small for easy entry or (4) Openings were too large and allowed easy entry for raccoons and (5) squirrels using box (wood duck boxes should be cleaned out just prior to nesting season and new shavings placed inside the box).

Should anyone desire additional information concerning the survey or construction plans for building a wood duck house for this beautiful resident of our wooded-riverine areas, feel free to contact Jon Cole at the auditorium or call 681-7789.

Confusion On Fish Limits Is Explained

Possession limit of fish, as shown in the 1983 Minnesota fishing regulations, means just that: You cannot possess in your boat, in your car, in your home, or anywhere else more than the limit listed.

Commissioner of Natural Resources Joseph Alexander says state conservation officers are telling him that some people have the idea that once fish are taken home and put in a freezer, those fish do not have to be counted in the possession limit.

He noted that the daily and possession limit on fish in Minnesota are the same — unlike ducks, for example, where the possession limit on a species may be double the daily limit.

And he stressed that as long as the fish taken are in the possession of the person taking them — whether in boat, home or car — those fish are included in the legal possession limit.

A person in possession of a legal limit of fish may not take any more until some or all of those fish are eaten, given away or otherwise legally disposed of, said Alexander.

"This is not a change in the law. The law has been the same for many years and has been enforced. I was surprised to hear that there is any confusion on the subject," said Alexander, a conservation officer for 14 years.

Minnesota is the third largest producer of butter, with Wisconsin ranked first and California ranked second.

DNR Announces New Rules For Shipping Fish

New regulations have been issued by the Department of Natural Resources concerning the transportation and shipment of fish by resident Minnesotans.

New rules went into effect June 29 and apply to all fish except those which have been labeled and prepared for transport or shipment by a licensed fish packer.

Under the new regulations, all fish that are being transported or shipped by residents must be packed and wrapped in such a way that they may be readily unpacked, unwrapped, separated, counted and examined.

Filleted fish shall not be reduced to more than two single fillets per fish.

All dressed fish and fillets must retain a patch of skin (other than on the belly) at least one inch square and with the scales intact. When so prepared, saugers shall be counted as walleyes.

All undressed fish must have heads, tails, fins and skin intact, but entrails, gills and scales may be removed.

Each frozen fish and its parts must be packaged and frozen separately from each other fish.

Fish having length limits may only be transported or shipped undressed, except that entrails and gills may be removed.

DNR Enforcement Director Fred Hammer said these requirements are "almost identical to neighboring Canadian provinces."

He noted that the laws regulating the transportation of fish by non-residents are much more restrictive.

"Legislative action will be required to change these non-resident requirements," said Hammer.

BSU Sponsors Fishing Contest On Sat., July 9

If you enjoy spending a Saturday afternoon on the lake with friends and family dangling a fishing line in the water Saturday, July 9, is your opportunity to indulge in the fun and participate in some competition at the same time.

Eighth annual fishing for fun contest, sponsored by the Bemidji State University, begins with registration at 8:10 a.m. with a seminar with the Lindy-Little Joe professional fishing team to follow.

Fishing for fun activities raise scholarship assistance for a number of BSU academic, athletic or activity scholarships.

There are three categories for anglers to register under: pro, children and amateur adult, with a walleye, northern and "other" division within each category. Prizes will be awarded to the top three fish in each division.

Fishing officially starts at noon and continues until 4 p.m. with a weigh-in of the day's catch scheduled for 4:30.

A dinner is held from 6 to 9 p.m. in Walnut Hall on the Bemidji State University campus and prizes will be distributed at that time.

Cost for the contest is $9 in advance, $12 the day of the event and $5 for children 12 years of age and under.

Tickets can be obtained at the BSU cashier's office or at local Bemidji bait and tackle stores. For more information contact Dale Ladig, Walnut Hall, Bemidji State University, Bemidji, MN 56601, telephone 218-755-3750.

Fish Resource Development Is Discussed

Congressman Arlan Stangeland gained "strong commitments" from key members of Canada's Parliament to work together in preserving both the fish resources and the tourism industry on the border lakes between Minnesota and Canada this week.

Stangeland met with his Canadian counterparts during the four-day meeting at Minaki, Ontario, on the Lake of the Woods. Discussions were held during the annual meeting of the Canada-U.S. Inter-Parliamentary group, of which Stangeland is a senior member.

"Both sides want to protect the tourism industry and to guarantee the preservation of fish in these waters," Stangeland said. "Both sides can contribute to those goals."

At the meeting, he presented the proposals of the Minnesota Border Lakes Coalition.

The plan included a Minnesota proposal to place portable fish hatcheries at Warroad, Baudette, International Falls, Crane Lake and Saginaw. Over 2.4 million walleye eggs would be hatched at each of these facilities.

In turn, Congressman Stangeland suggested that the Canadians build raising ponds to raise the fry hatched from these eggs. Existing international agreements already provide for such joint ventures.

Congressman Stangeland also offered to support an effort to re-stock the lakes with steelhead trout. Over $40,000 has been raised locally for the $80,000 project of buying 100,000 fish for the lakes.

In return, Canadian officials pledged to work to repeal proposed regulations of the Province of Ontario which threaten Minnesota's tourism and commercial fishing industries.

"Ontario wrote these regulations because it feared U.S. depletion of fish in these waters," Congressman Stangeland said. "If they can be reassured that we are working with their national government to replenish the fish resources, there will be no need to implement their regulations."

Stangeland said he will pursue these Canadian guarantees in coming weeks.

Fred Bear Has St. Cloud Visit This Summer

Fred Bear, world-famous outdoorsman and archer, will be the featured speaker at the Minnesota Bowhunting Expo, scheduled to be held July 16-17 at Heritage in St. Cloud.

A trade show, seminars and an outdoor shoot is being planned at the event, a profit organization designed to promote bowhunting and wildlife habitat.

Bear, now 81, is sometimes characterized as a modern day Robin Hood. But he actually pioneered the design of modern archery tackle and manufacturing processes to lift the ancient sport from the home work shop into a worldwide multi-million dollar business.

FWS Bald Eagle Investigation Is Still Continuing

religious ceremonies) can sell for as much as $800. In the highly secretive black market, a single eagle tail feather sells for $25 to $35 and an entire bald eagle carcass sells for $500 to $1,000.

Watt said that the focus of this investigation was to infiltrate the illegal trade in bird feathers and parts and identify the individuals who were killing and selling them. "It is shocking that so many birds continue to be killed, since there have been several other major federal crackdowns on illegal feather traffic that have received widespread news coverage in the last two years," Watt said. "Apparently some people still haven't gotten the message that we are serious about ending this business."

"We hope that this investigation will demonstrate once again our national commitment to protect the bald eagle and other migratory species."

Service enforcement officials note that this case differs from others in the past in that never before have such large numbers of whole carcasses been offered for sale, nor have so many individuals been charged with killing migratory birds at one time. During the investigations agents were sold 24 freshly killed bald and two golden eagle carcasses along with parts from a mix of 25 bald and golden ealges and hundreds of items made from other federally protected bird species including hawks, owls, songbirds, scissor-tailed flycatchers and anhingas.

Many of the scissor-tailed flycatchers were killed in Oklahoma where they are the state bird and a protected species. These birds are desired because of their two long tail feathers that are used to make decorative fans. Typically between 30 and 40 of these birds must be killed to make a single fan.

Majority of the bald eagles were killed on or adjacent to the Karl E. Mundt National Wildlife Refuge in South Dakota and Nebraska that was established in 1974 as a sanctuary for wintering and migrating eagles. Most were killed with baited traps or shot at night while roosting in trees.

"This investigation revealed that the illegal activity has existed for several years on or near the wildlife refuge," said Philip Hogen, U.S. Attorney for the State of South Dakota. "Federal grand juries in South Dakota have returned felony and misdemeanor indictments against 28 individual defendants charging from one to 14 counts of violation of the migratory bird treaty act, the endangered species act, and the bald and golden eagle protection act," Hogen stated. The majority of defendants will be prosecuted in South Dakota by Hogen.

Carol Dinkins, Assistant Attorney General for Land and Natural Resources, said: "The Department of Justice and the United States Attorneys throughout the country fully support criminal prosecution of cases resulting from this undercover investigation of illegal feather trade."

Under federal regulation, the Fish and Wildlife Service provides Native Americans with eagle feathers for religious uses only from a feather. repository in Pocatello, Idaho. These feathers are obtained from birds that are found dead from various accidents, natural causes, and human-related sources of mortality. Feathers may not be traded, bartered or sold. Fish and Wildlife Service has also provided Indians with waterfowl wings and tails and other wildlife parts obtained from hunting surveys and other sources. Possession of these items by Native Americans is legal, but sale and trade are not. Indian leaders have supported prosecution of these violations and have spoken out against the exploitation of their heritage and religion.

Penalties for each offense include: One year imprisonment and-or a $5,000 fine under the bald and golden eagle protection act; two years imprisonment and-or a $2,000 fine for felony sale under the migratory bird treaty act, and one year imprisonment and-or a $20,000 fine for violations of the endangered species act. Since 1981, 113 individuals have been convicted for violation of the bald and golden eagle protection act.

Undercover operation was coordinated by the Justice Department's Division of Land and Natural Resources (Wildlife Section) with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Washington Report

Sen. Dave Durenberger

Withholding is Stopped

There will be no withholding of taxes on your interest and dividend income!

While this is being written a conference committee of the Senate and House of Representatives is deciding the fate of income tax withholding on interest and dividends. Although the conference has not finished its work, Secretary of the Treasury Regan has delayed implementation of withholding from July 1 to August 1. I am certain that the conference committee will reach an agreement on a plan to stop interest and dividend withholding for good.

I'm writing this to share my thoughts with you on the whole process that Congress and the American people went through to stop withholding. More than 200,000 people wrote me to oppose interest and dividend withholding and thousands more talked with me as I've traveled through Minnesota during the last year.

Interest and dividend withholding was passed last summer as part of a much larger bill — the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act (TEFRA). Just as its name implies, the purpose of this bill was to start on the long road toward making our system more fair. The Finance Committee — where I serve — was required by last year's Budget Resolution to propose $99 billion in new revenue in exchange for $300 billion in spending reductions (which, by the way, never came about). I supported TEFRA because I believe it was a necessary first step toward a tax system that would treat all people more fairly.

When Minnesotans asked me why I supported a bill that included withholding I told them that this provision wasn't a new tax. About 85 per cent of the people pay the taxes they owe on interest and dividends. Withholding was a way to get at the other 15 per cent; it was a way to make them pay the same taxes that the other, 85 per cent already were paying.

The fact of the matter is, though, the 85 per cent didn't appreciate being treated like tax cheats, especially at a time when trust in government and the tax system is at a low point.

That brings me to the second part of the message that I heard from hundreds of thousands of Minnesotans: "my federal taxes already are too high." What really bothers people is that their taxes are too high compared to the person next door who has a tax shelter or some other tax loophole (there are hundreds in our system). In other words, taxes are too high for the honest person with normal deductions who works hard to get ahead, but can't keep from falling behind.

A magazine article by my friend Mark Olson, a Fergus Falls banker, really brought these points home to me. "The expectation of Americans that they can get ahead in this country is giving way to a constant struggle just to stay even," is what Mark said. And he concluded:

"In their reaction to withholding, the American people have been protesting increased government intervention they perceive to have eroded both the promise of the future and the belief that the decisions made in Washington are legitimate expressions of the popular will."

The lesson in all this is that the American people want a more fair tax system. They will pay their fair share if they know their neighbors are paying their fair shares. And, they want a more responsible and responsive government.

While Congress was dealing with this issue of withholding on interest and dividends, the American public was dealing with these other issues. It's time to put the issue of withholding behind us and get on to these other, more important, tasks.

Agencies Work Together For Public Safety

With the season of flash floods, severe thunderstorms and tornadoes upon us, the division of emergency services (DES) of the state department of public safety is working with the Minneapolis forecast office of the national weather service (NWS) to ensure the safety of all Minnesotans.

One successful cooperative venture is the Skywarn program. This is a statewide program where county civil defense directors train residents to identify and report severe weather, thus providing precious time for notifying and alerting the public of a danger. This happens when the NWS verifies information and triggers the activation (in the metro area) of the emergency broadcasting system (EBS) over television and radio stations. When meteorological signs indicate a severe thunderstorm or tornado is possible, a watch is broadcast. A specific warning is issued only after a severe storm or tornado is in progress and information will indicate type, location and direction of movement. If you are interested in participating in the Skywarm program as a first responder contact your local civil defense office.

In 1982, 14 tornadoes occurred in Minnesota. The first struck in Traverse county on May 10, the last occurred in Nobles county on October 5. There were no deaths and only one injury was reported, which happened during a July 5 tornado in Roseau county.

NWS also activates sirens in the metropolitan area for tornado warnings and keeps the emergency services duty officer informed 24-hours a day, of all weather-related situations which could involve emergency assistance to the public. Division of emergency services has the responsibility of coordinating all disaster relief efforts throughout the state.

"Through our regular involvement and mutual support, our two key operational agencies are continually working for everyone's safety," said Tom Motherway, DES director.

Agriculture represents about one-fifth of our gross national product.

Cole Porter Musical Set By MSV Group

Straw Hat Players of Moorhead state university continue their twentieth season of summer theatre entertainment with a production of "Red Hot and Cole: The Words and Music of Cole Porter. Christopher Kays, Thief River Falls is one of fourteen singers and dancers featured in this stylish and nostaligic musical revue.

"Red Hot and Cole" will open Wednesday, June 29 in the thrust stage in the center for the arts. There are performances Thursday through Saturday, June 30, July 1 and 2; as well as Wednesday through Saturday, July 6, 7, 8 and 9. Curtain time is 8:30 p.m. nightly. Tickets may be reserved by phone — the 24-hour reservation line is 236-2271 — or purchased at the door.

Cole Porter's fashionably saucy love ballads such as "Let's Misbehave," "Love for Sale," "Just One of Those Things" and "What Is This Thing Called Love?" have become classics of American popular music. With such Broadway hits as "Anything Goes," "Kiss Me Kate," "Can-Can" and "Silk Stockings" to his credit, Cole Porter is one of the most celebrated songwriters of all time.

"Red Hot and Cole" pays tribute to Cole Porter's musical genius by showcasing his best-known and best-loved songs, including "Begin the Beguine," "Night and Day," "I Get A Kick Out of You," "It's De-Lovely," and "From This Moment On."

"Red Hot and Cole" is the second production in a season of five plays being presented by the Straw Hat Players this summer. Other productions are the madcap comedy "Move Over, Mrs. Markham" (July 13, 14, 15 and 16); the fascinating drama "Mass Appeal" (July 20, 21, 22, 23, 27, 28, 29 and 30); and the rollicking musical hit "The Pirates of Penzance" (August 3, 4, 5 and 6).

Social Security Men Here Tues.

Ted Hoversten and Neil Rowe, field representatives of the Grand Forks social security office will be in Thief River Falls at the city auditorium on Tuesday from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.

GFAFB Is Part Of Global Shield Testing Exercise

Strategic air command has announced it will conduct a major, command-wide exercise, June 23 through July 1. Units at Grand Forks air force base will participate extensively.

Purpose of the exercise, Global Shield '83, is readiness training in which SAC and other U.S. and Canadian forces react to a coordinated, planned series of events. It is designed to enhance the ability of the command to carry out orders which support United States national defense policy. The exercise is not related to "real-world" events.

Global Shield is also designed to provide SAC aircrews realistic flight training missions. "Such training is essential to maintain aircrew proficiency," said First Lt. Jim Stratford, base chief of public affairs.

"Also, the exercise will be an extremely valuable training experience for the missile crews and support personnel, as it will test SAC plans and procedures for the employment of SAC aircraft and missile forces," he said. The exercise will test the ability of SAC to meet the challenges of keeping aircraft flying under realistic crisis conditions, simulated during Global Shield.

Global Shield 83 will be the fifth such large-scale exercise held by the command in as many years. The series began in 1979. It bears no relationship to any aspect of current international situations. SAC's commander in chief, General Bennie L. Davis, will direct the exercise and has indicated that Global Shield 83 will be as comprehensive and as realistic as past exercises.

SAC units in the U.S., Japan, Guam and Europe and selected air force reserve and air national guard units will participate in Global Shield 83. Involving all its forces will provide the command with a first-hand test of its abilities.

Also participating in Global Shield 83 will be components of the U.S. Navy and Marine Corps as well as elements of the Canadian Forces. Other forces which will be actively involved in the exercise include the North American Aerospace Defense command, Military Airlift command, Air Force Logistics command, Alaskan Air command, Tactical Air command, Air Training command, Electronic Security command, Air Force Systems command and Air Force Communications command.

SAC officials have announced that added use of a North Dakota low level training route will begin soon in conjunction with the exercise.

Route will pass near the North Dakota towns of Langdon, Cando, Maddock, Woodworth, Baldwin, Wilton, Beulah and exit near Dickinson.

B-52 bombers from Grand Forks AFB will fly the route at subsonic speeds along a center line of an eight mile wide corridor. Operating altitudes along the route will vary from 300 to 1,500 feet above ground level until Wilton. The aircraft will climb from there, exiting in the vicinity of Dickinson at an altitude of several thousand feet.

"SAC's aircraft don't carry nuclear weapons on training flights, although conventional weapons are sometimes carried," said Lieutenant Stratford. "For this exercise, some aircraft from other bases will drop inert training bombs over the Red Flag range at Nellis AFB, NV." Bombing and short range attack missile releases along the North Dakota route are simulated and scored by ground-based radar sites measuring the accuracy of electronic signals simulating bomb and SRAM releases.

SAC conducts a low level training to assure bomber crews are kept combat ready. The routes are changed periodically to provide unfamiliar targets and radar returns to the crews.

Populated areas are avoided as much as possible and all routes are coordinated with the federal aviation administration. "Although this is an FAA established route," said Lieutenant Stratford, "private pilots should be aware that during the flying phase, high speed camouflaged aircraft may be operating at any time. We ask that pilots operating in the vicinity of the low level route use their rotating beacons and strobe lights so they are more visible." Actual route use times are available from flight service stations within 200 nautical miles of the route.

Previously scheduled launches of Minuteman missiles will also occur at Vandenberg AFB, CA, during the excercise. A Minuteman III from the 321st strategic missile wing at Grand Forks AFB was picked at random and removed from its silo near Aneta, ND in late March, and will be launched by 321st SMW combat crews at Vandenberg AFB during the exercise.

Launches are designed to randomly test and evaluate the operational capabilities of the Minuteman system.

Base will also be testing its sirens during a disaster preparedness exercise. The test is scheduled for midway through the Global Shield activities on the base. The sirens are designed to warn base residents of impending natural disaster or possible attack.

Although the exercise will involve over 150,000 people during the week command-wide, SAC will retain its ability to meet day-to-day alert committments and other national command authority tasking during the exercise.

WEATHER WISDOM

Because it is 90% air, snow is excellent insulation, providing warmth for croplands and a comfortable burrow for small animals.

Of the Earth's 196,949,970 square miles of area, 48 million square miles of its surface are always snow-covered.

Despite the fact it is traveling at 67,000 mph, it takes the Earth 365 days to make one orbit of the Sun.

According to Figgie International's Thermometer Corporation of America (TCA), it takes more than 1,000,000 ice crystals to cover two square feet with 10 inches of snow.

Paul Wennberg On Dean's List

Paul Wade Wennberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wennberg of Thief River Falls, was named to the dean's list at Gustavus Adolphus college, St. Peter, for the spring semester, according to the office of the registrar.

Wennberg is a freshman at the college. Dean's list includes those students who have achieved at least a 3.5 grade point average for the semester.

Parent Smoking Causes Harm For Children

Children in households where one or both parents smoke cigarettes have a higher prevalence of respiratory conditions and lower lung function than children not exposed to cigarette smoke.

This finding, which confirms the results of other recent studies, was announced at the joint annual meeting of the American lung association and American thoracic society in Kansas City, MO last month by Cecil M. Burchfiel of Ann Arbor, MI. The family smoking histories of 4,378 children from birth to age 19 were reviewed as part of the Tecumseh study, a project initiated in 1959 to study the development of diseases in the entire population of a small town.

"The prevalence of asthma, wheeze, and chest colds was higher in males, and that of bronchitis and wheeze higher in females, if both parents smoked," said Mr. Burchfiel.

Lung function was examined only in children between 10 and 19 years of age. Various measures of function were lower in children of both sexes living in households where parents smoking also correlated with the prevalence of respiratory conditions and impaired lung function.

"It appears that the relationships are strongest in the younger age groups and among male children of all age groups," added Mr. Burchfiel. A possible explanation for the effects among younger children is that they are not only more susceptible to the effects of cigarette smoke but also in closer contact with the parents.

This is one of the few population studies to date of the effects of passive smoking on children. "This type of study offers an important advantage over other types. One of the strengths of the Tecumseh study is that information is available for both children and parents, and that these families have been followed for over 20 years," said Mr. Burchfiel.

For more information on second-hand smoke, contact the American Lung Association of Minnesota, 614 Portland Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, phone (612) 227-8014.

Strandquist Senior Citizen

Thursday, June 23 was our regular meeting day at the hangout. There were 14 who registered, we had two visitors, Blanche Waterworth, rural Newfolden and Lillian Germundson, Karlstad. Some of our members were absent and when that happens the attendance is always less.

Some bed pillows were completed, so now we are in the market for buyers again.

Two door prizes were given away and the two lucky people were Ruth Harper and Elsie Kimbrough.

We all sympathize with Evelyn and the rest of the Kline family in the passing of a dear wife and mother. Mrs. Kline did not attend our meetings very often, but she always served the lunch for Evelyn when Evelyn would be away visiting at the Iron Range.

Thanks to Louis Lofstrom for taking off the storm window in our door and putting on the screen on Thursday.

We prayed the table grace before lunch. Ann Holmstrom was our hostess Thursday.

WHEREVER SHE WAVES

It's a thrilling sight to see our flag in a parade. We react in different ways. The stars and stripes make some of us think of Washington and his gallant men at Valley Forge. Others remember Pearl Harbor, the Normandy Invasion, Vietnam or some we may have known who gave their lives in one of this century's too frequent wars.

The flag of our nation is beautiful but it's what the red, white and blue stand for that makes us proud to be Americans. Wherever she waves, all the sweat, blood, sacrifices, honor, loyalty, heroic deeds and accomplishments of our 200 plus years are symbolized in Old Glory.

Just as our flag represents our country and the American people, the Church is God's major tool for continuing His witness and work in the world.

You are always welcome in the House of the Lord. And you will find a lasting inspiration there for your life.

News for TEA LOVERS

Breaking Through Barbecue Boredom

Everyone knows that barbecuing is a great way to beat summer's heat. It keeps the heat outdoors where it belongs instead of in the kitchen.

But come mid-season, even the most enthusiastic barbecuers find themselves yearning for different taste experiences.

Why not satisfy that yearning with this dynamic duo: All-American Taco Franks and a new sweetened, lemon-flavored iced tea that has only four calories per serving, but no artificial taste.

Lemon Flavored Iced Tea Mix with NutraSweet is a new product from Lipton which is sweetened without the use of sugar or saccharin. Thanks to the new nutritive sweetener, NutraSweet, there's a natural sugar taste without a bitter aftertaste. It's perfect for the whole family.

All-American Taco Franks are sure to be a hit with everyone, too. Bacon-wrapped hot dogs are grilled, served in crisp taco shells, then topped with an easy, mildly spicy cheese sauce. Crown them with a variety of traditional taco toppings for added flavor and eye-appeal.

The Lipton Kitchens thinks you'll agree that refreshing iced tea mix with NutraSweet and these special taco franks are a dynamite barbecue duo.

ALL-AMERICAN TACO FRANKS

- 8 slices bacon
- 8 frankfurters
- 3/4 cup pasteurized process cheese spread
- 2 tablespoons catsup
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 8 taco shells
- Suggested Toppings*

Wrap 1 slice bacon around each frankfurter; secure ends with wooden toothpicks. Grill or broil, turning occasionally, until bacon is done.

Meanwhile, in small saucepan, heat cheese, catsup and mustard over low heat, stirring frequently, until cheese is melted. To serve, place frankfurters in taco shells; top with cheese sauce, then Suggested Toppings. Makes about 4 servings.

*Suggested Toppings: Chopped tomato, green pepper or onion; shredded lettuce; sliced pitted ripe olives.

It's Your Move

Following open letter to Walter F. Mondale was written as an editorial in the Ely Echo for June 20:

An Open Letter to Walter Mondale:

Dear Fritz:

It was one thing in 1978 when you, President Jimmy Carter, Congressman Burton and his colleagues, various environmental groups, et al, decided that the game plan for the Boundary Waters Canoe Area should be changed from what the Congress originally passed as the Wilderness Act in 1964. The people up here didn't particularly like it when you expanded the wilderness boundaries, stopped the timber cutting and banned the use of outboard motors and snowmobiles over most of the area. But we accepted it as the law.

In order to offset the impact of that law on the local tourist industry, you had a provision inserted which was aimed at providing compensation for damages suffered by the changeover and which would provide federal assistance to businesses for rebuilding their establishments to accomodate the new uses and to purchase equipment for non-motorized wilderness use.

Federal funds were promised up to 25 per cent of any loans the businesses took out for these purposes. These funds were administered through the U.S. Forest Service and assistance in working out the details was provided by federal officials and also state employees from the University of Minnesota Agriculture Extension Service. Both Federal and state officers met regular with tourist operators from Ely to Gunflint, urging them to accept the government help, urging them to upgrade their operations and urging them to change over to the new concept. . . and a lot of the businesses did just that. A lot of them went into hock up to their ears.

Well, this year, Fritz, a different echelon from Washington descended on this area — the people from the Internal Revenue Service. They have ruled that the grants provided for compensation for damages weren't really that. Grants of $2,500 to individuals damaged by the law (as provided under Priority I of the 1978 law) are now taxable. The grants to businesses as a part of the changeover to the new uses (Priority II) are now taxable. And the people who accepted this money are required to pay a penalty going back to the time it was given, in many instances back to 1980. And, since the IRS has moved in to collect, the state tax people are also coming down on the tourist operators for their share.

How this works out now is that the tax people will be taking back up to 40 per cent of the funds granted to the businesses, funds which were to be used to offset the impact of your law. . . and funds which were spent long ago and simply are not in anybody's bank account. Some of these businesses now have little choice except go out of operation and sell their property to the government for whatever they can get. If that law was a cute way to bust the tourism business along the border lakes in Northeastern Minnesota, it was well-designed. If it was merely a mistake, an oversight by the administration and the Congress in which a provision was left out stating the aid was nontaxable, then the law should be immediately changed and the bloodhounds from the Internal Revenue Service so informed.

Frankly, this is lousy situation. You were a part of the group that got the bill passed, Fritz. It is up to you to either straighten it out — if the law is what was presented to the people here — or to simply say to the businessmen who got impacted: "So Long, sucker!"

It is your move.

Opportunity Missed

Following is from a column by Phil Duff, former editor of the Red Wing Republican-Eagle:

As a final post-mortem on Legislature '83, I'd like to relate the "coffee cup" story about Gov. Rudy Perpich and Super-fund.

The story suggests how Gov. Perpich might have given a wholly different cast to the session that adjourned May 23.

To me, this was Opportunity Missed — an opportunity to send a dramatic new signal to the U.S. business community that things have changed in Minnesota and the state is newly focusing on jobs, jobs, JOBS.

The "coffee cup" episode, as related around the Capitol, came when Gov. Perpich had assembled both environmentalists and business lobbyists to counsel him on what to do about the House and Senate-passed Super-fund bill to launch a cleanup of hazardous waste dumps and assign liability for such wastes.

After hearing an industry argument, Gov. Perpich said something like this:

"You men I've got this stuff left in my coffee cup and I give it to you (nodding to one person present) as a state-licensed waste transporter and you haul it to him (another person) as a state-licensed waste disposer, and he does something wrong with it, causing somebody injury.

"You mean that injured person can then turn around and sue ME?"

Perpich asked the question in a way that indicated he felt this lawsuit would be downright unfair, and the industry lobbyists chimed in with, "That's exactly what we mean."

The DFL governor signed Superfund into law nonetheless, and 3M chairman Lew Lehr responded with sorrowful public anger: "The Climate in Minnesota is not so much anti-business as it is anti-Minnesota."

Now suppose Perpich had chosen the opposite course — a veto.

You, friend legislators, have plenty of time to put this Superfund bill in proper shape before you adjourn. Right now it's anti-job, but correct these deficiencies, return it to me, and I'll sign it.

Such a Perpich Superfund veto would have spurred environmentalists and business-haters to noisy outrage, and such folk are "establishment" among DFL activists.

But by appealing over the heads of DFL dogmatists to the general public, Perpich would have made himeself a dramatic pro-job hero for the people.

"I campaigned on reviving the slipping Minnesota economy," Perpich's veto would have been saying, "and I'm determined to let nothing interfere with that goal."

Perpich's Superfund veto drama would have made business leaders all over America sit up and take big notice.

"I guess this DFL governor really means business about making a turnaround in Minnesota and going after jobs and investment," the corporate execs would have been telling each other.

Politically, Perpich's anti-DFL veto would have been reminiscent of the way then-Gov. Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin defied his own Democratic Party's anti-sales tax convention declaration and signed the state sales tax into law as essential to financing Wisconsin government.

Thus overruling his too-doctrinaire fellow Democrats, Nelson went on to a notable career as a Democratic U.S. Senator.

Perpich, I'm afriad, missed a golden Superfund opportunity to electrify public opinion and advertise Minnesota's dramatic switch to a pro-job stance.

Fisherman's Lament

Publisher Ron Anfinson of the Swift County News at Benson has compiled some fishing facts which most anglers will find to be only too painfully true:

"The best time to catch fish is yesterday when they were biting.

"The amount of money expended in outfitting a fishing trip is in a direct 9-1 proportion to what fish are selling for at the supermarket.

"If there are eight people on a $150 a day charter boat, the woman who won her trip during bingo night at the VFW club will catch the most fish.

"After you spend $250 for the best rod and reel in the catalog, the kid fishing with a cane pole and twine will catch more fish. Children under the age of ten who catch more fish than Dad should never ask if he'd like one from their stringer.

"If two people sit side by side in a fishing boat, have the same tackle and bait, drop their lines to exactly the same depth and use the same motions, the person next to you will catch more fish."

Borrowed Nonsense:

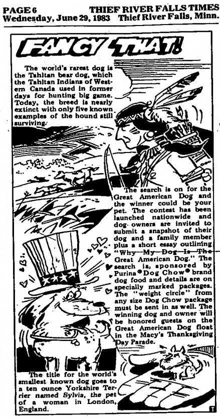
The grizzled old prospector had just tied his mule to the hitching post when a cowboy strolled out of the nearby saloon. "Dance, old man," the cowboy commanded, drawing his pistol and shooting around the old-timer's feet. The tired prospector hopped about until the cowboy emptied his revolver, had a big laugh and returned to the saloon.

A few minutes later the cowboy heard an old man's voice behind him. "Cowboy," the voice said, "have you ever kissed a dirty, sweaty, smelly old mule right on the lips?"

The cowboy spun around to look squarely into the business end of the prospector's double-barreled shotgun. "No, sir," the cowboy stammered, "but I've always wanted to!"

My wife says I forget things. That's funny. . . I don't remember forgetting anything.

FANCY THAT!



The world's rarest dog is the Tahitan bear dog, which the Tahltan Indians of Western Canada used in former days for hunting big game. Today, the breed is nearly extinct with only five known examples of the hound still surviving.

The search is on for the Great American Dog and the winner could be your pet. The contest has been launched nationwide and dog owners are invited to submit a snapshot of their dog and a family member plus a short essay outlining "Why My Dog Is The Great American Dog." The search is sponsored by Purina® Dog Chow® brand dog food and details are on specially marked packages. The "weight circle" from any size Dog Chow package must be sent in as well. The winning dog and owner will be honored guests on the Great American Dog float in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade.

The title for the world's smallest known dog goes to a ten ounce Yorkshire Terrier named Sylvia, the pet of a woman in London, England.

Owners Of Mobile Homes Provided Specific Rights

Earlier this year, a Fridley woman who planned to sell her 15 year-old mobile home valued at $9,000 was told by a realtor that she would get only one-third that price because the park owner would not allow her to sell it within the park. This was "scrap price," she said, and would mean financial disaster to her. A sales price like that would not only mean the loss of all her equity, but would leave her still owning on the original contract as well.

Thanks to a new law which became effective in May of this year, her situation — and that of scores of Minnesotans like her — has changed dramatically. Under this law, park owners, (although they still have the right to approve the entrance of a new tenant into their park), no longer may refuse to allow the sale of a home within the park because it is 15 years old or more.

This law — which also requires the disclosure and compliance of certain mobile home safety measures — is the latest addition to the state's mobile home statutes, laws which have been described as the most progressive mobile home statutes in the nation. They exist because the legislature has recognized that most mobile home owners are in a special situation, suffering the disadvantages of being both home-owners and renters.

If you are among the increasing numbers of persons who believe mobile home ownership offers the only hope of owning a home and you plan to buy one, or if you now own one and are thinking of selling it, learn your rights under these special laws. They cover several areas ranging from health and safety, to landlord tenant law, home payments, foreclosures and repossessions. The highlights of just some of these laws include the following:

If you miss a payment on your mobile home, repossession cannot legally begin until the creditor has sent you a proper and adequate default notice by certified mail. You still have 30 days after receiving this notice to pay the amount due and keep your home.

If you miss a rent payment, the park owner can evict you, but must get a court order to do so. Under law, he or she must give you written notice of rent due. You have 10 days to pay. After that period, the park owner may begin an unlawful detainer action, setting a court date for the eviction hearing. You may still pay the rent when you go to court and remain a renter in good standing, but you may have to pay court costs. If you are evicted, the judge may stay the eviction seven days, giving you time to move. You must be given 24 hours to move.

You can be evicted for violation of a park rule. Unless the violation is very serious, the park owners must give you a 30 day written notice — and an opportunity to comply in that period and still retain your rental status — before he or she can begin eviction proceedings.

State law requires that your rental agreement with the park be in writing. Under law, park rules must be reasonable, must be in writing, and cannot be substantially changed for you after you've become a tenant. The law defines "reasonable rule" and "substantial" change.

You have the right to sell your home within the park, and to sell it yourself if you wish. Park owners need a good reason to deny your buyer's application to lease in the park.

Before buying a home, you must get written notice of its compliance with certain safety measures. Before signing a lease you must be given an "Important Notice" of your rights and duties.

As a tenant you have the right to organize, assemble, canvass, or leaflet for non-commercial purposes, and to form a tenants' organization. You can't be evicted for filing a complaint against the landlord or asserting your legal rights. In any eviction action against you within 90 days of doing so, the landlord must prove it's not retaliatory eviction.

Park owners must have a storm shelter or adequate evacuation plan for severe weather conditions, and must post the plan conspicuously in the park.

You cannot be required to purchase goods or services from a particular seller, including the landlord. Rent increases require a 60-day written notice and cannot be made more than twice in one year.

If you have a question about your rights, or believe your rights are being violated by a park owner, you may get information or file a complaint through the office of the Minnesota attorney general. You may also seek direct action yourself, or through a tenants' organization, and may wish to consult or retain an attorney.

Animal Oddities

There are more than 58 million hogs on farms in the United States, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The leading hog raising state? Iowa, with more than 14 million hogs. The leading horse raising state is Texas with more than 600,000 horses. That state raises the most beef cattle also, reports the Department of Agriculture, with over 13 million. The leading chicken raising state is Georgia, which raises over 441 million each year. Arkansas is a close second with more than 433 million broilers raised.

Among the many items manufactured for the livestock industry in the United States are hog holders, ear punches, cattle prods, calf pullers, electric brands, tattoo inks and ear notchers. One pioneer in animal identification and grooming products is Stone Mfg. & Supply Co. of Kansas City, which developed a tattoo iron that is shaped like a pliers and easily held in one hand. Letters or numerals are made of many sharp steel points which can be easily slid in and out of the face of the tool by loosening one screw. That company has announced the formation of a new company called "Stone of Denver, Inc.," which recently purchased real estate, buildings, and metal fabrication equipment formerly owned by Franklin Laboratories. Along with the additional product line of electric brands, cattle prods and other instruments, the new facilities provide a closer shipping point for equipment going to the livestock industry in the western states.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, in the year 1980 there were 60 million cattle on farms, 58 million hogs and about 18 million horses and mules. According to the Bureau of Labor Statistics, there are now about 2.7 million farm workers in the United States out of about 100.3 million employed Americans.

Technology To Be Applied In Road Survey

As high technology allows exploration of the ocean depths and outer space, it is also allowing the Minnesota department of transportation (Mn-DOT) to probe for potential problems beneath the surface of a highway.

Mn-DOT engineers are using both radar and infrared thermography this June and July to look through the pavement surface for signs of deterioration in the layers of the roadbed, said Paul Diethelm, director of research and development.

Minnesota is one of the first states to use radar and thermography. Both devices are housed in a specially equipped van and operated by two technicians. The technicians and equipment are being used by Mn-DOT on a contractual basis.

Both techniques are being tested to determine their feasibility and cost-effectiveness for widespread use by the department. They will be compared with conventional ways to look for deterioration including removing core samples or dragging a heavy chain to listen for the sound echoes produced by weak spots in the roadbed.

The radar waves sense differences in the density of various layers of roadbed materials. Marked differences in density indicate areas where material is either missing or seriously weakened — sure signs of future problems. By early detection, repairs can be made before the deterioration spreads to cause additional damage and require more extensive repairs.

Radar is especially valuable to determine deterioration caused by water collection in the roadbed because the damage is usually much greater at the base of the pavement structure where most water collects.

"The alternative to radar is to remove test cores or dig test pits which are both expensive and time-consuming," Diethelm said.

As does radar, infrared thermography — the process of taking pictures of the roadbed using heat instead of light — indicates weakened areas in the pavement.

Sections of the roadbed pavement weakened by tensile stress have a higher temperature than undamaged sections.

They show a higher temperature on sunny days because the damaged pavement layers separate, making them less dense and quicker to warm from the sun's rays.

By measuring the temperature differences between damaged and undamaged sections, engineers can determine specific areas that need immediate or future repair.

Areas weakened by tensile stress are usually small — from one to three feet in diameter — and show up on the readout device as white "hot spots" in contrast to the gray or black areas which indicate undamaged pavement.

"We will decide at the end of the summer how feasible and cost-effective it is to continue to use these two high technology methods," Diethelm said.
